

'Nice guy' image returns to the White House

By WILLIAM BROOM
National Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON — For the first time in a violent political decade, a man with a "nice guy" image sits in the White House.

President Ford has a way with people, a way that moved him to say he wanted "just a little straight talk among friends" in the solemn moments after he took the oath of office Friday.

Seldom has a president taken office to find the nation as badly divided and disillusioned as Gerald Ford now finds it. The American public's confidence in the political system may be at an all-time low.

Congress and the judiciary reasserted coequality during the bruising battles of Watergate, leaving the presidency relatively weaker in any period since the early 1930s.

Yet Congress and the public have already made it clear by their reactions to the new President that they are looking to him for moral and spiritual leadership.

Ford's remarks after his swearing-in ceremony offered reassuring hope that they may find it in the popular, but unspectacular man who delivered them.

He offered no instant cures for the country's wounds, which he called "more painful and poisonous than those of foreign wars." He offered only openness and candor.

"I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together, and not only government, but civilization itself," said the new President.

The presidency has a way of bringing out qualities not heretofore revealed in its incumbents. But Ford's past has been so open (he went through nearly two months of the most intensive investigation and personal questioning in history in hearings on his vice-presidential nomination that some insights into the nation's future with Ford can be gleaned.

Few departures from Nixon administration domestic and foreign policies will occur. That follows from Ford's own ideological and philosophical closeness to Richard M. Nixon. There are practical considerations. Congress is near the end of the legislative calendar. Next year's budget proposals are nearly half complete.

If anything, Gerald Ford is even more conservative than the man he succeeds.

He was among the first to propose revenue sharing with the states, a key element of Nixon's "new federalism." He voted to sustain every Nixon veo the House considered in 1973.

In the House, he was opposed to federal school aid, minimum wage bills, the war on poverty. He voted against Medicare. His record was antifarm and antilabor. He was an ardent foe of school busing, and voted for the civil rights and voting rights bills of the 1960s, only after backing weaker substitutes that were defeated.

Yet all of Washington expects Gerald Ford's administration to contrast starkly with that of Nixon's. That belief follows from the stark differences in their personalities and their views of government.

In the House of Representatives, Ford played a hard partisan game without evoking hatred or contempt. He had scores of opponents, but no enemies.

Driverless, ownerless, buyerless

Imported cars stand in silent ranks near Veterans Stadium in North Long Beach, above, and on Pier E in Long Beach Harbor, right.

Some auto distributors say the cars are collecting dust because the disappearance of gasoline shortages has cut the demand for imported autos. Other distributors say devaluation of the dollar and rising costs are to blame for the surplus of foreign cars. Whatever the reason, there's a small car glut now.

Imports in storage

Little space for little cars

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Long Beach and Los Angeles harbors have so many import automobiles in storage they are running out of their piers.

What's the reason for so many imports on hand? The answer depends upon who is talking.

"Easing of the gasoline shortage," said some.

"Devaluation of the dollar," said another.

"The price of 1975 models are going out of sight. We will have lower priced models to offer," said still another import car official.

The only thing on which the various officials contacted agreed upon is that they refused to be quoted.

One distributor tried to squelch the story that there are full parking lots in the two ports of import automobiles.

"If you print that, prospective buyers will balk at buying an import because they will question why the cars are not selling," one importer's agent told the I, P-T.

"Also the buyers will think they are in a better position to hammer out a bargain because they will think we have too many cars on hand," he added.

Perhaps his weakest argument was that if the cars did not sell, the two ports would lose revenue because there would be no space to store future shipments of imports.

Mazda officials gave another reason for their heavy inventory. The company began importing their revolutionary rotary engine cars to America in early 1971, using facilities then available in Long Beach Harbor.

"We were a latecomer in the import car business, and by the time we got here there was simply not enough room at the inn," said a Mazda official. Because of the lack of storage space within the port, the company stores most of its inventory of 6,000 to 7,000 imports on a parking lot adjacent to Veterans Stadium.

"While other Japanese manufacturers have several U.S. ports through which they import and store cars, Long Beach Harbor is our main port of entry for Mazdas. What you see is what we have," the Mazda spokesman said.

Noting that General Motors Friday announced price increases of up to $480 for 1975 models, the Mazda spokesman said, "We hope to be competitive by offering cars for sale built at 1974 costs."

One automotive industry observer cited the easing of the gasoline supply as one reason for the seeming slump in small import car sales. With the increase in gasoline supplies earlier this year, many prospective buyers changed their thinking about buying small, compact, low gasoline consumption cars to bigger, more luxurious cars.

At the peak of the energy crunch the bigger cars were a drug on the market. Dealers had a hard time trying to give them away. A case in point is that in March of this year a two-door 1972 Mercury Marquis Brougham was listed in Kelly's Blue Book, the pricing bible

Ford retains Cabinet, asks help in VP choice

Cites need for smooth change

By JANET STAIHAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford asked the Cabinet to stay on, was assured of its continuing support, and solicited sealed recommendations Saturday for the choice of a new vice president.

Ford met with his inherited full Cabinet in the Oval Office of the White House for 45 minutes, and said he hoped that they, as well as heads of independent agencies, would all stay aboard in the new administration. Ford said he did not even want the customary formal resignations.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, top man in the Cabinet, responded for the entire group, saying they welcomed the opportunity to perform a national service.

"Now we wish to express our unflagging support and total loyalty to you," said Kissinger.

Ford expressed his gratitude that the Cabinet had carried on under what he termed trying circumstances during the last several months of the Nixon administration. Ford said he intended to meet individually and face-to-face with each Cabinet member when problems arose. However, Ford said, those personal meetings would be business "rather than chitchat."

Jerald F. terHorst, press secretary to the new President who took the oath Friday, told reporters at a briefing that Ford underscored the importance of continuity and stability at this point in the transition between administrations.

"I believe that is what the country wants," terHorst quoted the President as saying to the Cabinet. "I think we have a fine team here."

Ford was said to have stressed to the Cabinet his announced policy

Israeli navy sinks Arab guerrilla craft off coast

United Press International

The Israeli navy sank an Arab guerrilla craft off the Israeli-Lebanese frontier early Saturday, according to reports from both sides.

The Israeli command said one of its patrol boats sank a rubber dinghy carrying guerrillas toward northern Israel on an apparent raiding mission.

In Beirut, a Palestinian guerrilla spokesman said the Arab craft was a gunboat and that it opened fire and scored a direct hit on an Israeli patrol boat. He said a second Israeli patrol craft and a destroyer ganged up on the gunboat, which fought a 20-minute battle before it went down.

The guerrilla spokesman said one of the guerrillas managed to swim ashore but an unspecified number of others are missing.

The Israeli said the dinghy exploded and sank and no bodies were recovered. Israeli military sources said the dinghy, powered by an outboard motor, could hold up to four men. No Israeli casualties were reported.

It was the first guerrilla waterborne sortie reported since June 24 when three guerrillas landed at the northern Israeli coastal town of Nahariyya and killed four persons

Secret Witness adds reward for bank bandit

At 11:45 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 6, a bandit armed with a .45 caliber automatic pistol held up the Cerritos branch of the Bank of America at 1805 Gridley Road and escaped with $850.

The bandit was described as a Caucasian with a swarthy complexion, 6 feet tall, about 200 pounds.

Bank cameras made front and profile pictures of the holdup man, but thus far authorities have been unable to match the photos with a suspect.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man who held up the bank in Cerritos on Aug. 6.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2526 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 87, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

(Selected summaries of other Secret Witness cases in which rewards of specified amounts are offered will be found on Page A-19.)

People in the news

Ford's phone calls driving them dingy

Combined News Services

The telephone directory for Northern Virginia carries a listing for "Ford, Gerald R. Hon. 514 Crown View Dr., Alexandria."

But Ford got a new, unlisted number when he became vice president 10 months ago, and the telephone company later assigned the phone number he had as a congressman to the honeymoon apartment of David and Alicia Taylor, both 21.

"We got one or two calls a week at first," Mrs. Taylor said Saturday. "It took us a while to figure out that we had his old number. And then, this last week, boom! the phone never stops."

The calls from well-wishers to the new President of the United States are "enough to drive you crazy — and believe me, it does," said Taylor, a postal worker whose apartment is not far from the Ford home in the Washington, D.C., suburb of Alexandria, Va.

The Taylors have tried everything, short of disconnecting the phone, to escape the constant ringing. They've wrapped it in pillows, buried it under rugs and taken it off the hook. But most of the time, they just answer it.

Mrs. Taylor said some callers are skeptical when she tells them that Ford can't be reached at that number.

"Some times I tell them that there's no Ford here unless he's black because we're black persons," said Mrs. Taylor. "Some times they just say, 'Well, tell him we're praying for him' or 'When you see him, give him our congratulations."

DAVID AND ALICIA TAYLOR WITH TROUBLESOME PHONE

The Taylors have never met the Fords, but Mrs. Taylor is intrigued about the 38th President: "All his friends are so very nice on the telephone."

"Hopefully, now that Mr. Ford is the one in the White House, the calls here will stop," Mrs. Taylor added. "If not, we're just going to have to pay a fee to change the phone number."

Hobo royalty

Arthur "Slow Motion Shorty" Parker and "Long Looker Mic" Denfield, were crowned king and queen of the hobos on Saturday at the National Hobo Convention in Britt, Iowa.

Railriders and area residents numbering in the thousands gathered to sample the traditional mulligan stew and watch the festivities on main street of the northern Iowa town of about 2,000.

Last year's king, Maury "Steam Train" Graham of Toledo, Ohio, did not defend his title, saying he wanted different hobos to have a chance at the title. Graham also said he was weary after visiting over 34,000 veterans in hospitals across the country last year.

"Slow Motion Shorty," 59, of Rochelle, Ill., reigned as king in 1969. He said he plans to visit 25 states by freight train this year to advertise Britt and the convention.

"Long Looker Mic" of Rockwell City has held her title for the past five years. She was in competition with her 16-year-old daughter, "Adventurer Jan."

Chaplin wedding

Charlie Chaplin's 21-year-old son Eugene married a Swiss girl he has known since childhood Saturday in a ceremony witnessed by the famed 85-year-old comedian and his wife.

Eugene and the bride, Sandra Guignard, 20, were married in a half-hour ceremony in the medieval chapel of the small village of Brent, overlooking the Lake Geneva resort of Montreux.

Chaplin seemed in frail health and was assisted by his wife, Oona, and a family friend as he left the chapel.

Cuba rebel

Former Cuban Prime Minister Jose Miro Cardona died Saturday of a heart attack, a family spokesman said in San Juan, Puerto Rico. He was 71.

Miro Cardona organized a Cuban group in 1958 to protest the dictatorship of Fulgencio Batista, and the following year he became prime minister after Fidel Castro seized power in a revolution.

But Castro took over the premiership himself two months later and in mid-1960 Miro Cardona fled to the U.S. after an ideological dispute with the Cuban leader. In exile he founded the Cuban Revolutionary Council under the auspices of the U.S. government, and his organization played a major role in the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion of Cuba in 1961.

Last respects

Plaintive chords of a gospel song echoed through the narrow valley in East Lynn, W. Va., as friends and relatives of Brother Talmadge Ray Adkins gathered to pay their last respects Saturday.

Adkins, 45, leader of a hill country snake-handling cult, was bitten last Sunday while handling snakes during a church service. He died Thursday.

A crowd of about 75 sat on folding chairs in the yard or stood at the top of a steep bank of a stream that runs by Adkins' house. During the service, a man appeared with a box, opened the cover and reached inside to take out a copperhead. Others did likewise and soon the singers and members of Adkins' church were handling the poisonous reptiles.

But not everyone in the crowd was enthralled by the snake handling. A Wayne County sheriff's deputy said, "If that's what it takes to be saved, I'll just have to tell 'The Man' I'm afraid of His snakes."

The funeral procession then moved to a small cemetery at the top of a hill near Adkins' home. At the entrance was a hand-lettered sign: "No snakes allowed in cemetery."

First hand

French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Saturday got a first-hand look at problems facing the country's prisons.

The president visited the prisons of St. Paul and St. Joseph, separated by only a narrow street in Lyons. The two prisons hold some 500 inmates, half convicted and half waiting trial. Giscard d'Estaing said the two prisons embody all the prison problems which led to riots and hunger strikes in prisons across the country last month.

Six prisoners died and scores of inmates and guards were injured in the wave of prison violence, and the government approved a prison reform program in response.

Back home

Helen Vlachos, formerly a leading Athens newspaper publisher, returned home to Greece Saturday following a five-year self-imposed exile in London.

Mrs. Vlachos shut down her two Athens dailies, Kathimerini and Mesimvri, rather than submit to censorship imposed when the army seized power in 1967. The return of power to a civilian government headed by Premier Constantine Karamanlis prompted her return.

Office-seeker

Perennial office-seeker Thurman Jerome Hamlin said in London, Ky., Saturday he is "publicly applying to President Gerald Ford for me to be named vice president" to protect Ford from harm.

"The best reason for me to be named vice president is that there wouldn't be one hurt Ford because then Hamlin would be president," he said.

Hamlin lists himself as a direct descendant of Hannibal Hamlin of Maine, who served as vice president of the United States under Abraham Lincoln from 1861-65. He has run for office in Kentucky over a dozen times in the past 20 years, but has never won an election.

Nomination

The American Independent Party's national committee Saturday asked Alabama Gov. George Wallace to seek the party's nomination for president in 1976.

A party spokesman in Chicago said Wallace wired the committee members thanking them for the party's past support but made no commitment to run. Wallace was the American Independent party nominee in 1968.

Party chairman Wallace Shearer interpreted Wallace's message to the group as indicating the Democratic governor was keeping open his option of leading the party in 1976.

Mock anger

The son of the French millionaire who makes Bic pens caught a reporter using brand-x Saturday in Newport, R.I.

"What kind of pen is that?" asked Bruno Bich in mock anger. He reached over, snatched it out of his hand and tossed it into the harbor. "You cannot use that."

With that, Bich whipped out a new Bic pen from his pocket and handed it to the astonished newsmen.

He said some 2 million of the inexpensive pens are sold each day in the U.S. — "I do not know what they do with them. They must eat them or throw them away."

Character actor

Veteran character actor Otto Kruger was hospitalized in Woodland Hills Saturday after suffering a slight stroke at his Bel Air home. Kruger, 88, was taken to the Motion Picture Country Home and Hospital where he was undergoing tests.

Kruger began his career in silent films before World War I, went on to talkies, and also performed on the stage and on television.

Maddox leads in 'last hurrah'

ATLANTA (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, holding on to what appears to be a diminished hard core of conservative support, seeks the Democratic nomination for governor Tuesday in what he admits is his "last hurrah."

Maddox, 58, is the favorite among 12 Democrats seeking the nomination, but it's virtually certain he'll wind up in a runoff.

Sen. Herman Talmadge also faces opposition in the Democratic primary but is expected to win easily.

Most election officials predict a typical tight turnout and that would help Maddox, who has built a loyal following through his four years as governor and the past three and one-half as lieutenant governor. Recent polls show, however, that Maddox may be losing some of his strength and that he peaked too early.

Maddox, who has said repeatedly that this will be his last campaign, was installed as governor in 1966 by the Democratic-controlled House after the race was thrown into the General Assembly.

Most observers believe he will face either former state Transportation Commissioner Bert Lance or House Majority Leader George Busbee in the Sept. 3 runoff.

Ronnie Thompson, the controversial mayor of Macon, is running on both the Democratic and the Republican ballots. A registered Republican, Thompson has a solid chance of winning the GOP nomination over four others.

Opposing him in the Republican primary are House Minority Whip Harry Geisinger, former Democrat Harold Dye and two county commissioners, George Lankford and Bill Coolidge.

Talmadge is an overwhelming favorite to be elected to a fourth term. His Democratic opposition is a Stone Mountain veterinarian and political unknown, Carlton Myers.

Crash kills 4 in music group

JACKSON, Minn. (AP) — The leader and some members of the rock music group "Chase" were among six men killed when a small chartered plane crashed late Friday night in a muddy soybean field near this southern Minnesota town.

The dead included three members of the Chicago-based jazz and pop music group, among them the group's founder Bill Chase, 39, Chicago. Other dead whose identities were made public Saturday night were guitarist John Emma, 22, Geneva, Ill., and drummer Walter Clark, 25, Williamston, N.J.

ATLANTA'S Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox displays campaign slogan from office in Atlanta. He has said gubernatorial race will be his last, win or lose.

Cleared four years ago Doctor faces new grilling in deaths

By MARY NEISWENDER
Staff Writer

A young Long Beach doctor—whose know-how in hospital emergency rooms has saved hundreds of lives in the past three years—begins a legal fight Monday, possibly to save his own life.

And he doesn't even know if he is on trial.

All he knows is that his wife and two young daughters are dead and he was cleared once—four years ago—of their murder.

Whether or not he will be—or is—a suspect remains moot.

Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald's nightmare began in the early morning hours of Feb. 17, 1970, in his small Army home at Ft. Bragg, N.C., when his five-month-pregnant wife, Colette, and his two daughters, Kristen, 2, and Kimberly, 6, were beaten and stabbed to death.

Despite the fact he was cleared in a military hearing more than four years ago, the doctor's nightmare hasn't ended. Monday, he appears as the first witness before a federal grand jury in Raleigh, N.C., again looking into the bizarre killings.

"I just can't believe it," the 30-year-old doctor said Saturday as he prepared to leave his job at St. Mary's Hospital for the trip east. "The whole thing is unbelievable."

But believable or not, he will have to repeat the story once again before the closed door grand jury session.

IT BEGAN, he says, when he returned home shortly before dusk Feb. 16, 1970, from 24-hour hospital duty—in time to take his two small daughters to visit a horse he had bought for them for Christmas. "The last thing we did together."

After a quick dinner, he said, his wife left for a class at the University of North Carolina extension division and he settled down for a quiet evening with his girls. He says he had already put his daughters to bed when his wife arrived home. They talked, he recalls, and he stayed up to watch television and read while she went to bed.

When he finally put down his book, and tried to crawl into bed, he says he found his young daughter had beaten him to it and had wet the bed. He gathered her up, put her back in her own bed and, rather than awaken his wife in order to change the sheets, went back into the living room to sleep on the sofa.

"The next thing I was aware of was I was awakened by a scream from my wife... I was sitting up, hearing her scream, 'Help, Jeff. Why are they doing this to me?' Then Kim started screaming 'Daddy, Daddy, Daddy...' Things were all happening at once."

IN THE DIM light, the honor graduate from Princeton who won the right to wear the Green Beret tam said he saw four people—one that appeared to be a girl with long blonde hair and wearing a floppy hat and three men, one black and two white. The girl, he told investigators, appeared to be holding a candle or flashlight in her hands because it glowed on her face, and in a monotone kept saying, "Acid is groovy...kill the pigs." He maintains he fought, but was hit on the head with what appeared to be a baseball bat and then stabbed repeatedly with an icepick and knife. (He had 12 icepick wounds in his stomach and three in his left arm. There were stab wounds in his arms and chest—one of which punctured his lung.)

When he regained consciousness, he said, he found his wife on the floor of the master bedroom, a knife sticking out of her chest.

"I saw the knife and pulled it out of her chest and threw it down...I tried mouth to mouth resuscitation, but the air bubbles were coming out of her chest and neck and I've been a doctor long enough to know what that means..."

He covered his wife, he says, with his torn pajama tops and went into his daughters' rooms—both were in bed, dead. Despite the fact he could find no pulse, he says he tried to breathe life into them. Before losing consciousness again, he managed to telephone police.

No one gave anything but sympathy to the young Green Beret captain for a month after the murders. But then, as he prepared to pick up the keys to his home, the Army gave him an official escort and he was told he was under arrest for the killings.

ARMY investigators had formed the theory that MacDonald and his wife had had a violent quarrel over the younger daughter's bed wetting and that the angry words ended up in the slaughter. They maintained that the young surgeon had torn up the house and, being a doctor, had added a few careful stab wounds to those already inflicted by his wife as she fought back.

Basis for the theory: — A flower pot, its contents strewn on the floor, had been found standing upright, indicating staged disorder.

— The doctor's pajama tops were found under his wife's body, indicating they had been struggling. — There was no firm physical evidence of any intruders.

MacDonald claims "initial stories had nothing to do with the facts" but what really bothers him, he says, is that the investigation into the killings was so inept that it hurt his chances to prove his innocence.

Within a half hour, the murder house was overrun with MPs, touching, smudging and leaving their own fingerprints. A variety of fingerprints found throughout the house turned out to belong to investigators. And, it was later learned, the remaining fingerprints were never sent to the FBI's central fingerprint file for identification.

NO ONE, it was learned, could be sure whether dirt stains discovered in the house had come with the intruders or the investigators. In addition, road blocks were never set up to apprehend the four persons described by MacDonald.

At the hearing, one witness admitted the flower pot had been moved by an investigator, and it had, in fact, been on its side initially.

Another witness admitted that he had rolled the dead woman over—and onto the pajama top—to search for additional wounds.

MacDonald's statement

Boys run over inside house

A five-year-old Whittier boy is hospitalized with head injuries and a possible broken leg after he and a friend were injured Saturday at home by a 16-year-old Maywood motorcyclist who crashed through their front door, Norwalk sheriff's deputies said.

David Strain, 10553 Wedgeport Ave., was visiting his 3-year-old friend John Graymata at 10550 Wedgeport Ave. when the motorcyclist lost control of his dirt bike, slamming into the boys, who were standing in a living room hallway, according to police. The motorcyclist received only minor injuries in the accident at 4:02 p.m., a La Mirada Presbyterian Hospital spokesman said.

A Whittier Presbyterian Hospital spokesman said the Graymata child was treated for cuts and bruises and released after his more seriously injured playmate was hospitalized.

Police said the motorcyclist, who was not cited, accelerated rapidly over the driveway on Wedgeport Avenue before stopping inside the house.

S.F. unions sue for raises cut off by county

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Five unions are suing San Francisco for $2.5 million in raises the county supervisors cut from the 1974-75 "crafts pay" ordinance.

The suit, filed in San Francisco Superior Court, would require the supervisors to reinstate the raises, averaging $2,000 a year for street sweepers, laborers, gardeners, electric motor repairmen, radio technicians, truck drivers, heavy equipment operators and survey crews.

The action was brought by Laborers Union 261, Operating Engineers Local 3, Teamsters Local 215, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Locals 6 and 202.

that the long haired girl carried a candle or flashlight seemed to match, when prosecutors admitted that they had no wax droppings at the murder scene that did not match any possible sources of wax in the house. And the results of an unprecedented attack on MacDonald and his attorneys by prosecution agents in order to get a sample of the captain's hair for comparison with hair found in his wife's hand proved the hair did not match any member of the family.

As a final point, five of six doctors who testified said that at least one of MacDonald's potentially fatal wounds could not have been self-inflicted "safely."

MacDonald was cleared by the Army hearing, and his life began anew on the West Coast.

BUT ON the East Coast, one of the former captain's staunchest supporters, his father-in-law, changed his mind and, in legal papers presented to a U.S. District Court judge, accused him of the killings and asked for the grand jury hearing. "It is unbelievable to be transported four years back in time...to have to remember how it was... This is insanity. This nightmare won't only last for a few weeks—but the grand jury is scheduled to take two to three months to look into this, so I'll have to wait for them to make up their minds...to decide if I have to go through this a third time."

Marijuana bad for heart patients: specialist says

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Smoking marijuana can be "very harmful" to a heart patient, according to a Long Beach heart specialist.

Dr. Wilbert S. Aronow, chief of the cardiology section at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, has reported to the medical profession that marijuana adversely affects heart action among victims of heart disease.

A study of marijuana smoking, conducted at the VA Hospital, has been reported in the prestigious New England Journal of Medicine.

Marijuana for the study was provided by the National Institute of Mental Health.

Placebo cigarettes—those simulating marijuana—were also used in the study. They contained only .05 milligrams of marijuana's active ingredient—"just enough to give it an odor," Dr. Aronow says. The real marijuana, which was grown in Mississippi for the government, had 19.8 milligrams of active ingredient.

Ten volunteers participated in the study.

SMOKING one marijuana cigarette caused a significantly greater decrease in exercise time until onset of chest pain (angina pectoris) than did the smoking of one placebo marijuana cigarette.

Smoking marijuana appears to increase the oxygen demand of the heart muscle and decreases the amount of oxygen delivered to the heart.

In the past, some medical observers had theorized that smoking of marijuana might have a calming effect on a heart patient.

Not so, says Dr. Aronow.

Marijuana taxes the myocardium (heart muscle), he says.

Smoking a marijuana cigarette increases the heart rate 43 per cent, Dr. Aronow revealed.

"That's a lot of tachycardia (rapid heart action)," he said.

In Los Angeles Harbor the automobile storage yards are crammed bumper-to-bumper from fence to fence with dust covered cars. Turn on their lights and it would look like a 50-lane freeway leading from downtown Los Angeles on a Friday night of a three-day weekend. Moving through Los Angeles Harbor are Datsuns, Volkswagens, Capris, Fiats, Alfa Romeros and VWs.

Toyota imports its cars and makes them showroom ready in Long Beach Harbor. Moving through and serviced by Maritime Services International, an automobile terminal and stevedoring company, are Hondas, Mazdas, Volksw, Mercedes-Benzes, Subarus, Triumphs, Marinas, Jensen-Healys and Jaguars.

A New York Times survey showed that other ports are experiencing similar difficulties storing import cars. The situation is especially acute on the Gulf Coast and some importers are shipping autos as far as Denver for storage.

Bomber 'seeking help'

Associated Press

The person who claimed responsibility for the Los Angeles International Airport bombing Tuesday which killed two and injured 36 might be a "madman" who is trying to get caught," a police spokesman said Saturday.

"Some people who are emotionally upset like this man try to get caught because they realize they need help," said Commander Peter Hagan. "Otherwise, I can't explain why he would be doing these things—the phone calls, the tape."

He said investigators were trying to identify the heavily accented voice through voiceprints on the eight-minute recording.

HAGAN SAID police believe the speaker is a man in his early 30s, apparently from a Mideast country.

"From the information we have, there is no indication the man is working in conjunction with anyone else," Hagan said.

Police believe the man who called the CBS network news office here Friday is the same one who telephoned the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner the night of the blast, describing the bomb and its location.

Friday's caller gave directions to a trash can at a

'Nightmare' and a 'ripoff'

Reagan hits food stamp program

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) Gov. Reagan said Saturday that the federal food stamp program needs a major overhaul because it is a multibillion dollar "nightmare" and "ripoff."

"At best, it is totally out of control and in need of a complete overhaul," the Republican governor said in remarks prepared for delivery to the Young Republicans national convention. "At its worst, it is a massive ripoff of working taxpayers because it is their tax dollars which pay for food stamps."

Reagan said the food stamp program costs more than $3 billion a year to provide groceries for 16 million people.

"Many taxpayers find it difficult to understand why a seemingly able-bodied and otherwise self-supporting individual can walk up to the grocery counter with a basket full of prime T-bone steaks and lay out free food stamps — while they are buying hamburger for their own dinner with hard earned cash which they have left after paying taxes to cover the cost of those food stamps," he said.

Reagan lauded the initial humanitarian goals of the program when it was established in 1964 but added, "The noblest intentions in the world have a way of getting botched up when run through a governmental bureaucracy and this one is run through several."

"The food stamp program has become a multibillion dollar administrative nightmare, a staggering financial burden at the federal level and the newest nesting place for welfare abuse and fraud," he said.

Many young people who do not need food stamps are getting them, Reagan said.

"Food stamps have become a massive subsidy for some of the exotic experiments in group living you've read about — what the sociologists call the underground culture," he said.

"A 17-year-old high school student decided he no longer wanted to live with his parents — so he moved out," the GOP state executive said. "He receives $46 a month in free food stamps and five other people in the same household are also drawing food stamps."

Younger ripped for representing lawyer

Bruce W. Sumner, a Santa Ana Superior Court judge and chairman of the California Constitution Revision Commission, Saturday criticized Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger for representing a state senator in court.

In a letter, Sumner said Younger acted improperly in being counsel for Sen. John Stull, author of what a court found to be "false and misleading statements" against a ballot proposition sponsored by the Constitution Revision Commission.

Sumner said the Legislature had mandated the ballot proposition for the November general election to "clarify" terms of Prop. 9, and that he and Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Santa Rosa, brought the action in court to protect Stull's arguments in the ballot booklet to voters.

He said that not only did he and Keene pay their own filing fees but provided their own counsel.

Younger's decision to represent Stull was improper, Sumner declared, putting in doubt Younger's fitness to "impartially summarize" the ballot arguments for voters, as — by law — he is required.

Sumner said that Younger's defense of what the court found to be false and misleading statements was "at variance" with his duty to impartially prepare the summaries of ballot measures, and also flouted the will of the Legislature which ordered the clarification measure on the ballot.

More than tires inflated Car price hike defended, hit

By EDWARD S. LECHTZN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT — The bottom line on those near-disastrous profit statements the "Big Three" automakers issued in July means higher price stickers on the 1975 models.

General Motors led the way by announcing an average car and truck price hike of $480 for 1975 models. The company blamed inflation and government anti-pollution laws for pushing the average cost of the new models to more than $1,000 over last year.

GM VICE PRESIDENT Mack W. Worden said $130 of the 9.5 per cent increase was due to adding the new clean air equipment to the new models. The other $350 will cover past and future increases in the costs of labor and materials.

Worden said there was no alternative to the higher prices "in light of rapidly rising material and labor costs over which we have only limited control and the necessity of complying with 1973 emission standards which have been mandated by the government."

THE LOWEST first-half profits in 13 years also means a sharp cutback in the money spent for expansion. That translates into fewer jobs, both for auto workers and others throughout the industry.

For some consumers, the cost of a new car just won't fit their budget. "It's a thrill to have a new car," says Mrs. Margaret Morrison, a widow with two children in Philadelphia.

But, says Mrs. Morrison who drives a '68 Chevrolet with peeling paint, "I would never go for a new car. I can't afford the prices."

If Mrs. Morrison was in the market for a small car—say a subcompact Ford Pinto—last August, the two-door sedan would have cost her $2,021. That's the base model and hardly anyone ever gets out the door of a showroom with the stripped version.

That Pinto today costs $2,527. Some items have been made standard that previously were optional, but the price of the car now is 25 per cent higher than last August.

Ford already has indicated its 1975 models might be increased by 8 per cent over today's prices, meaning the introductory price of the '75 Pinto would be about $2,730.

The change is even more dramatic at the top of the line.

The luxury Mark IV that cost $8,984 at the end of the '73 model year now costs $10,049 and an 8 per cent increase would bring it to $10,852 in September. That's a 21 per cent increase in just over one year.

Mills offers plan for Reinecke's tenure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Senate President pro tem James R. Mills Saturday called on Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke to leave California if an emergency arises while Gov. Reagan is out-of-state.

The San Diego Democrat, who is third in the line of succession to state leadership, said in a telephone call to news services that the action would be necessary because of Reinecke's perjury conviction.

"If the situation arises, the only action that can be taken without challenge is if Ed Reinecke left the state," Mills said.

California law provides that no convicted perjurer can hold state office. Reinecke was convicted of lying to the Senate Judiciary Committee by a federal court jury in Washington, D.C.

Reagan was in Stateline, Nev., Saturday night only a few yards from California to address a meeting of the National Young Republicans Federation. He was scheduled to fly to Seattle today to attend a picnic of the King County Republican Committee.

Heck's Angels ride again

Look out! Here come the Angelic Hellions

By GEORGIA DULLEA
New York Times Service

CENTER MORICHES, N.Y.—The other day the nicest motorcycle gang roared up to a movie theater near here, and a tiny figure in a leather jacket appeared at the ticket window, waving a pink card.

"Do you take senior citizen's cards?" asked 65-year-old Nellie Zimmet, gray bangs peeking from the helmet she wears while riding a 750-pound Harley-Davidson Electra-Glide, known in less savory cycling circles as "the hawk."

Nowadays, a senior citizen's card means more than a discount at the movies. That and a motorcycle may even qualify one for membership in the Angelic Hellions, an elite Suffolk County touring club for retired couples aged 60 and over. Sort of a Heck's Angels.

Leathers are not required attire, although most hellions prefer them. Mrs. Zimmet, her husband Nat, 67, and their neighbor, Dave Cuccia, 61, always zip up their leathers before zipping down the Long Island Expressway. ("You gotta keep up with the crowd," Zimmet says.)

On the other hand, Lucy Cuccia, 60, travels in a luminescent spacesuit that matches her silvery flip-style hairdo and gives off a lovely glow from the Cuccia's Honda CB-500. ("We let Lucy ride in front," Mrs. Zimmet said. "She lights the way.") the East End. (Three-fourths of its members began riding around Social Security time.)

Motorcycles were not on the mind of Dave Cuccia when, in 1969, he retired as a rack jobber (a supplier of housewares to supermarkets) and moved from his Ossining, N.Y., home to a bay-front colonial here on Laura Lee Drive. At the time, Cuccia was contemplating nothing more strenuous than pulling bluefish over the side of his boat.

Before long, he began hearing a varooming sound. It turned out to be a certain madcap couple from South Street. They had the bike, the boots, the helmet, the goggles, the whole "Easy Rider" bit.

Mrs. Cuccia was not impressed. "I remember looking out the window and thinking, 'boy, that woman has got to be out of her mind,'" she now recalls.

"I wasn't going to let him pick up some chippie"

Eventually, the couples met while fishing. Cuccia was soon hooked on motorcycles, and Mrs. Zimmet, a fairly new rider herself ("I wasn't going to let him pick up some young chippie") persuaded Mrs. Cuccia to give it a whirl ("okay, but just around the block.")

That was 5,000 miles ago. Today the gang rides almost every day when the temperature is above 20 degrees and it's not rainy or snowy. (Mrs. Zimmet dislikes "wet roads," Mrs. Cuccia, "a cold nose.")

A favorite trip is the 65-mile run to Montauk Point, with stops here and there to explore dunes, eat hamburgers and check fishing stations "to see where they're running."

Once "terrified" of motorcycles, Mrs. Cuccia recently indulged her grandsons David, 10, and Michael, 9, with a one cylinder Chibi for backyard scrambles.

Mrs. Cuccia sticks to the Honda and the highway, of course. "I love it. I don't even hold onto Dave anymore. I feel like a butterfly out there."

Mrs. Zimmet feels "20 years younger" and Zimmet feels "50 years younger," which makes sense since the retired fuel oil dealer was just 18 when he first rode with the now defunct East New York Motorcycle Club.

"I paid $300 for my first motorcycle, brand-new. This baby cost me $3,300," muses Zimmet, patting his Harley. Motorcycling has changed a lot since those days, but the Angelic Hellions claim to keep up with the young ones and the wild ones. "And we always wave. That's the courtesy of the road."

Lately they've been thinking about a little trip to Fort Lauderdale... in the fall, before the fall weather set in.

"The boys are trying to convince us," Mrs. Zimmet said, smiling and looking almost convinced.

IOWA FARM. . . CROP DIDN'T GROW
State Official, Farmer Check Parched Land

Corn belt rains called 'harmful'

Combined News Services

The rain that broke the drought in many parts of the corn belt may cause more problems than it solves, weather officials warned Saturday.

Allen Pearson, director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center at Kansas City, Mo., said heavy rains falling on parched croplands could do more harm than good.

"We have 10 to 20 thunderstorms forming around the area in the next few days with several inches of hard rain," Pearson said. "The weather map looks like spring. If it's one thing this area doesn't need it's another batch of gully washers."

IOWA, WHICH traditionally harvests up to one quarter of the nation's corn crop, was receiving widespread rains. Crops already were burned out in the western part of the state. Officials said some relief could be felt in cornfields in eastern Iowa and on soybean farms.

The National Weather Service said rains fell in many of the Midwest farm states — from the Dakotas and upper Mississippi Valley through the Ohio Valley and south to the Gulf and northern Texas.

Billions of dollars in crop damage was reported as a result of weeks of extreme heat and no rain. Some farmers have been cutting their corn for silage in hopes of salvaging a small part of their losses.

In Oklahoma, where heavy rains caused flash floods Friday, an aide to

Gov. David Hall said the governor was considering asking for drought assistance for additional counties because of damage prior to this weekend's downpours.

The state agriculture department said the rains had "a substantial effect" on crops in Oklahoma.

But in Nebraska, there were only sprinkles and authorities said rains earlier in the week may have been in time to help soybean and milo crops. About 90 per cent of the state's dryland corn crop was wasted.

The rains did bring some relief to plains pastures.

A spokesman at the Kansas City Board of Trade said, "there's still hope for pastureland. It's never too late for grass and that could postpone problems with livestock feeding at least until late fall."

PRESIDENT Ford, meeting Saturday for the first time with the Cabinet that he inherited from the Nixon Administration, asked Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz whether the rains that hit the Washington, D.C., area on Friday had been nationwide and would help end the drought.

Butz told him the rains were regional in several parts of the country.

No, the Angelic Hellions aren't listed among the American Motorcycle Association's 1,500 chartered clubs, nor can they claim to be the country's first cyclists club. The Early Wheels beat them out. (The Wheels, who rally in Florida every year during something called speed week, should not be confused with the middle-aged Retreads, who accept members as young as 40.)

Even so, the Hellions are perhaps the newest (barely a year old), the smallest (four riders, two bikes) and the pluckiest motorcycle gang around

3-inch rain welcome at 'Bluegrass'

HUGO, Okla. (AP) — Gov. David Hall, muddied to the knees after a slippery walk to the stage of the Grant's Bluegrass Festival Saturday, welcomed visitors from about 30 states to five days of music.

"I'm seeing more mud today than I've seen in years," said the governor, who was clad in a blue windbreaker. "We need the rain so much, we wish it would just stay on for a month."

More than three inches of rain had fallen since Friday afternoon.

Ford brings a 'nice guy' image to job

Nixon arrived at decisions by secluding himself with a yellow pad and pencil; Ford's style is to pull opposing viewpoints around a table in search of common ground.

Consequently, Ford in the White House will emphasize an open door, genuine bipartisanship in foreign and defense policy, reconciliation, and an honest effort at responsiveness to Congress.

"Even though this is an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together," Ford said at his swearing-in.

Ford's honeymoon with Congress will be echoed in the White House press briefing room. Over the past two years, it has resembled a cockpit as press and presidential spokesmen slashed at each other.

Without any particular effort to court the press, Ford has always been a reporter's favorite. It was his candor that counted. He has selected one of Washington's most respected (and candid) newsmen, Jerry terHorst of the Detroit News, as his press secretary.

The contrast between Ford and Nixon administrations will be etched most visibly in the White House staff. Nixon used political amateurs whose only schooling was gained in election campaigns. Untutored and inexperienced in the arts of government, they qualified for office by the intensity of their loyalty to Nixon.

Ford's instinct is for professionals, men who have been elected to office or earned their spurs through long service in government. Most of his close associates are former congressional colleagues — ex-Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, ex-Sen. Charles Goodell, ex-Rep. John Byrnes.

Others are not — Robert Hartman, an ex-newspaperman who will serve as counselor to the President; Phil Buchen, Ford's law partner; businessman L. William Seidman, a hometown friend who fast has gained a reputation in Washington as one of the brightest aides around Ford.

They and others on the Ford staff are a lot like their boss: loyal, hard-working, serious, self-effacing, lacking totally the slick, advertising-bright cockiness of the men Nixon brought in with him.

Those men and Nixon himself viewed Congress as a cave of the winds, fragmented and weak because of the diverse viewpoints of members, and therefore a body to be manipulated cynically or circumvented.

As a consequence, the Nixon legislative program which Ford inherits is in disarray because of the Watergate troubles and Nixon's own failure to establish a good working relationship.

"With Jerry Ford as President, it will probably be a honeymoon around here," said Rep. Thomas O'Neill, House Democratic leader. "When the balloting starts, you vote philosophy, not friendship ... we'll just have to wait and see what develops."

In an interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau shortly before he became President, Ford disclosed how he would approach presidential leadership. He acknowledged that a prolonged honeymoon with Congress was possible because of their mutual respect and liking for each other and their mutual desire to heal Watergate wounds.

PRESIDENT FORD

Ford viewed reconciliation and concord as the highest priorities for his administration. He would not hesitate, he said, to appoint a Democrat or two to his Cabinet, not "someone like Bella Abzug," a liberal bell-ringer, but centrists in the opposition party's spectrum.

Close Ford associates have since floated a trial balloon for Sen. Hubert Humphrey. A major post in the area of foreign affairs could be offered, they have hinted.

There will be few legislative initiatives bursting out of the Ford White House for the remainder of the year. It is too late.

There will be close consultation on the remaining appropriations bills. In his many speeches over the past two months, Ford had been coming down hard on the necessity for paring government spending to fight inflation.

With the good luck he seems to attract, Ford is entering the presidency at a time when many free-spending liberals in Congress have arrived at the same conclusion. There have been speeches in the Senate within the past few days calling for across the board cuts by such Democratic liberals as California's Sen. John Tunney and Michigan's Phil Hart.

Ford has one other factor that weighs heavily in his favor, as he deals with Congress. Its members, Republicans and Democrats alike, elected him by voting for him at vice-presidential confirmation hearings late last year.

If the American people did not choose him by secret ballot, he said Friday, neither had he gained office by secret promises.

For the moment, there will be no change in the administration lineup of Cabinet heads and appointed officials Ford inherited. Henry A. Kissinger will stay. Defense Secretary James S. Schlesinger may not.

The first Cabinet members to go probably will be Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. The former was a Watergate apologist. The latter is too abrasive, not the Ford style.

Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton is being mentioned for one of the top posts in the White House.

The White House staff, of course, will change markedly. Those with close public identification with President Nixon will be among the first to go.

Ford's 1st problem—a late paper

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON — A new day.

The commuter at 514 Crown View Drive in Alexandria, Va., awoke shortly before 6 and, in baby blue summer pajamas, boiled the water for his tea, cut the melon and toasted the English muffin.

Still in his pajamas, he popped his head out the front door looking for the morning paper. Not there yet.

Thirty minutes later, he popped out again. Still no paper. The Washington Post, which had never charmed the 37th President of the United States, was now getting off on the wrong foot with the 38th.

Finally, at 6:40, Shelley Deming, 14, who was wearing faded denims and no shoes, arrived in a car driven by her father.

She apologized, to reporters, for the late delivery, explaining that "the circulation man was late."

And so the Washington Post was passed inside 514 Crown View Drive by a Secret Service man, and Gerald Rudolph Ford has his morning paper.

At 7:20, Saturday or no Saturday, Gerald Ford left the house to go to work. Outside he chatted with neighbors.

"How do you feel?"

"Couldn't be better."

"How do you like being President?"

"Great so far. It's very nice."

"When are you going to move into the White House?"

"I didn't ask yesterday. I felt it would not be very appropriate."

"Yesterday" the old tenants were still there. The Fords don't expect to get into their new place until next week.

Back on Crown View Drive, someone asked President Ford for his autograph and provided paper and pencil. He obliged, started to pocket the pencil, smiled sheepishly and returned it to its rightful owner.

A few minutes later, Gerald Ford left his brick colonial, the one with the bulletproof windows that were taken from the old Spiro T. Agnew place last December.

The traffic was light. The commuter in the big black car got to his office in 15 minutes. Monday it'll probably take longer to get in from Alexandria.

By 10 o'clock, he was sitting down with his Cabinet, which until midday Friday was Richard Nixon's Cabinet. Gerald Ford sat at the middle of the long table which Nixon had bought as a donation to the government and for which he earlier had taken a tax deduction of $1,400. De-precia-

For his first meeting with the Cabinet, Gerald Ford wore a semi-loud suit, plaid with very wide lapels.

Opposite him, at the table was an empty chair, the one he has to fill soon, the one he occupied at the last Cabinet meeting Tuesday as vice president. That chair is five feet across from his new chair, five feet that make all the difference.

Ford made easy small talk while photographers took pictures and reporters studied his face.

He chatted easily. His chitchat rolled out smoothly, unlike the self-conscious lunges of the man before him. He looked comfortable in the chair, in the place, in the job. He looked more relaxed in his second day than Richard Nixon did during and after his 2,027 days.

He looked up and smiled at the reporters. They no longer felt like uninvited guests who had to be watched near the silver.

It was a new day at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, zip code 20050. A new, new day.

Ford tries new budget-cut tack

By EILEEN SHANAHAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—President Ford has told top assistants that he wants to try a new approach to an old problem that both he and former President Nixon believe is one of the most urgent facing the nation—reducing government expenditures in the interests of combatting inflation.

What would be the new would not be the amount to be cut from the budget but, rather, the method of deciding where the spending cuts are to be made.

Ford would like to select the programs for reduction in cooperation with Congress, or some of its key committees, right from the outset of the budget-cutting process.

EXCLUSIVE

UNDER THE normal procedure, both Congress and the White House would have a say in any budget reductions, but the President would first propose his comprehensive list of budgetary actions, and then Congress would act on them.

At his meeting with the government's top economic policy-makers Friday, his first meeting as president on substantive policy issues, Ford asked for memos on how he should go about the budget-cutting process. The memos, due Monday morning, are supposed to deal with how to bring Congress into the spending-reduction process at an early stage.

AT THE 75-minute meeting with the economic policy group, it was also decided that the Ford administration would ask Congress to sustain Nixon's last veto, which was on a budget matter. Nixon, just hours before his speech Thursday night announcing his resignation, vetoed a $13.5-billion appropriations bill providing funds for the Environmental Protection Agency, and for consumer-protection and rural-assistance programs. Nixon said the measure exceeded his budget of last January by $540 million. Members of the Senate have quoted a considerably smaller figure for the increase, $38 million.

ONE participant at the economic meeting Friday said that the feeling in the group was so strong that the Ford administration must move forward with budgetary restraint that there was never any serious discussion of any course other than asking Congress to sustain the veto.

The broader problem of how to work out budget reductions with Congress complicated by the creation, within recent weeks, of new congressional structure to deal with the budget, complete with new committees in both the House and Senate.

FORD AND his advisers discussed the possibility that if they were not able to work out a system that would bring Congress into the budget-cutting decisions right from the start, they might devise a list of reductions of their own, to be presented to Congress, or alternatively, work out a policy of simply trying to cut as they go along, without presenting any comprehensive program to Congress.

Ford brings a 'nice guy' image to job

Nixon arrived at decisions by secluding himself with a yellow pad and pencil; Ford's style is to pull opposing viewpoints around a table in search of common ground.

Consequently, Ford in the White House will emphasize an open door, genuine bipartisanship in foreign and defense policy, reconciliation, and an honest effort at responsiveness to Congress.

"Even though this is an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together," Ford said at his swearing-in.

Ford's honeymoon with Congress will be echoed in the White House press briefing room. Over the past two years, it has resembled a cockpit as press and presidential spokesmen slashed at each other.

Without any particular effort to court the press, Ford has always been a reporter's favorite. It was his candor that counted. He has selected one of Washington's most respected (and candid) newsmen, Jerry Ithorst of the Detroit News, as his press secretary.

The contrast between Ford and Nixon administrations will be etched most visibly in the White House staff. Nixon used political amateurs whose only schooling was gained in election campaigns. Untutored and inexperienced in the arts of government, they qualified for office by the intensity of their loyalty to Nixon.

Ford's instinct is for professionals, men who have been elected to office or earned their spurs through long service in government. Most of his close associates are former congressional colleagues — ex-Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, ex-Sen. Charles Goodell, ex-Rep. John Byrnes.

Others are not — Robert Hartman, an ex-newsman who will serve as counselor to the President; Phil Buchen, Ford's law partner; businessman L. William Seidman, a hometown friend who fast has gained a reputation in Washington as one of the brightest aides around Ford.

They and others on the Ford staff are a lot like their boss: loyal, hard-working, serious, self-effacing, lacking totally the slick, advertising-bright cockiness of the men Nixon brought in with him.

Those men and Nixon himself viewed Congress as a cave of the winds, fragmented and weak because of the diverse viewpoints of members, and therefore a body to be manipulated cynically or circumvented.

As a consequence, the Nixon legislative program which Ford inherits is in disarray because of the Watergate troubles and Nixon's own failure to establish a good working relationship.

"With Jerry Ford as President, it will probably be a honeymoon around here," said Rep. Thomas O'Neill, House Democratic leader. "When the balloting starts, you vote philosophy, not friendship... we'll just have to wait and see what develops."

In an interview with the Independent, Press-Telegram's Washington Bureau shortly before he became President, Ford disclosed how he would approach presidential leadership. He acknowledged that a prolonged honeymoon with Congress was possible because of their mutual respect and liking for each other and their mutual desire to heal Watergate wounds.

Ford viewed reconciliation and concord as the highest priorities for his administration. He would not hesitate, he said, to appoint a Democrat or two to his Cabinet, not "someone like Bella Abzug," a liberal bell-ringer, but centrists in the opposition party's spectrum.

Close Ford associates have since floated a trial balloon for Sen. Hubert Humphrey. A major post in the area of foreign affairs could be offered, they have hinted.

There will be few legislative initiatives bursting out of the Ford White House for the remainder of the year. It is too late.

There will be close consultation on the remaining appropriations bills. In his many speeches over the past two months, Ford had been coming down hard on the necessity for paring government spending to fight inflation.

With the good luck he seems to attract, Ford is entering the presidency at a time when many free-sending liberals in Congress have arrived at the same conclusion. There have been speeches in the Senate within the past few days calling for across the board cuts by such Democratic liberals as California's Sen. John Tunney and Michigan's Phil Hart.

Ford has one other factor that weighs heavily in his favor, as he deals with Congress. Its members, Republicans and Democrats alike, elected him by voting for him at vice-presidential confirmation hearings late last year.

If the American people did not choose him by secret ballot, he said Friday, neither had he gained office by secret promises.

For the moment, there will be no change in the administration lineup of Cabinet heads and appointed officials Ford inherited. Henry A. Kissinger will stay. Defense Secretary James S. Schlesinger may not.

The first Cabinet members to go probably will be Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent and Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. The former was a Watergate apologist. The latter is too abrasive, not the Ford style.

Secretary of Interior Rogers Morton is being mentioned for one of the top posts in the White House.

The White House staff, of course, will change markedly. Those with close public identification with President Nixon will be among the first to go.

Ford's 1st problem—a late paper

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON — A new day.

The commuter at 514 Crown View Drive in Alexandria, Va., awoke shortly before 6 and, in baby blue summer pajamas, boiled the water for his tea, cut the melon and toasted the English muffin.

Still in his pajamas, he popped his head out the front door looking for the morning paper. Not there yet.

Thirty minutes later, he popped out again. Still no paper. The Washington Post, which had never charmed the 37th President of the United States, was now getting off on the wrong foot with the 38th.

Finally, at 6:40, Shelley Deming, 14, who was wearing faded denims and no shoes, arrived in a car driven by her father.

She apologized, to reporters, for the late delivery, explaining that "the circulation man was late."

And so the Washington Post was passed inside 514 Crown View Drive by a Secret Service man, and Gerald Rudolph Ford has his morning paper.

At 7:20, Saturday or no Saturday, Gerald Ford left the house to go to work. Outside he chatted with neighbors.

"How do you feel?"

"Couldn't be better."

"How do you like being President?"

"Great so far. It's very nice."

"When are you going to move into the White House?"

"I didn't ask yesterday. I felt it would not be very appropriate."

"Yesterday" the old tenants were still there. The Fords don't expect to get into their new place until next week.

Back on Crown View Drive, someone asked President Ford for his autograph and provided paper and pencil. He obliged, started to pocket the pencil, smiled sheepishly and returned it to its rightful owner.

A few minutes later, Gerald Ford left his brick colonial, the one with the bulletproof windows that were taken from the old Spiro T. Agnew place last December.

The traffic was light. The commuter in the big black car got to his office in 15 minutes. Monday

it'll probably take longer to get in from Alexandria.

By 10 o'clock, he was sitting down with his Cabinet, which until midday Friday was Richard Nixon's Cabinet. Gerald Ford sat at the middle of the long table which Nixon had bought as a donation to the government and for which he earlier had taken a tax deduction of $1,400. De-preciation.

For his first meeting with the Cabinet, Gerald Ford wore a semi-loud suit, plaid with very wide lapels.

Opposite him at the table was an empty chair, the one he has to fill soon, the one he occupied at the last Cabinet meeting Tuesday as vice president. That chair is five feet across from his new chair, five feet that make all the difference.

Ford made easy small talk while photographers took pictures and reporters studied his face.

He chatted easily. His chitchat rolled out smoothly, unlike the self-conscious lunges of the man before him. He looked comfortable in the chair, in the place, in the job. He looked more relaxed in his second day than Richard Nixon did during and after his 2,027 days.

He looked up and smiled at the reporters. They no longer felt like uninvited guests who had to be watched near the silver.

It was a new day at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, zip code 20050. A new, new day.

Nixon veils new life in privacy

By RICHARD E. LERNER

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon was pictured as in good spirits and not downcast Saturday but he spent his first full day as a private citizen since his fall from power behind a veil of privacy with his family in their oceanside villa.

The Nixons did not venture from behind the guarded walls of their home and the few visitors during the day were not identified. The former president spent 3½ hours working at his office complex.

A member of Nixon's staff who accompanied him to San Clemente said that the former chief executive had not talked with President Ford since he left Washington but that he was expected to do so in the near future.

asked about Nixon's mood.

"I think one way to answer that is to say he has been busy in terms of reading and working on some matters," he replied.

"His spirits are good. He is not downcast. The decision he announced the other night is a decision he is very comfortable with and he is satisfied that in the national interest it was the right step for him to take."

There will be very little information about Nixon's activities in the coming days, he said, because "the President looks at this as a private time — he will be spending the time with his family."

NIXON DROVE a golf cart from the adjoining Coast Guard station into the grounds of the Spanish style estate Friday after arrival from Washington and literally dropped out of sight.

Nixon was accompanied by his wife, Pat, daughter, Tricia, and her husband, Edward Cox.

Also accompanying him was a small staff that included press secretary Ronald Ziegler, appointments secretary Stephen Bull, military aide Col. Jack Brennan and three or four other assistants.

Also with the presidential party was his long-time physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, but Tkach was said to be here in his role as a personal friend. The spokesman said of Nixon's health that "he seems to feel good."

THE SPOKESMAN would say nothing about any legal activities with regard to the possibility that prosecution for obstruction of justice might now be brought in the courts.

"A number of matters are under discussion," he said.

There were 65,000 telephone calls to the White House in Washington and to the facility at San Clemente since Thursday morning when it became apparent Nixon was resigning. There were also several hundred gifts of flowers awaiting Mrs. Nixon when she arrived here.

Nixon is not expected to make any public appearances this weekend such as attending church on Sunday.

THE ASSOCIATE said Ziegler would serve as Nixon's top staff assistant, assisting in the coordination of activities with Washington during the transition period.

The Secret Service said in Washington Saturday it is discontinuing its protection of Nixon's daughters, Tricia and her husband

Watergate mop-up falls to judicial system

By JANE DENISON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The final mop-up of the Watergate tide now falls to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the courts — a job that will take months and maybe years to finish.

With Richard Nixon's departure as president, the role of Congress to establish his guilt or innocence through impeachment is over with few on Capitol Hill showing any stomach to go through with the ordeal now that Nixon is gone.

"It is no longer up to Congress to pursue the matter of Watergate or Mr. Nixon's involvement in it," House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said after President Ford took office. "It is up to the courts to pursue the matter if they want to."

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Four Arkansans formed the Committee for Healing the Wounds of America Saturday and then urged President Ford to grant amnesty to both former President Nixon and draft evaders. The ad hoc committee sent Ford a one-sentence telegram, saying: "Drop the double standard: Total amnesty for Nixon and draft evaders."

"The story is totally false," said a Jaworski spokesman. "There has been no meeting of the grand jury. There has been no contact between our office and the grand jury."

Any indictment would by law have to be signed by Jaworski.

According to the Daily News, which quoted an unnamed source, the grand jurors think Nixon now is "much more indictable" than last March when they named him an indicted coconspirator in the cover-up plot. It cited Nixon's release of three previously suppressed tape transcripts last Monday showing he sought to block the FBI investigation of Watergate immediately after the June 17, 1972 break-in.

worski. More are expected to go to him Monday.

The Jaworski spokesman stressed that any decision on whether to indict the ex-President "is not imminent." Jaworski, his vacation interrupted by the week's dramatic events, has returned to his Circle J ranch near Austin, Tex.

Two major trials are pending, three grand juries are still working and further indictments are expected in the weeks ahead. Appeals could stretch Watergate well into 1976 or beyond.

Meanwhile, there were indications that the cover-up trial, due to start Sept. 9, may be delayed. Defendant John D. Ehrlichman asked for a postponement of at least two months so "inflamed passions" could cool. Lawyers for his codefendants, including H.R. Haldeman, were expected to make similar pleas.

It was considered possible Jaworski would not object to a brief delay while he studies the new tapes and that Sirica might agree so long as it is not longer than 30 days. The jury will be sequestered and federal judges try not to keep juries locked up over the Christmas holidays.

The cover-up trial is expected to last as long as three months.

THE NEW YORK Daily News reported Saturday that the Watergate grand jury has put Jaworski "on notice" that Nixon must not go unpunished and may decide within days to indict him. This was denied immediately and emphatically.

THE GRAND jury, however, has not heard those tapes and there is no indication when — or if —

Nixon did right to quit, 79% say

NEW YORK (UPI) — A huge majority — 79 per cent — of Americans believe that Richard Nixon did the right thing in resigning the presidency, according to a Gallup poll conducted for Newsweek magazine and released Saturday.

But a majority, 55 per cent, does not want an investigation for possible criminal charges against Nixon, the poll showed, as against 37 per cent who did.

The survey also indicated that among six suggested vice presidential candidates, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater and former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller emerged as the favorites.

The preferences were Goldwater 23 per cent, Rockefeller 18 per cent, California Gov. Reagan 12 per cent.

Congress, free of impeachment, facing election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, which hastened its work while expecting an impeachment trial, appears ready to leave town for some old-fashioned campaigning and let the nation take a rest from Watergate.

The 93rd Congress, which sped through its calendar in anticipation of impeachment debates and trials already has passed most of its essential legislation, including most appropriations bills. It also has left its mark or will shortly do so in such areas as pension and budget reform.

The pressure, therefore, is off for now.

But the pressure is on back home, where all 435 members of the House and one-third of the Senate must face an election.

THE LAWMAKERS must learn whether the voters are pleased or angered by presidential resignation, are swayed toward the Republican camp by a fresh new face in the White House or believe all incumbents are corrupt.

For weeks now, both houses have been acting as if Christmas recess was coming, meeting a full five days and some nights.

Now that impeachment is moot, the House plans to take off two weeks for Labor Day and the Senate one week. The House also likely will take off most of October, and the Senate, which had planned to be in an impeachment trial then, may do likewise.

The post-resignation mood of Congress appears to be "Let's go home."

What the country needs is for all of us to get out of Washington and let the country have a breath of fresh air," said assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

WE SHOULD just pack it up and say we'll be back in January," said an aide to the Senate Republican leadership.

That mood could change if President Ford calls for a push to enact major legislation in his address to a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. Monday, but that is unlikely. Ford needs time to formulate a legislative program and to decide whether he wants some of the major bills now pending.

He likely would want to start fresh with a new Congress in January, and in the meantime concentrate on being certain that Republican incumbents are not swept out on an anti-Watergate tide, giving Democrats a "veto-proof" 94th Congress.

Ford's elevation to the presidency itself presents a time-consuming problem to Congress: confirmation by both the House and Senate of Ford's vice presidential choice, which he is to submit within 10 days.

ONE MAJOR hangup to the three remaining landmark bills — tax reform, national health insurance and trade reform — is that all three are under the jurisdiction of one committee in each house: the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee.

Finance Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., has spent much of his time back home running for reelection.

Other problems threaten the remaining major legislation:

A tax bill should emerge from the House Ways and Means Committee in September. But even if the bill should pass the House it would face lengthy sessions in the Senate Finance Committee, where Long has a vested interest in killing one of its major sections — an increase in oil company taxes. The tentative Ways and Means bill could hardly be called tax reform, and even tax reformers now talk openly of waiting till next year.

National health insurance is in an almost impossible situation. Not only are its proponents squabbling with each other, but the bill must wait its turn in line behind tax reform in both the Senate and House committees. Neither committee is near completion of a bill.

Trade reform, passed by the House, is tied up in the Senate Finance Committee over an amendment by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., to deny "most favored nation" status to the Soviet Union unless the Kremlin allows free Jewish emigration. A compromise is possible, but doubtful.

A major campaign finance reform bill moved out of the house last week and now is on its way to a conference committee. With the Watergate scandals so much a part of the political scene, members are expected to press for its passage before they leave for campaigning in October.

Left behind without a signature by ex-President Richard M. Nixon is the $25-billion bill extending aid to education for another four years and containing the strongest antibusing provision yet to come from the Congress. Both Nixon and Ford had said they would have preferred a stronger antibusing measure, and it remains to be seen what the new President will do.

Congress must also decide what to do about Nixon's veto the day before he left office of a $13.5 billion appropriations bill for federal environmental, welfare, consumer protection and rural assistance programs. Nixon called it a "distinct threat to our fight against inflation" in his last veto message.

The bill had passed both houses by wide margins and included funding for the Environmental Protection Agency, the federal food stamp program, the Consumer Product Safety Commission and relief to the drought-stricken farmers of the great plains. It exceeded by $38 million a so-called "noninflationary" guideline set by the Office of Management and Budget.

CG rescues 27 on sinking boat

BOSTON (UPI) — The Coast Guard rescued 27 persons from a disabled excursion boat in Boston Harbor Saturday after she began taking on water. There were no injuries, a Coast-Guard spokesman said.

Four Coast Guard boats and two helicopters were dispatched to the scene near Long Island, one of a group of small harbor islands, in mid-afternoon when the 57-foot Islander reported taking on considerable water and was in danger of sinking.

Answer to Kissinger

Turks take hard Cyprus line

By CRAIG R. WHITNEY
New York Times Service

GENEVA — The Turkish foreign minister, Turgut Gunes, took issue, in an interview Saturday, with a message from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger urging moderation in the current Greek-Turkish dispute over the future of Cyprus.

"If we simply let the Cyprus crisis drag on," Gunes said, "it will get lost in fruitless negotiations and it will blow up again. So we think everyone should try to find a final solution to it in as short a time as possible, and not just try to buy time."

Gunes, who spoke in Turkey's permanent mission in Geneva because the three-power Greek-Turkish-British peace talks on Cyprus were interrupted by a technical dispute for most of the day, said he would draft an answer to the Kissinger message.

He also said that the American observer to the Cyprus talks, Assistant Secretary of State Arthur A. Hartman, had told him that American policy on the Cyprus question would not be affected by the resignation of President Nixon and his replacement by Gerald Ford. President Ford also sent a message to Ankara urging "moderation," Gunes said.

THE TURKS say they prefer to press for a definitive solution, with new political boundaries on the island, and replacement of the "Republic of Cyprus" with two federated but autonomous Greek and Turkish Cypriot states.

The conflict between their insistence on moving on to a political solution, and Greek insistence on firming up a shaky ceasefire first, has kept this second phase of the Geneva talks from reaching agreement on anything in three days.

At the end of three hours of talks Saturday evening, Gunes said "there would be no point in continuing" the negotiations if the Greek Cypriots insisted on retaining the 1960 Cyprus constitution as the basis for the sharing of political power on the island.

"If that is the case," Gunes told a news conference after the talks recessed until this morning, "we might as well declare this conference pointless."

So the provisions of the July 30 ceasefire, calling for a withdrawal of Greek or Greek Cypriot forces from Turkish villages and withdrawal of the Turkish force that invaded Cyprus last month after the overthrow of President Makarios, have not been carried out.

GUNES' and the Turkish government's idea of a "final solution" to the Cyprus crisis is to concentrate the island's 140,000 Turkish Cypriots in 30 percent of the territory, leaving the 520,000 Greek Cypriots to share the rest. Each region would be self-ruling, with a central government exercising control over defense, foreign affairs and fiscal policy.

It was not immediately known what parts would become Turkish Cypriot territory under the new plan. Turkish Cypriot communities are scattered and often encircled by Greek Cypriot areas.

The disagreement took concrete form in an outwardly trivial dispute about seating arrangements for Turkish and Greek Cypriot delegations at the Geneva conference.

Turkey and the Turkish Cypriot leader, Rauf Denkash, refused to agree that the two Cypriot sides should sit behind plaques identifying them as "Republic of Cyprus—Representative of the Turkish Community" or "of the Greek Community."

"The Turks insist," Gunes said, on following the wording of the July 30 Geneva declaration by the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey, and Great Britain, which decreed a ceasefire between the Turkish and Greek Cypriot forces on the island. It speaks only of "Greek Cypriot and Turkish Cypriot communities," and that is the way the Turks wanted them described at the negotiating table here—in other words, as separate entities.

They walked out of the talks Saturday morning. They came back Saturday afternoon, and the talks resumed without name cards for any delegation, apparently a compromise suggested by the British.

THE DEEPER issue, Gunes said, was the Turkish proposal to create a confederation of independent Turkish Cypriot and Greek Cypriot states on Cyprus. By pressing the dispute about what the delegations from Cyprus should be called, Gunes said, Turkey was "laying building blocks" and trying to win de facto acceptance of its confederation idea at the conference.

As the Greeks have refused and the talks have got nowhere, the British foreign minister, James Callaghan, has apparently become annoyed. Britain, Greece, and Turkey are the guarantors of the independence of the strife-torn, faction-ridden island.

Britain halted a scheduled withdrawal of troops and planes from its Cyprus bases Saturday as a precaution against possible new fighting on the island.

The British decision was reported by an authoritative source in Geneva and later was confirmed by the British government. The Geneva source also said Callaghan, in Geneva for the Cyprus peace talks, discussed with U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim the possible need for U.N. peacekeeping forces to shoot in defense of ceasefire lines on the island.

Broad agreement on the location of most of the lines has been reached by military negotiators on Cyprus, but Greek sources said some of the boundaries are still in dispute and must be settled at Geneva.

BRITAIN'S latest moves reportedly took place in full consultation with the U.S. government. In effect, the demands of Turkey and the Turkish Cypriots were for a new political setup for Cyprus giving Turkish Cypriots nearly one-third of the island.

Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides, a Greek Cypriot, told the Associated Press in an interview Saturday he was prepared to offer self-rule to the island's Turkish minority but would oppose geographic division because that would be a first step toward permanent partition.

Ulster parade free of violence

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — More than 12,000 diehard Protestants marched through this bomb-shattered city Saturday in an annual parade that five years ago erupted into the first bloody clash in Northern Ireland's sectarian war.

However, army headquarters reported no trouble in this year's march by the Apprentice Boys, an influential Protestant organization that despite its name is not restricted by age.

Police and British troops threw a tight security cordon around the city at dawn as thousands of Protestants poured into the city, which has a large Roman Catholic population.

Security authorities refused to allow the Apprentice Boys, parading behind pipe, flute and drum bands, to take the traditional route around the old walled city to celebrate the victory of their ancestors against Catholic forces during a 165-day siege in 1689.

Instead, the marchers were kept inside the Protestant sector of the city, across the Foyle River from the Roman Catholic strongholds of the Bogside and Creggan, scene of the 1969 violence.

The body of a Roman Catholic politician, Patrick Kelly, 33, was found Saturday washed up on the shore of a lake near the frontier with the Irish Republic. Kelly, a municipal councilman in County Tyrone, vanished July 23. Police believe Kelly was kidnapped and killed by Protestant extremists. He was the 1,052nd fatality reported in the province's five years of violence.

The army reported that its troops foiled a bomb attack by the outlawed Irish Republican Army when soldiers in a secret observation hideout spotted three armed men loading milk churns packed with explosives into a hijacked car at the frontier with the Irish republic.

A spokesman said two of the men fled across the border when ordered to drop their guns, but the third man was captured.

3 killed Reds shell base near Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist gunners fired 33 Soviet-built 122mm rockets Saturday into the area of the huge American-built Bien Hoa airfield 14 miles north of Saigon, the capital command said.

It said the rockets killed three civilians and wounded 11 persons, including nine civilians and two Vietnamese airmen. Four F5A jet fighters were damaged, the command said.

The rocket attacks were the first in the Bien Hoa area since June 3, and the first daylight bombardments there since the Jan. 28, 1973, cease-fire.

The shelling was in apparent retaliation for the alleged government aerial bombing Tuesday of Loc Ninh, the de facto Viet Cong capital 75 miles north of Saigon.

UPI reporter Paul Vogt said from Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon, that fighting there had ground virtually to a halt. President Nguyen Van Thieu visited Da Nang Saturday and held a council of war with his officers. One of them told reporters later, "Both sides have surprises ready for each other."

Following President Nixon's resignation, Thieu ordered a nationwide military alert against a possible Communist offensive to test the reaction of the new U.S. administration.

In separate statements indicating a rare similarity of opinion, both North and South Vietnam agreed that Nixon's resignation is unlikely to bring any change to Vietnam.

"The Vietnamese people will persist in their many-sided struggle to... foil all dark schemes of the White House leaders," Hanoi said.

In Saigon, the semi-official Vietnam Press agency quoted President Nguyen Van Thieu as saying, "The two peoples and the two governments of South Vietnam and the United States are maintaining their stand, which is to carry out the provisions of the cease-fire agreement."

In neighboring Cambodia, Communist gunners sank one of a 14-vessel convoy moving up the Mekong River Saturday 43 miles south of Phnom Penh. Port police said five seamen were injured in the attack, but the crew of the lost vessel, the Danish cargo ship Hayan, was rescued.

In the ground war there, government troops pressed their drive to recapture the provincial capital of Sala Lekpram, 25 miles north of Phnom Penh on Highway 5, reporters said. The town was lost in March, soon after the fall of Oudong, the old royal capital 18 miles north of Phnom Penh. Oudong was recaptured a month ago.

The reporters said a scouting party sighted few Communist soldiers in Sala Lekpram.

Communist gunners continued to hammer a besieged government garrison at Kompong Sella, 69 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 4. Three defenders were reported killed and nine others wounded.

The 4,000-man garrison has been under siege all summer.

In its evening communique, the Cambodian high command said government troops killed 62 rebels in fighting near Sasa Sdom, 108 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

Franco due to leave Madrid

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Gen. Francisco Franco was expected to leave shortly for his annual summer vacation at La Coruna on Spain's northwestern coast, reliable sources said Saturday.

They said the 81-year-old generalissimo had recuperated from the serious illness he suffered last month and that he might leave for the vacation today.

Driving need

I'm 83 years old, have driven a car since 1910, never caused an accident, and the only ticket I ever got was for overtime parking. When I went to renew my driver's license in October they gave me — after much arguing — a 1-year license to drive during daylight hours. (I understand they are trying to get us old drivers off the roads.) I can live with that restriction, but I am concerned that when I go to renew it they won't let me have another license. If they don't, is there an appeals procedure open to me? I have to drive. My wife is an invalid and I must take her to the doctor two to three times a month, and I must check on my rental property in various parts of the city which furnishes my income. I also have to do the family shopping. L.H.H., Long Beach.

There is no official appeals procedure, but if you are denied a license you can write to the director of the Department of Motor Vehicles in Sacramento or to the head of your local DMV and ask that your case be reviewed by the supervisor of the driving improvement analyst who turned you down. The decision of the supervisor is final, and you would have no further appeal, said Erwin Cooper, DMV spokesman in Sacramento. Driving improvement analysts are specially trained to handle persons with problems, such as those of the aged and the handicapped, Cooper said.

I ordered linoleum from Best Company, 13964 Seal Beach Blvd., June 6 and gave them a $54 deposit on the total price of $136.42. They promised I would have the linoleum in one week. At the end of two weeks they told me the pattern I wanted was not available so I chose another one. Two days later they told me the new pattern would cost an additional $65. I said to cancel the order and return my $54. On July 1, I called about the refund, and the woman there said she would remind the owner again. I called again on July 8 and it still wasn't ready. Can you help me? Mrs. M.A.S., Seal Beach.

You have now picked up your refund check. ACTION LINE phoned Best Company and spoke with a woman who would identify herself only as Mary. We told her of your complaint and she said she'd check with the owner about it. When we phoned the following day she said he told her a check had been ready for you and you had been told to come in and get it. She said the check was dated June 15.

Kitt's class

I heard that Eartha Kitt teaches dancing in Watts. Can you find out where? E.C., Cerritos.

The famed singer-dancer-actress teaches classes in African and Cuban dance at the Jordan Downs Recreation Center, 9904 Grape St., Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and at the Hoover Recreation Center, 1010 W. 25th St., on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30. Both centers are in Los Angeles. Her classes, which began about nine years ago, are open to anyone and are free of charge, according to Ella Evans, coordinator of the classes. Expenses are paid by Kittville Inc., a foundation set up by Miss Kitt. She and several young women teach without pay, Mrs. Evans said. Size of the classes vary, but there are usually 30 to 40 children and young adults in attendance. Several of Miss Kitt's former students have gone on to professional dance careers. The classes grew out of a body culture and primitive dance class Miss Kitt taught for Beverly Hills housewives in the early 1960s. Revenue from that class was used to help drug addicts at Synanon. Eartha Kitt was born in South Carolina of sharecropper parents in 1928 and has been a star since the very early 1950s.

SOUND OFF!

Why can't the City of Long Beach trim trees properly without wrecking them? There's been a beautiful maple tree across the street from us for 20 years and it shades the whole front yard there. The only thing wrong with it was that it was hanging too low and when trucks went by, they hit the leaves. Recently the city trimmed it, and it is now a monstrosity. It was left few branches, few leaves, and it no longer gives shade. It seems to me that the five men it took to trim it could have done the job more expertly. Mrs. J.S., Long Beach.

of openness and candor and to have urged them to be affirmative in their relations with news media.

TerHorst said that Ford would follow essentially the same process used by former President Nixon in selecting a man to fill the second job in the administration.

Ford has asked the Republican congressional leaders, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona and Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, and Republican Party Chairman George Bush to contact GOP congressmen and party leaders across the country to solicit their suggestions for a vice presidential nominee.

TerHorst said Ford also plans to seek advice on whom to name from members of the Cabinet, the White House staff and Democratic leaders of Congress, Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma and Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana.

TerHorst said each person has been invited to submit by next Wednesday three names in order of preference. The recommendations will be mailed in sealed envelopes and addressed personally to the President "and he alone will handle it," he said.

TerHorst said the President will seriously consider each potential nominee suggested, "but I'm sure the President is not going to run a beauty contest and do it on who had the most votes."

TerHorst was asked if the President might consider a Democrat and he replied that Ford has not specified one way or the other the party affiliation.

TerHorst said that if members of the public wanted to express their preferences he was sure the mail office in the White House would accept such letters but he did not indicate whether they would reach the President's desk.

TerHorst said he hopes the recommendation process would be completed within a week or 10 days. Ford has previously indicated he would try to submit a nominee to Congress by that time. His choice requires congressional ratification.

Following the session with the Cabinet, the President held a separate meeting with the National Security Council and among topics discussed were Vietnam and the military budget.

TerHorst said the President has begun sending messages to heads of foreign governments, among them the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, to assure them of the continuity of foreign policy by the new U.S. administration.

TerHorst said Ford plans no trips abroad. "The most pressing problems that need to be solved are at home and the White House," TerHorst said.

In response to questions, the press secretary said the President plans to hold frequent news conferences but it would not be reasonable to schedule one for at least a week or two or "until he gets his feet on the ground."

TerHorst was asked about the role of the transition team, which includes adviser Robert Hartmann, former Ford law partner Philip Buchen and Donald Rumsfeld.

TerHorst said the transitional panel would review the existing relationships among the Cabinet, the independent agencies and the White House structure to determine if it could be streamlined or altered to come up with a plan that would fit the President's working habits. TerHorst said every president has his own style.

before being gunned down.

In Jerusalem, U.S. Ambassador Kenneth B. Keating delivered a message Saturday from President Ford to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. Rabin's office said Ford's message "especially stressed the continuation of long-range American support in all matters pertaining to Israel's defense and economic well-being."

The Israeli national radio, in a report from Washington quoting an authoritative source, said Jordan is urgently seeking negotiations with Israel for a partial peace settlement.

Israel's ambassador to Washington, Simha Dinitz, conferred with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger on the matter, the radio said.

In an interview earlier on the armed forces radio, Rabin said Syria was seeking to create a unified Arab threat to Israel's eastern flank through "integration of Iraq's and Jordan's military power into a single framework."

In the Syrian capital of Damascus, the semi-official daily Al Thawra (The Revolution) said in an editorial the Arabs should "convince the U.S. — by acts and not words — that her interests will be threatened if she continues giving active support to Israel."

Kissinger meets envoys, reaffirms India mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met Saturday with a number of foreign envoys and assured Indian Ambassador T.N. Kaul that he still plans to visit India, Pakistan and Bangladesh in October despite the change in administrations.

Kissinger met individually with Kaul and the ambassadors of Pakistan and Iran. He also met with diplomats from 30 African countries as a group, and two of his aides held conferences with other foreign representatives.

In all of the meetings the message was the same—U.S. policy will not change under President Ford.

Kaul said after his 20-minute meeting that Kissinger "is determined to visit India in the very near future. Final dates will be announced shortly, but the visit is expected to take place some time in October."

He said it was likely that Kissinger also would visit Pakistan and Bangladesh. The trip had been announced prior to Nixon's resignation as president.

Kaul told reporters, "We respect President Ford as a man of the people, a friend of India, and we welcome his desire to strengthen relations."

He added that Kissinger "asked me to convey a message from President Ford to Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi that he is very keen not only to improve but to strengthen further our relations."

Kissinger's meeting with the African delegation lasted only 15 minutes and was followed by a conference with the ambassador from Pakistan, a country with major U.S. treaty alliances.

If it's not too early the sun is shining

Clouds in the morning, sunny skies in the afternoon and little change in temperature should make up today's weather picture, National Weather Service forecasters said.

Forecasters predicted a high temperature of 82 in Long Beach today, up two degrees from Saturday's high reading.

Boaters should enjoy west winds of 10 to 16 knots this afternoon and tonight, forecasters said. Only light, variable winds are expected this morning offshore.

Southern California deserts will be mostly sunny, Weather Service workers predicted, with high temperatures ranging from 94 to 104. The only forecast of winds in desert areas was for local gusts up to 25 miles per hour this afternoon and evening in the Coachella Valley.

Mountain areas will be quite warm, with mostly sunny days and high temperatures ranging through the 80s, forecasters said.

Nixon's last week: down in the valley

Long Beach, Calif., Sun., Aug. 11, 1974 INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-13

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

WASHINGTON — The host, haggard and worn from the avalanche that had come tumbling around him, stood to escort his three guests to the door.

He grasped the front of his jacket, the blue one with the flag in the lapel, and pulled it away from him.

"I've lost weight," he said. "It's been very rough."

It had indeed been rough for Richard Nixon. He was fighting to save his presidency.

One of his three guests at the White House, Hugh and James D. St. Clair, told Nixon it seemed to them he had fallen into an unsalvageable political position. Perhaps he ought to consider resignation.

Monday morning, Nixon awoke to hear that the No. 2 Senate Republican, Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, a long-time friend and a constant ally, had said the 37th President of the United States should step down.

At that moment, Gerald R. Ford, a plain man from Michigan, knew he should begin preparation to become the 38th President.

Six hours later, at the White House, Nixon bowed to pressure from his own lawyers. He made public the transcripts of three talks he had with his former top aide, H.R. Haldeman, six days after burglars were caught in the Watergate on June 17, 1972.

Alexander M. Haig Jr., the President's No. 1 aide, began to pass the word. There would be rough days ahead, he told White House workers. The material the President was releasing "will be damaging to us."

Just after 4 p.m. the material appeared. It showed that Nixon had agreed to order the FBI to blunt its Watergate investigation for political reasons, that he was told his reelection campaign director, John N. Mitchell, the law-and-order for-aides from top officials to pool typists were stunned.

Tuesday morning, the President called a Cabinet meeting, his first in a month. He told the members he would not resign, that he would let the constitutional process of impeachment run its course, whatever it might be.

The President was being consistent.

He had said in January: "I have no intention whatever of ever walking away from the job that the people elected me to do."

He had said in February: "I am going to stay here until I get it done."

He had said in March: "Resignation is an easy cop-out."

But events have a way of overtaking even the most deeply held positions, and on Tuesday events were galloping.

For one thing, both Haig and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger believed that a presidency crippled by a long impeachment hearing and Senate trial could lead to a dangerous power vacuum in world affairs.

They told Nixon their concern.

Thus, by an irony of history, two men who had helped design Nixon's proudest foreign policy successes — when he was at the mountaintop — would be pushed by conscience and concern to a leading role in his ultimate humiliation.

Tuesday afternoon, down on Capitol Hill, other consciences and concerns were being aired.

The Senate Republican leadership came to a conclusion. They decided to ask Sen. Barry Goldwater to tell the President of what Sen. Scott considered "drastic changes in his fortunes." Goldwater did not have to make the trip alone.

Wednesday morning, the President called Scott and invited him, Goldwater and Rep. John A. Rhodes, the House minority leader, to the White House. They were the three friends who on Wednesday afternoon made their solemn visit to the man they had long supported.

The President leaned back, put his feet up on the desk and listened. He was not cheered.

Scott said he could count no more than 12 to 15 votes remaining in the Senate for Nixon. Goldwater could count four.

Only four.

"I suppose I have only about 10 votes in the House?" the President said to Rhodes.

More than that, said Rhodes, but not many more.

"Yes, it's damn gloomy," said Nixon.

It was then that the President told his friends that times had been rough, and Sen. Scott said the country was on the verge of collapse.

Richard Nixon, if he had not already done so, was about to make his toughest decision.

Wednesday night, at 6:58 p.m., the President summoned his official photographer, Oliver Atkins. The Nixons and their daughters and sons-in-law, and secretary Rose Mary Woods, were gathered upstairs and wanted some pictures made before dinner.

It was obvious to Atkins when he walked in that Mrs. Nixon, Tricia and Julie had been crying. "That's when it occurred to me that he had told them he was going to resign."

Before Atkins left, all three women again broke into tears and at one point the President embraced his daughter Julie in consolation. She had tried hardest among the family to dissuade him from resigning.

Thursday morning, Aug. 8, 1974, at 11:02 a.m., the President of the United States received his vice president.

At 12:23 p.m., Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler moved to the microphone in the White House press room to make an announcement.

"Tonight at 9 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Time, the President of the United States will address the nation on radio and television from his Oval Office."

Choked and shaken, Ziegler turned away abruptly

Little work was done around the White House the rest of the day. In some offices, doors were closed and bottles appeared.

At 8 p.m. the President met in the Cabinet room with 46 members of Congress whom he had invited for a farewell meeting. He told them what he was going to say to the nation.

"Then he broke down and cried and he had to leave the room," said Sen. Goldwater. "Then the rest of us broke down and cried."

At 9 p.m. President Nixon said, "I shall resign the presidency effective at noon tomorrow."

SEN. HUGH SCOTT

Scott, the senator from Pennsylvania, a Nixon defender, the Republican leader of the Senate, turned to his President and said:

"The country is on the verge of a breakdown."

The final act was then at hand.

And when it was done, when the man who had been on the highest mountain found himself in an inescapable valley, the final act was as swift and clean as a saber thrust. And as irreversible:

"I hereby resign the office of President of the United States."

At the end of the thing called Watergate, there was the unalloyed irony of a man who ached to be the ultimate politician reaping the ultimate political disgrace.

The final chapter of the Nixon presidency, which stood at unequalled popular heights less than 19 months ago, began seven days ago at Camp David.

The President, a solitary man, went to this mountain retreat when he wanted to meditate. This was such a time.

For the previous week he had been secluded, moving from cubicle to cubicle to listen to recordings of his own conversations. Speaking with one voice, the nation's highest court had ordered him to surrender these secret tapes of his presidency's private moments.

Last Sunday morning, Nixon summoned his chief advisers and speech writers to Camp David. A hint that something was up?

"No," announced his spokesman, Gerald Warren, "the President will not resign. No, there will be no speech this week."

But at Camp David, two of the President's advisers, Patrick Buchanan

SEN. WILLIAM GRIFFIN

REP. CHARLES WIGGINS

mer attorney general, might have known some advance details of the break-in at Democratic headquarters.

Haig's reference to "damaging" would stand as the understatement of this historic week.

To some of the President's staunchest defenders, including Rep. Charles E. Wiggins of California, who had borne the brunt of Nixon's defense against impeachment in the House Judiciary Committee, the transcripts left no doubt that Nixon had indeed participated in the Watergate cover-up. If he does not resign, said Wiggins, he ought to be impeached.

One of the very few who continued to support Nixon, Rep. Earl Landgrebe of Indiana, summed up the atmosphere on Capitol Hill:

"A sort of madness has set in," he said. "It's like a mutiny on a ship."

Mid-America watches How will Ford play in Peoria?

By RICHARD E. MEYER
AP Newsfeatures Writer

PEORIA, Ill. — Silence crouched in the room like a nervous cat. The mayor listened.

The President spoke. "I shall ..."

At that instant, Nieka, the Siberian husky, locked upstairs because the mayor had visitors, barked and scratched at the door.

That did it.

All the quiet — three blond, blue-eyed youngsters lined up on the blue rug in front of the television and admonished to whisper, the fourth with her lips sealed and hands folded in her lap on the striped sofa; all the composure — the mayor's blonde, blue-eyed wife seated at her husband's elbow, nibbling the tip of her right thumb, the mayor cross-legged, his arms folded over his tie; and all the tension — in the first family of Peoria, in the nation and the world — exploded.

"God damn that dog!" Richard Carver crackled through clenched teeth. Two of the youngsters scurried off to minister to Nieka.

"...resign the presidency at noon tomorrow," Richard M. Nixon declared.

So it was that the 37th President of the United States, on the 2,026th evening of his presidency, bowed off the stage. There was no curtain call in Peoria.

FEW PEOPLE BOOED in Peoria — the town John D. Ehrlichman, former President Richard M. Nixon's former adviser, used to measure Middle America's reactions to the administration's major decisions. But the applause wasn't deafening.

"If he had just said, 'I'm sorry,' I would have felt a little bit better about it," said Carver, sounding like a Republican mayor still but 36, blond of thatch, blue of eye, possessor of boyish good looks, the majority partnership in a $5-million-a-year lumberyard his father founded, an impeccably all-American family, the credit for godfathering a highly touted $9 million urban renewal program, a 12-year-old gull-wing Mercedes and a home in suburban idylbrook with a flagpole and a basketball hoop.

"The speech left a void. Having put the country through so much trauma, with so many people hurt, I felt he owed them an apology of some sort ... It sounded like a president completing a term rather than resigning. I think Nixon — all presidents — get a great sense of historical perspective. I had the feeling he was creating a TV tape to be played 50 years from now."

With that, Dick Carver and his city, which Richard Nixon visited eight times during his political career to rave reviews and 67 per cent of the county votes in 1972, but which began growing disenchanted with him by May ("I'm concerned about the level of statesmanship and morality reflected in the Watergate transcripts," Carver said at the time) and which, by Wednesday, was demanding his resignation or impeachment by an 88 per cent margin in an informal poll by radio station WRLI, turned their rapt attention to Nixon's successor.

Question: How will Gerald R. Ford play in Peoria?

"FORD IS A MAN with a great legislative background. He's one of a handful of people who can pick up and carry on," said Dick Carver, removing the glasses in which he had poured Budweisers. "To restore confidence and the ability of the government to function — that is the most important thing right now."

What about talk of mediocrity?

"No. I'll tell you something about being elected as House minority leader — it's one thing to face the electorate; it's another thing to face your own peers."

Then, the inevitable flashback to Richard Nixon.

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave ..." the mayor mused.

"... When first we practice to deceive," completed the mayor's wife, with no apologies to Sir Walter Scott.

On the day Richard Nixon's resignation became effective, cattle were selling $10 higher at Peoria Union Stock Yards.

"That's $10 higher since May," allowed livestock broker Bill Biederbeck, but he didn't think the increase was directly attributable to the President's resignation. Wall Street might shoot up, he said, but that's a different kind of stock market. Besides, the climb in Peoria has been gradual.

Farming, plus the Caterpillar Tractor Co., which employs nearly 10 per cent of metropolitan Peoria's 339,600 people, plus Iliam Walker and Sons, the makers of whisky, plus the Pabst Brewing Co., in suburban Peoria Heights, make Peoria much of what it is — proud and prosperous.

"If he'd run next week, I'd vote for him," Biederbeck laughed. That, he said, was a joke. Then, seriously: "I'll have to admit he was more deeply involved than I thought he was. He did tell the people he was not as deeply involved as he was."

Tall, tan, Biederbeck, 47, focused his walnut gaze six inches beyond the bridge of his questioner's nose.

"But I'm not down on the man. He's done a world of good for this country."

"Still, in the Watergate mess, the wheels stopped turning. He was right to resign. Resigning or impeachment. I suppose he's subject to court proceedings either way. I'm sure this is the best thing to do: get it done and out of the way and get on to other things."

Gerald Ford?

"I THINK FORD is a different type of individual than Nixon. Nixon had illusions of grandeur and power, and Ford doesn't appear to me to be that kind of individual."

In his office at the front of a red brick building designated "NAACP," John Gwynn, 40, mustache, medium Afro, chairman of the Peoria branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, walked around his metal desk and sat in a folding chair.

"It is to his advantage and to the country's advantage for him to resign. Immunity? I say it this way — we have laws on our books; if the law exists, I think all of us should abide by it."

But John Gwynn spoke of compassion for Richard Nixon.

"You know, you just don't take away your consideration for your fellow man when he does wrong. If he asks for forgiveness, I believe he should actually receive it. That doesn't make him free from the law if he has broken it; but on the human, ethical, moral plane ..."

Gwynn nodded yes to his own question.

Suspicion dies hard, though, for Jim Hatcher, quiet-spoken county Democratic chairman. He'd just come from home, where Nixon's tearful goodbye to his Cabinet and staff had been televised in time for breakfast.

"He was telling them about his old man and his mother," Hatcher declared, settling into the chair behind his desk. "I don't feel a hell of a lot like talking about it."

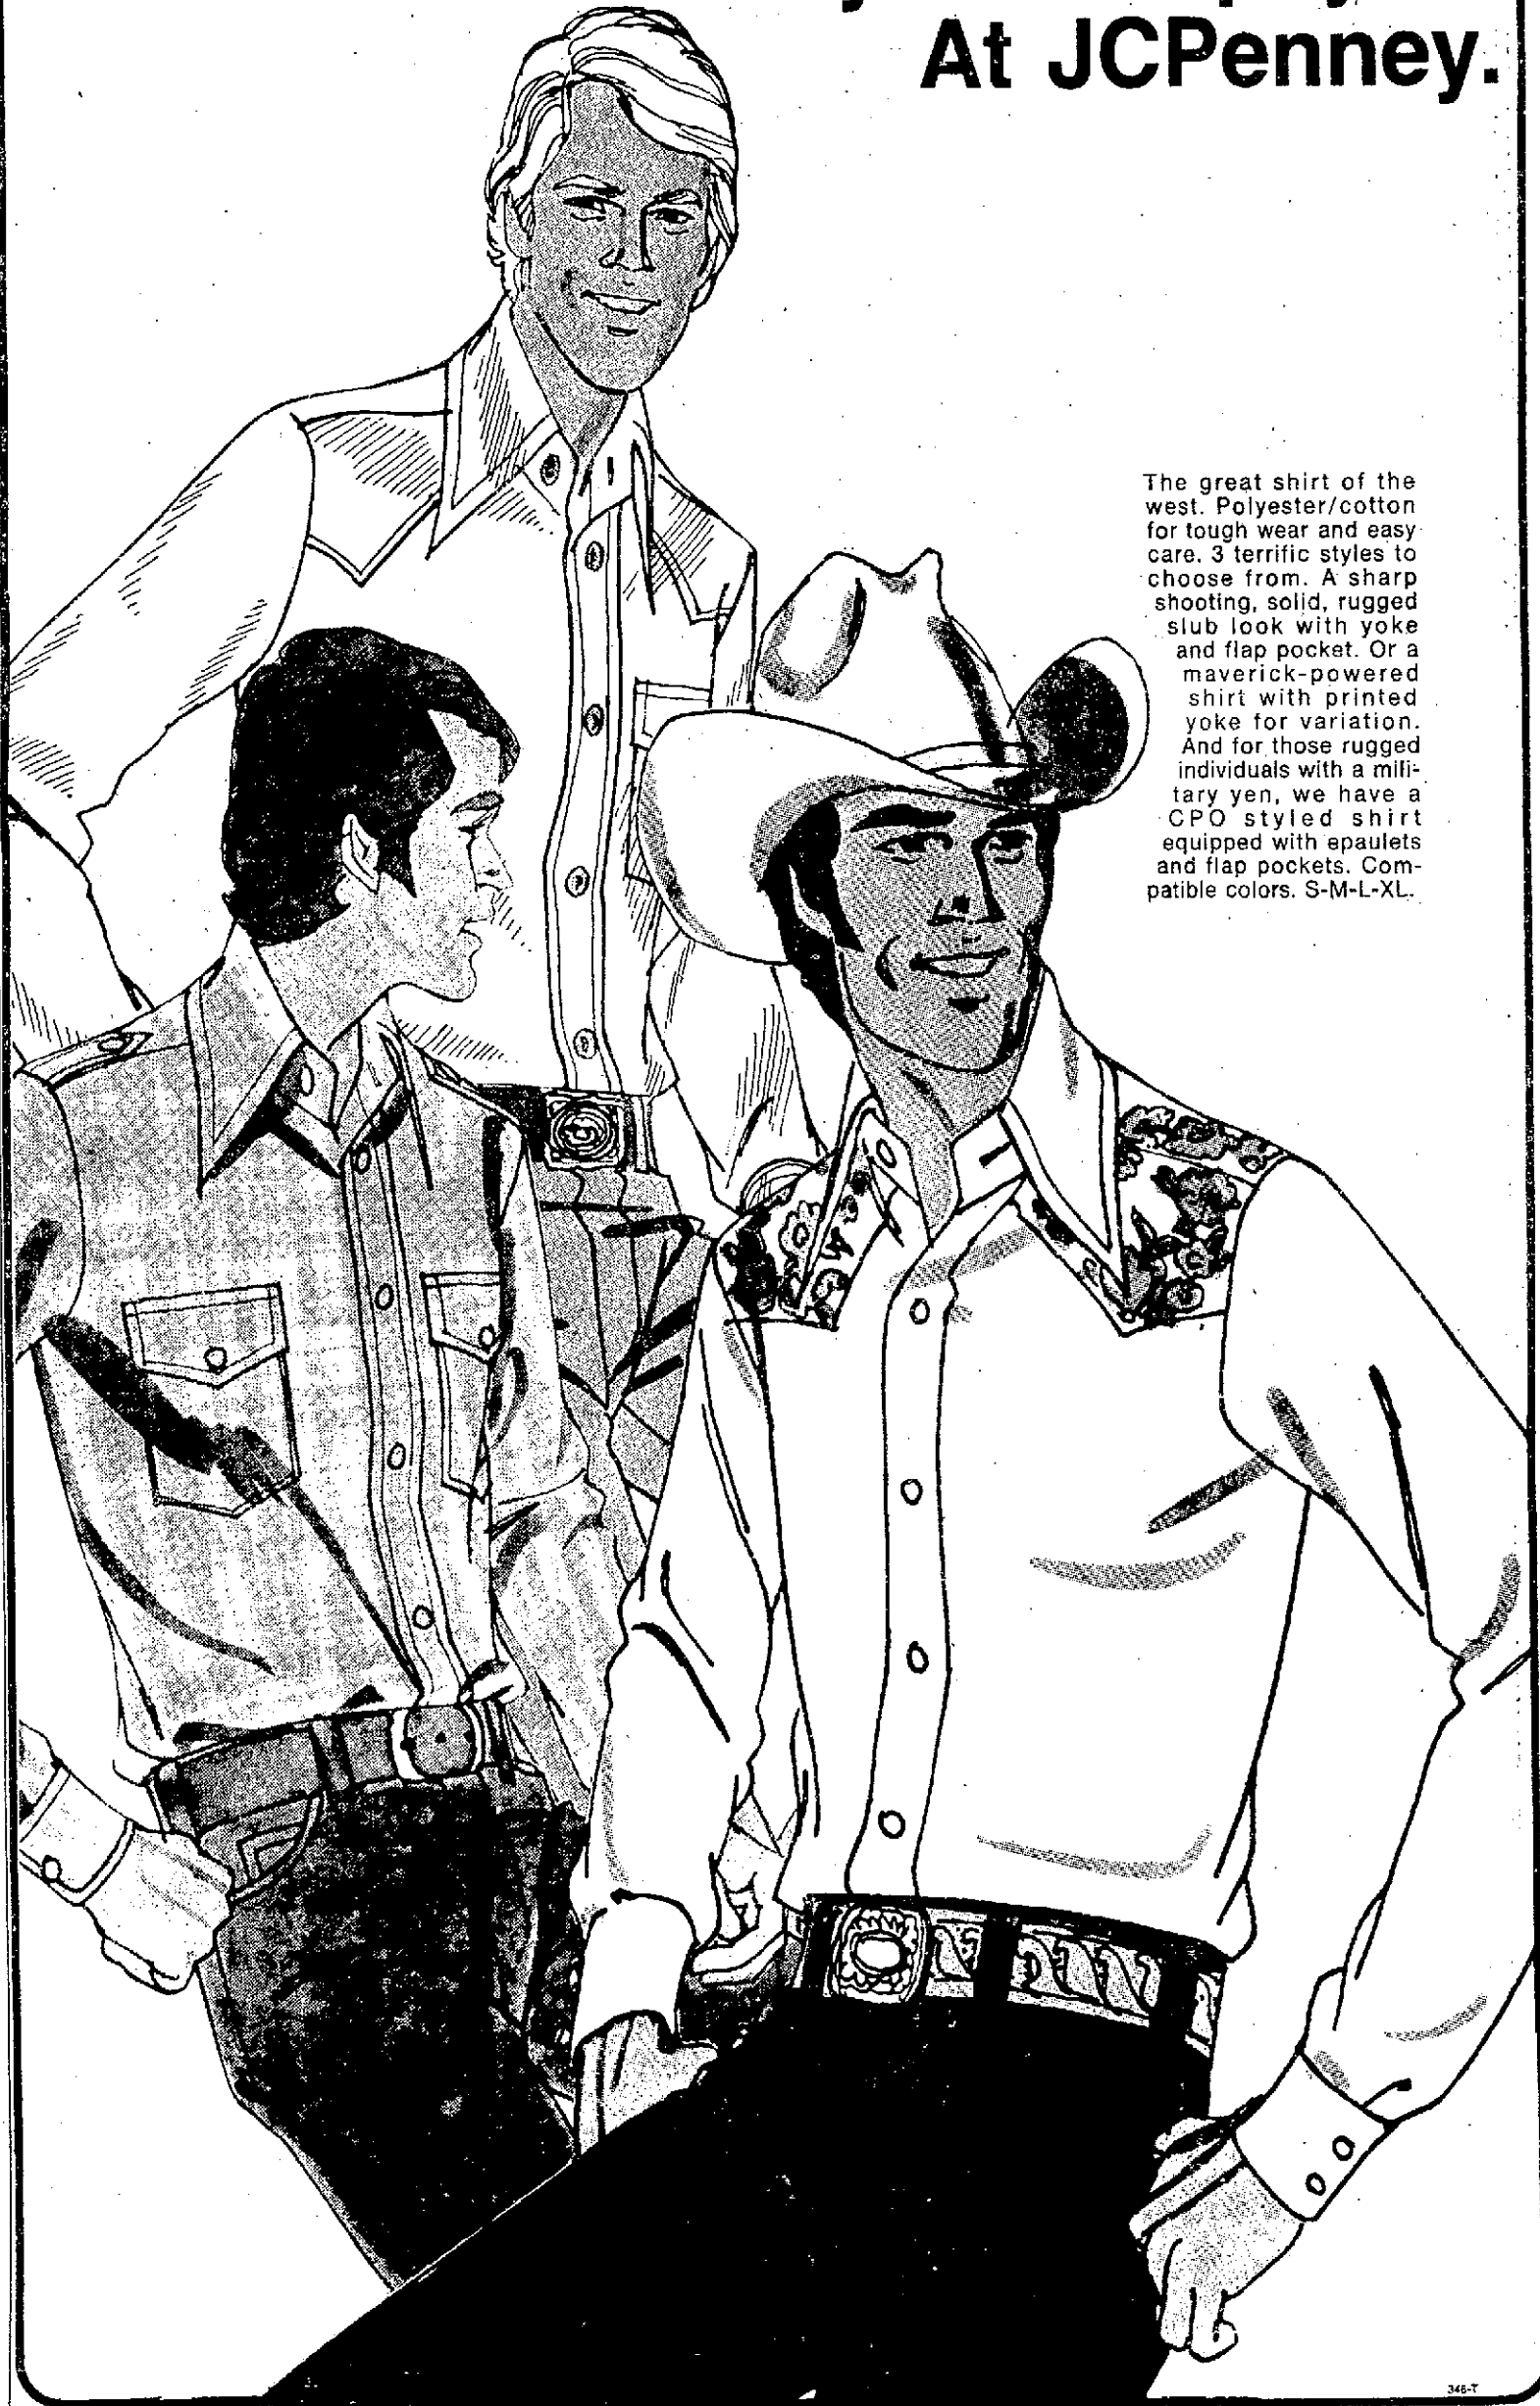

Did that mean he felt sorry for Richard Nixon?

"That's what it's intended to make you do. That's the American way. As Dan Rather said, Americans don't shoot at a lifeboat."

Hard fight seen Demos gloomy over elections

Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—"It's been a great week for the nation and a disastrous one for the Democratic Party."

That was the way one Democratic Party official summed up the impact on the November congressional elections of Richard Nixon's resignation and Gerald Ford's accession to the presidency last week.

The official's gloomy assessment was affirmed, although not quite in such blunt language by other politicians and political observers who had expected the Republican Party to be badly hurt this fall by Nixon's unpopularity and the Watergate scandal.

"We're in for a hard fight," said Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif. "It is going to be a question of candidates and issues, not Watergate, and that's the way it should be."

"Clearly, this takes the big monkey off the Republicans' backs," commented Richard Moe, a knowledgeable former state party chairman who is administrative assistant to Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn.

"It's got to help Republicans a lot, at least in the marginal races," said Moe. "In those races they won't have to be defending Richard Nixon anymore, which is what they were afraid of."

Moe pointed out that economic issues may be just as potent as Watergate figured to be because of the slumping economy, but also noted that Ford is making it his first priority to combat inflation and unemployment.

"But Ford has got to be a big plus for the Republicans, particularly if he undertakes some new initiatives and tries to put together a bipartisan coalition. I think he can be very formidable if he handles this right in the next few weeks," Moe added.

On the House side, a Democratic veteran of the political game, Richard Conlon, was even less sanguine about Democrats' prospects this fall.

Conlon, staff director of the liberal-oriented House Democratic Study Group and an expert political observer, called the Ford-for-Nixon switch "a disaster" for Democrats this fall.

"It simply takes away whatever edge we had in the coming election because of Watergate," he declared.

Conlon pointed out that there were three dominant factors in the special elections held earlier this year in which Democrats picked up five of six congressional seats.

They included a higher-than-average turnout of Democratic voters, a sharp drop in Republican voters and a tendency for independent voters to vote for Democrats as a sign of their dismay over Watergate.

While it is difficult to assess what impact Ford will have on the Democratic turnout, Conlon said he will cause Republicans to turn out in "tremendous" numbers.

"Instead of being turned off, they'll be turned on because the monkey has suddenly been taken off their backs," he declared.

Also, he expects independent voters to "revert to their normal style" which is to favor Republican candidates.

It's still too early to make projections about how much the Democrats will lose of their 248-187 margin in House seats, but Conlon says it is clear that talk about electing a "veto-proof" Democratic Congress is unrealistic.

"Quite simply, we've had a political sea change—the whole climate has been dramatically altered by the developments of the past week. They have cost us whatever chance we had for major gains this fall and diminished our chances of winning the presidency in 1976," he declared.

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., summed up the feeling of many of his GOP colleagues, when he said, "Republicans are euphoric. Most of us didn't have to vote on a difficult issue (impeachment) and now we have a popular President."

Ford teacher tells of his integrity

SEATTLE (AP) — President Gerald Ford's "integrity could never be questioned," says one of his junior high school teachers.

"He's kind, thoughtful and has good judgment," adds Helen Williams. A retired art teacher living in La Jolla, she taught Ford in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Miss Williams said Saturday that Ford "never aspired to the presidency. He always wanted to be speaker of the House."

Rep. Quie says Ford will 'talk straight'

By AL EISELE
Our National Bureau
WASHINGTON — When Gerald Ford addressed his fellow Americans as their new President Friday, he offered them neither homespun wisdom nor campaign rhetoric but "just a little straight talk among friends."

And that, according to a man who has been one of Ford's closest personal friends and political allies for more than a decade, is just what he will give them.

"Jerry Ford is the most open and honest and decent person I have ever known," Rep. Albert Quie, R-Minn., said last week shortly before he learned that Richard Nixon was about to resign from office.

"I've never known a person who ran for the presidency in my time in politics, and that goes back to the Eisenhower administration, that I didn't have some pretty grave reservations about," said Quie, who prayed with Ford and House Republican leader John Rhodes of Arizona minutes after Ford finally learned he was to become the nation's 38th president.

"But I have absolutely no reservations about Gerry Ford," Quie added. "He's the one person capable of giving leadership to the American people right now. He's a man they can trust and have confidence in."

Quie, a genial, unassuming and deeply religious dairy farmer from southeastern Minnesota has known Ford since coming to Congress in 1958. He was instrumental in helping Ford take his first big step up the leadership ladder in the House when he and two other colleagues engineered Ford's election as chairman of the House Republican Conference in 1963.

Two years later, Quie and three colleagues masterminded Ford's successful challenge of Indiana's Charlie Halleck as House minority leader, and during Ford's more than eight years in that post, Quie worked with him on a host of major legislative and political issues.

In all that time, Quie's assessment of Ford the man and Ford the politician has never been diminished by Ford's actions.

"I really feel that what this country needs is a president who can give moral and spiritual leadership, and what I've noticed in every encounter with Jerry and his staff is that they always had the highest possible ethical and moral standards," Quie declared.

"Neither he nor any of his people has ever suggested to me, either in words or body English, any compromise with ethical standards," he added.

Old friend says Ford is like Eisenhower

enough to make the agonizing decisions and bear the awesome burdens that sometimes confront a president?

"Yeah, tough enough", replied Quie. "But not too tough. I think Nixon was too tough and I think Johnson was too tough, but Eisenhower and Truman were just tough enough."

If Quie had to compare Ford to any previous president, he would pick Eisenhower.

"Jerry's kind of unique in politics," he said. "I haven't seen anybody who's in exactly the same mold. But he has some of the same personal characteristics as Eisenhower, without the war hero thing."

"I'd say he's closer to Ike than anybody, and I think he'll turn out to be the kind of president this country has been looking for since Eisenhower — a person people can have confidence in and believe in and give them a feeling of security and put the country back on the right track."

Quie concedes that Ford is more conservative than himself — "not way over on the right but a little more conservative than the middle," he explained.

Nevertheless, Quie predicts Ford's personal qualities will go a long way toward helping making him a successful president. Quie pointed out that even George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO and an ideological foe of Ford, recently said organized labor would have no trouble working with Ford because they can trust him to keep his word.

Unlike others who question Ford's intellectual capacity, Quie thinks the new chief executive will have no trouble on that score. "I think he's got the intellectual capacity to handle the job," he asserted.

"Besides, he's never been afraid to draw on the help of people of brilliance and greater expertise than he has, say in foreign affairs or economic matters or domestic issues. Yet he's got the mental capacity to grasp what they're talking about."

Quie, who is ranking Republican on the Education and Labor Committee and an expert legislative craftsman in the education and welfare fields, says he always found that Ford "had no problems handling the details of complex legislation" during more than eight years as House GOP leader.

"He always had a full grasp of details, not just surface knowledge, and he could see the core issues as well," Quie added.

Ford's style of presidential leadership will be characterized by logic and persuasion, rather than the isolated legal pad, loneliness of Nixon or the robust arm-twisting favored by the late Lyndon Johnson, Quie believes.

"Jerry tends to pull in people from both sides and have them express their viewpoints. I guess the best way to describe him is as a 'persuader,' either on the basis of logic or in terms of his saying, 'O.K., this time we've got to stick together as a team,'" Quie explained.

Quie, whose name has surfaced in several widely circulated lists of Ford's possible vice-presidential choices, has no doubt that as President, his friend will continue to "talk straight to the American people."

"Jerry Ford starts out with people feeling that he's open and decent and honest, so they approach him from that point of view first," said the man who knows him as well as anybody in Washington.

"I think that means that every segment of American society — business, labor, agriculture, minorities — all are going to feel he's a person who can give leadership to the American people."

"As far as I'm concerned, it's a really great feeling to have that kind of confidence in a President. I was wondering if we'd ever have that kind of man in the White House again."

DDT banned but debate goes on

By MICHAEL J. CONLON

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The pesticide DDT has been banned in the United States for more than two years as a possible hazard to health, but the controversy surrounding it lingers as persistently as the poisonous chemical itself.

The old wounds and arguments were reopened recently when Thomas H. Jukes, a California biochemist writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association, called for DDT's return "as a public health measure for uses that are essential in the control of noxious insects."

Jukes said the June 1972 ban on DDT was political rather than scientific. He urged a more lenient policy on DDT usage to combat such scourges as the gypsy moth infestation of forests in the eastern U.S.

DDT's possible role as a cause of cancer is unproved speculation he said, and its adverse effects on wildlife, such as reproduction of eagles, falcons and other birds, is still subject to dispute.

UNDER the Environmental Protection Agency's ban, DDT still can be used for public health purposes, including control of malaria and certain other emergencies.

The EPA approved DDT usage twice this year, once to combat the tussock moth in Oregon, Washington and Idaho; and the pea leaf weevil in northern Idaho and eastern Washington.

The agency required that parts of these areas be treated by alternate methods to test their effectiveness, which the U.S. Forest Service did. A Forest Service spokesman later said DDT was not needed in some areas because natural viruses took up the fight against the tussock moths, but that DDT was the only answer for most of the acreage involved.

Likewise, DDT was not needed in Idaho because of an unusual outbreak of aphids which secreted a honeydew-like substance and trapped moth larvae, leaving them prey for spiders and other natural enemies.

NONETHELESS, the Forest Service remains convinced that DDT is essential for treating epidemic situations, and some Agriculture Department officials would like to have easier access to it.

The Environmental Defense Fund, which began the successful battle against DDT in 1970, said the experience with alternate pesticides showed DDT was not needed at all.

"The environmental evidence on which DDT was canceled is sound," said William Butler, a Fund lawyer. "In this country we don't need DDT. In the years since its cancellation we have found that alternatives are available and have been available all along."

Butler believes Jukes' arguments are old but attracted attention only because they appeared in the AMA journal. "There are always people who want to fight the Civil War over, too," he said.

WHEN the EPA banned DDT it said the most damaging case against it was its persistence. By World Health Organization estimates, fully two-thirds of all DDT used in the world since 1938 is still somewhere in the environment, from the food chain to residues in body fat.

Jukes, Butler and the others disagree on how dangerous that condition is, as they do about DDT's possible role as a cancer agent.

The continuing controversy over DDT, which Rachel Carson called an "elixir of death" in her bestseller "Silent Spring" a decade ago, has prompted EPA to review the entire issue under pressure from Congress.

Henry J. Korp, deputy assistant EPA administrator for pesticides programs, told UPI "it will be nine months before we have a definitive answer. We are reviewing old information and looking at some new, hoping to plug a few holes in the dike."

THE REVIEW, said one spokesman, "is not laying the foundation for some kind of major turnaround on the 1972 ban," but rather looking at DDT's cost versus its benefits and whether it can be used on some minor crops.

The EPA's new study was urged by Rep. Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., who heads a House appropriations subcommittee governing the EPA budget. Whitten favors DDT, especially for its value in eliminating the boll weevil threat to his state's cotton crop.

Earlier this year, when EPA appeared reluctant to approve DDT use against tussock moths, Whitten backed a bill to give the Agriculture Department emergency power to order DDT used in special cases.

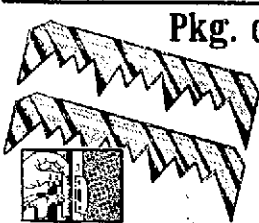

The bluff worked, and EPA approved the program. The bill got out of committee but hasn't been heard from since.

Ward's fined for mislabeled oil

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Montgomery Ward has been fined $36,000 by a Contra Costa County Superior Court for selling potentially damaging, mislabeled motor oil.

Additionally, the company was ordered by the court Friday to remove all its "Riverside" brand oil from California.

The bargain-priced oil, marked down to 49 cents from 57 cents, was banned following months of investigation and testing by Curtis R. Hoffman, deputy district attorney in the county's consumer fraud unit.

The district attorney is also investigating private label brands which originated with Ward's supplier, Refiners Marketing, a Southern California firm.

Ford praises 'selfless' Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford praised Richard M. Nixon Saturday for his "selfless and courageous act" of resigning the presidency.

In a memo to the White House staff dated Friday and released Saturday, Ford said "you must have feelings of sorrow, as I do, but you also should be proud — proud of the president you served and of your efforts for him and the country."

"President Nixon fought long and with all his might to serve the American people well, ending his presidency with a selfless and courageous act," Ford said.

Ford noted that many members of the staff "will want to go on to other pursuits," but he asked that each of them "stay on long enough" to assure a steady transition.

Ms. Commissioner sits in

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

The first woman ever appointed to the Los Angeles Board of Harbor Commissioners, Mrs. Gene Frances Kaplan, 61, of Brentwood, attended her first meeting of the port governing board Wednesday.

She was appointed to serve on the State Commission on Revision of Intermediate and Secondary Education earlier this year. She is a member of the Los Angeles Hadassah 10th District PTA, vice president of the Constitutional Rights Foundation Dinners for Winners, Citizens for Cranston for Senator, and Chairman, Housing Authority for City of Los Angeles in 1973. In 1968 she served on the State Committee on Study of Bill of Rights.

MRS. GENE KAPLAN
At first meeting

1929, attended high school in Phoenix and attended the Los Angeles College of Law.

During the early moments of the meeting, Mrs. Kaplan requested she be put on record as abstaining from voting on any agenda items until she had an opportunity to familiarize herself with Harbor Department procedures.

S.F. ship collision

Several members of the maritime community have asked Waterfront why there was no report about the collision of two Long Beach ships 10 miles outside San Francisco July 30.

Apparently the collision was not reported to or by the news wire services in the bay area.

Involved in the collision were the Swedish MV David Salmon, which carries newsprint, and Sea Land's container ship, Sea Land Long Beach.

Damage to the David Salmon was estimated at $1 million dollars. The ship suffered a 95-foot gash about eight to 10 feet wide below the waterline. The number three and four holds were ripped open. Had the ship been empty it might have sunk but the rolls of newsprint in the two holds helped keep the vessel a float.

The ship was towed to an anchorage near Treasure Island while workers at Todd Shipyard hurriedly readied blocks in the company's drydock. The water-soaked newsprint rolls were removed to allow workmen to repair the damage.

A spokesman for Star Terminals in Long Beach said the ship is now back in the water and is expected to continue its voyage to Long Beach this week.

The Sea Land Long Beach sustained damage estimated at $100,000. The ship continued under its own power to its terminal in the Port of Oakland.

There were no injuries, but operators of the David Salmon said between $300,000 and $400,000 in newsprint was destroyed.

Both ships had radar, bridge-to-bridge radio contact, and both had bar pilots on board and were under surveillance of the recently installed Coast Guard's highly sophisticated radar Vessel Traffic System.

The 12th District Coast Guard Headquarters in San Francisco is conducting an investigation of the accident.

IN-PORT-ANT people

George H. Stein, chief property agent of the Long Beach Harbor Department, has been elevated to the newly created position of director of property management.

Stein, an 18-year veteran of the department, will be responsible for the administration of all rental agreements pertaining to port-owned land and facilities within the harbor district.

He is a member of the executive board of the American Right of Way Association, Los Angeles Chapter, and a member of the Propeller Club and the Newman Club. He is a director of the Catholic Welfare Service in Long Beach.

To voice objections

Representatives of approximately 100 Los Angeles Harbor Department administrative, supervisors, and clerical employees are scheduled to appear before the Board of Harbor Commissioners Wednesday to express their objections to being "dumped into a common bargaining unit of laborers employed city-wide" without allegedly being given the opportunity to vote on the matter.

The employees claim they were victims of unfair labor practices in that they were required to join the common unit (equivalent to a union) without being allowed to vote on the issue.

Passenger terminal in L.B.?

At the suggestion of potential users of a proposed cruise passenger terminal in Long Beach Harbor, Bob N. Hoffmaster, Harbor Department chief engineer has visited a cruise terminal in Miami, Fla.

However, port officials have declined to discuss where the proposed terminal would be located or which cruise lines might use the facility since negotiations between port representatives and cruise lines are continuing.

At present, there is no such facility in the harbor. Currently the only ocean-going cruise ships calling at Long Beach are the combination passenger-freighters operated by Prudential Line (formerly Prudential-Grace Lines.) Since the Prudential ships handle cargo it is not likely they would use the proposed passenger terminal. The only other passenger ships operating out of Long Beach are those of Catalina Cruises, Inc., which dock at the old Navy Landing near the approach to the Queen's Way Bridge. The landing is in the City of Long Beach but not within the harbor district.

In Los Angeles Harbor there are four passenger terminals: The combination passenger-cargo terminal at Consolidated Marine, the Catalina sea-air terminal, the former Matson Terminal in Wilmington, and the former American President Line terminal also in Wilmington.

Hope dim for world sea pact

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Disagreement over fishing and rights of passage through straits and so-called economic zones has dimmed hope of agreement on a global sea treaty at the third United Nations Conference on Law of the Sea.

U.N. officials already are planning a fourth conference next year in Vienna, Austria, and some delegates at the current summer-long Caracas meeting predict that several additional meetings will be required to draw up a universally accepted sea treaty.

Political bickering, heightened by economic differences between the developing nations and the superpowers, has plagued the progress of the meeting, which opened on June 20 and is scheduled to close on Aug. 29.

Concrete negotiations on a treaty have been delayed and, with nearly seven weeks elapsed, actual drafting of articles for a treaty has yet to begin.

Drilling rig deal

Exxon USA and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries Ltd. in Japan have signed a letter of intent to start contract negotiations for the construction of a semisubmersible drilling rig, intended for use of the Pacific West Coast and in the Gulf of Alaska.

The unit is expected to be in service by early 1977, according to Exxon, and will be capable of operating in waters 1,500 feet deep and drilling to depths of 25,000 feet.

Summary of Secret Witness cases

As part of the Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program, 10 selected summaries of cases in which rewards are offered are printed in the Independent and Press Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until the cases are closed by police or until notification in print that rewards have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any criminal cases, or the apprehension of fugitives from justice, whether covered in these summaries or not. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information directly through Secret Witness, either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post office box.

The summaries follow:

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Benjamin Holate, 70-year-old Compton businessman fatally beaten by a robber during a holdup in his furniture repair shop at 245 E. Compton Blvd. on Sept. 15, 1973.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Robert W. Cogloy, 44-year-old Long Beach auto wholesaler shot to death by two robbers at the southeast corner of Pacific Coast Highway and California Avenue on Aug. 12, 1971.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Elliot Lawson, 38, shot to death during a holdup at the Atlantic Inn, 1845 Atlantic Ave., on July 16, 1971.

—A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the armed robbers who held up the Furs by David store at 203 E. Broadway on Dec. 12, 1972, and carried out more than $4,000 worth of furs.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 19-year-old Charles Davis of Compton, slain by shotgun blast fired through an open window as he was sleeping on a sofa at the home of a neighbor in the 1400 block on West 154th Street in the early hours of Aug. 26, 1973.

—Rewards totaling $1,500, including $500 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $1,000 pledged by victim Frank Fazio, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of burglars who stole $11,000 from a safe in Fazio's food shop operations office at Ports of Call Village on April 15, 1974.

—A 1,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men who raped and stabbed a North Long Beach woman, inflicting serious wounds, as she was returning home from work on the night of June 14, 1973.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the burglars who broke into the National Guard Armory across the street from the Compton City Hall on July 4, 1974, and took rifles, machine guns, grenade launchers, grenades, gas masks and ammunition in quantities authorities called "sufficient to completely equip an Army combat unit."

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderers of Carl Widman, 20, Waverly Cotton, 22, and Elizabeth Shephard, 16, shot to death in Widman's car parked at Wilmington Avenue and Artesia Boulevard on the night of Oct. 13, 1973.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Thomas Wayne Kipling, 22, hacked to death with an ax or cleaver and thrown from a car into the intersection of 11th Street and Fashion Avenue in Long Beach on the night of July 30, 1973.

Mental study set for killer

A 90-day psychiatric study has been ordered for Lester E. Browning Jr., 41, former Orange County probation officer convicted of killing his estranged wife's friend.

After the slaying, Browning disappeared; he was arrested almost nine years later in Seattle, where officers said he became involved in an assault charge under the name of Rex Erin Cooper.

Browning was found guilty of fatally shooting Albert W. Wilborn, 42, of Anaheim, at the Santa Ana home of Mrs. Browning on July 3, 1965, following a dinner party.

Santa Ana Superior Court Judge H. Warren Knight agreed to the examination at Chino Prison, and set Nov. 7 at 1:30 p.m. as time for formal sentencing.

Expo Folklife Festival a hit

By BRIAN MOTTATZ

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Way off in a corner of the Expo '74 site, gold panners pan, shipbuilders build, Indian dancers dance and a multitude of artisans carve, sew, forge and cook.

It's all part of an ambitious effort known as the folklife festival — the only real "people" exhibit at this city's world exposition on the environment.

The exhibit is patterned after the Smithsonian Institution's two-week folklife festival staged every summer in Washington, D.C.

TWO KEY elements of the Expo Folk Festival are traditional American heritage and ethnic groups of the Northwest.

Between them, they provide fairgoers with everything from logging demonstrations and gold panning to Scandinavian fiddling and Japanese kitemaking.

The four-acre site includes a small amphitheater for live entertainment, open-air booths for craftsmen to show their wares, traditional Indian longhouses, a boatbuilding house where a 28-foot sloop is under construction and a sluice where anyone can try his hand at panning for gold nuggets.

The man behind the Expo Folklife Festival is Bob Glazier, a New Yorker who came West in 1972 at the direction of the Smithsonian.

Glazier and a handful of others were commissioned to look into the possibilities of staging a folklife festival at Expo for the six-month run of the fair.

"We found that the Northwest was really an untapped gold mine as far as ethnic backgrounds and their diversity of languages and cultures was concerned," he said.

WITH that discovery, it was full speed ahead, he said, except for a two-month period last fall between the time the Smithsonian pulled out because it considered the project too much to handle and Expo moved in to manage the festival.

The Folklife Festival offers a permanent program including daily logging demonstrations, where visitors are invited to scale a 100-foot pole in true woodsman tradition or bucksaw their way through a three-foot diameter log.

The same area features the boatbuilding house and gold-panning sluice along with the largest steam locomotive ever used in passenger service — Union Pacific Engine No. 8444.

The other major areas of the folklife festival feature a series of separate week-long programs revolving around a different ethnic group still very much alive in the Northwest.

Ringling circus caravan will tour downtown L.B.

A caravan of circus animals from the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus will parade through downtown Long Beach Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

The parade will include 17 elephants, 50 horses and ponies, three camels and nine cages of lions and tigers. Circus clowns and performers will accompany the caravan.

The parade will proceed from Sixth Street south on Pine Avenue to Fourth Street, then east to Long Beach Boulevard, south to Third Street, west to Pine Avenue and then south on Pine to the Long Beach Arena.

The lead elephant, following a calliope, will be ridden by City Council member Don Phillips. The Long Beach Municipal Band will play circus music beginning at 1:30 p.m. at Broadway and Pine Avenue.

Children aged 6 through 15 may register at Belfum's department store, Broadway and Pine Avenue, to be eligible for a drawing to become king or queen of the circus.

The circus will be held in the Long Beach Arena, with performances scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m., Friday at 3 and 8 p.m., Saturday at 11 a.m., 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. and Sunday at 1:30 and 5:30 p.m.

The parade is sponsored by the Downtown Long Beach Associates.

Renoir vanishes

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)

Police and customs officials said Saturday they still do not know how a Renoir painting, "Woman in Flowered Hat," disappeared en route from London to its Minneapolis owner.

The painting, was crated and put on a plane in London at 11:30 a.m. Thursday. When the crate was opened later in the day at the apartment of owner Samuel Maslon in front of customs officials, the 12-by-16-inch canvas by Pierre Auguste Renoir was gone.

'Ginger' delights Playhouse goers

By MARK CLUTTER
Staff Writer

Time Out for Ginger is a pleasant domestic comedy which opened this weekend at the Community Playhouse, 5021 E. Anaheim St. It will continue on Friday and Saturday evenings through Sept. 14. There also will be benefit performances.

The light and delightful play concerns a father (Homer Johnson) who, somewhat to his dismay, has three teen-age daughters. (He always wanted sons.)

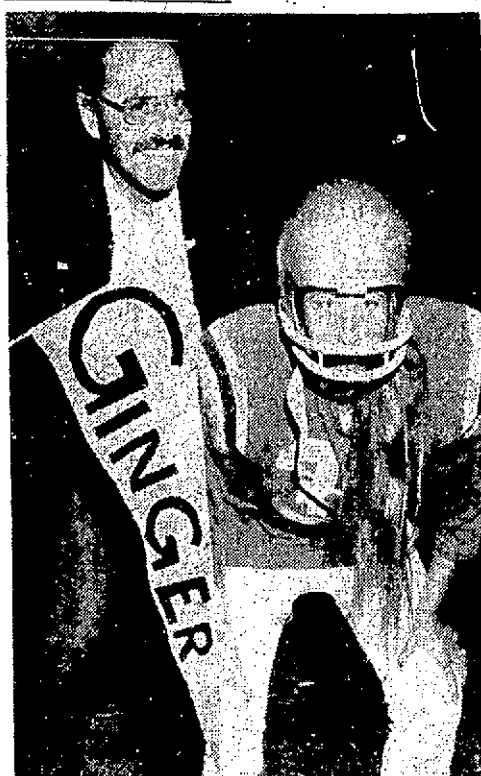

One daughter (Naomi Collins) almost gratifies

his wish. She can outrun every boy in high school and really kick a football. She makes the team in spite of the opposition of faculty and community.

Emotions of everybody become very mixed.

Johnson was good in his role as a slightly stuffy, respectable, middle-class gentleman whose heart was in the right place. The daughters, shapely and pretty, play the roles of teen-agers much better than young people usually do. (Teen-age girls usually are best portrayed by women past 25.)

All members of the cast played well. The actors are Betty Bolton, Johnson, Rosalie (She gives no last name), Donna Di Loreto, Lisa Fairbanks, Naomi, Russell Carthy, Ken Nelson, Frances Brand, Fred Cole. The director is Gerald Irvine.

HOMER JOHNSON in the role of the father, cheers football playing daughter (Naomi Collins) in Time Out for Ginger, current attraction at the Community Playhouse.

Revere ride rerun

NEW YORK (AP) — A replay of Paul Revere's OTHER ride — not the famous midnight one — will be staged next month in five states as part of the American Revolution Bicentennial observance.

The rerun will mark the 200th anniversary of Revere's 319-mile dash from Milton, Mass., to Philadelphia, on Sept. 11 to 16, 1774, with copies of the "Suffolk Resolves" for the Continental Congress.

The event is being re-staged by the North American Trail Ride Conference with the financial support of the Grand Circuit of Harness Racing and the U.S. Trotting Association.

Horse lovers, harness fans and history buffs alike are reminded that Paul Revere saddled up a Narragansett pacer for what might be called the "Run for the Resolves."

He galloped down the old Boston Post Road for six days to safely deliver a set of 19 unanimously adopted resolutions from a group of Suffolk County, Mass., communities to the Congress, which adopted them the next day.

Relays of latter-day riders from six organizations will take seven days for the ride Revere made in six, beginning with the Massachusetts Horsemen's Council at Milton, Mass., on Sept. 8.

Replicas of the "Resolves" will be turned over next to the Connecticut Horse Council, the Horse Guard of the Governor of Connecticut, the Empire State Horsemen's Association, the New Jersey Horse Council and the Pennsylvania Equine Council.

Anthony Newley — a Quilp to outdo Fagin

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON (UPI) — "Please Mr. Dickens," they sobbed, "don't let her die."

The good citizens of Victorian London took their newspaper and magazine serials hard and the latest one, "The Old Curiosity Shop," was wringing every heart from battered Bermondsey to Buckingham Palace.

On his daily stroll around London, Mr. Dickens was accustomed to comments from his readers but the public seemed to be suffering along with Little Nell more acutely than with any of his other characters.

"No one worrying about Quilp though," said Anthony Newley the other day, very tongue in cheek. "A century ago Londoners were obviously afflicted by a confusion of standards. They were weeping about an improvident old man and his granddaughter and hissing a man with a solid bank account simply because he was seeking the return of a loan."

DICKENS, so the story goes, declined to lift his pen to save Little Nell — she was doomed by the inevitability of his plot.

But Newley has just written and performed the first musical score ever put to "The Old Curiosity Shop" and he admitted on the set of the film version that he was tempted to give the villain Quilp a better shake lyrically than he had in the immortal prose of the master.

"The feeling soon passed," Newley said. "Since I was also playing the title role of Quilp, I decided to play him a hundred times worse than Fagin. Come to think of it, what other way is there?"

Who ever heard of a sympathetic usurer? I foreclose on the Old Curiosity Shop which Little Nell's grandfather loses gambling and I threaten to put the old man into the workhouse.

"As you may know Little Nell dies of exhaustion in the most famous death scene since Little Eva in 'Uncle Tom's Cabin.' And since there must be retribution — I drown."

WITH this brief précis of the most sentimental of Dickens' works, Newley turned to discuss his own rather remarkable career.

It began more than 25 years ago on that very set and in that very studio and in a Dickens role as well — the artful dodger in "Oliver Twist."

"I was 14," he said, "and when I came into Pinewood the other day and walked on the same sound stage it smelled just as it had when I was a boy. So much has happened to me since then — actor, pop singer, composer, cabaret artist, marriage, divorce and so on."

He might have added stage star as well as screen star and co-author of the book as well as the score of "Stop the World I Want To Get Off," "The Roar of the Greasepaint, The Smell of The Crowd" and "The Good Old Bad Old Days." His list of important songs included "What Kind of Fool Am I?" "Who Can I Turn To?" "On A Wonderful Day Like Today," "I'm Gonna Build A Mountain," "Once In A Lifetime," "Candy Man."

ALAN BATES in
KING OF HEARTS

In an isolated surreal pocket of World War I, the British send Alan Bates into a highly unlikely, tiny French town to discover a bomb. The townspeople have fled and the inmates of the local asylum have taken their place. The resulting interaction gives us some of the most enchanting sequences on film. When the reality of the returning armies breaks the bubble and the inmates have returned to the asylum, we can really share Bates' confusion about which people are really insane. In our opinion, KING OF HEARTS is a rare treat, funny and sad at the same time.

This wacky, beautiful film has awakened, become a giant, and turned the movie world upside down.

There is one reason for this phenomenon: people love the King.

YOUR HOROSCOPE
by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today finds you in transition toward a more diversified life style, added responsibilities and special ways of carrying them. This year, you learn to cope with obstacles, you can do something about, work around those you can't. Relationships are heavy going, deserve tenderest care. Today's natives have a natural talent for entertainment, are happy-go-lucky.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Select work on available information, requiring no cooperation. That way you carry more responsibility with less error. Great care with anything mechanical.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Financial moves are at best precarious; facts, incomplete. If you are selling, ask a stiff price. Seek advice, make requests late in day. A new contact is important.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Take another's vantage point. Let others lead; see where they need. You gain in the long run by sacrificing now for group welfare.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Check information openly and without fuss. News from distant people is indirectly pertinent to your next move. Make a strong sales pitch for what you want.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Mixed influences prevail. Success in work depends more on quality than quantity. Be conservative with money. Communications open late in the day—make notes as you go.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The week begins heavily. Buckle down to serious effort at once; tolerate the slow pace of those with whom you share burdens. Cultivate a sense of humor.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Deal with theoretical or technical, rather than personal matters. Don't let your impatience stir up trouble. Conserve energy, pause for rest instead of slowing down.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Anything you do is apt to result in argument. Use your head! You can manage to sidestep any issue. Evening mood is ripe for a rash move; O.K. as long as no money is involved.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are misunderstood all around. Partners won't go along with your schemes without considerable discussion. Marital, romantic expression calls for exceptional tact.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A day for staying at home or nearby rather than traveling. Electrical and mechanical equipment needs care, perhaps maintenance. Locate yourself in your work; and work moderately.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Teaming up for joint purchases or other shared ventures gets you into a difficult spot. Technical matters require sound advisors rather than trying to do it all yourself.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Everybody at work is spoiling for a squabble today. Put off your own pet proposals, do what you can to keep peace. You are due for recognition, praise in later hours.

Trevino leads Nicklaus by stroke

Wild PGA scramble

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — They're playing the PGA Championship this year on a public course that used to be a tobacco baron's estate.

It may not exactly seem like a memorable setting for one of the sport's greatest finishes, but that's exactly what is likely to happen today when two guys who have won more than $3 million whacking the little white ball fight for the title.

Lee Trevino leads. Jack Nicklaus trails by one.

Sure, there are others in the chase—a total of 10 players between Trevino's three-under-par 207 score and even-par of 210—but how can you think about anyone else when Trevino is first and Nicklaus is second?

You only have to think back as recently as the 1971 U.S. Open at Ardmore, Pa., where they got into a playoff. Trevino greeted Nicklaus on the first tee by pulling a rubber snake from his golf bag and throwing it at Jack. Lee won the playoff. Or the 1972 British Open when Trevino chipped in three times and holed a bunker shot to beat Nicklaus by a single stroke and ruin his bid for the Grand Slam.

The PGA, however, is a tournament Trevino never has won. He let it be known after Saturday's two-under-par 68 that he wants it, and now.

"I'll be shooting for broke tomorrow (Sunday)," said Trevino, a two-time winner of both the U.S. and British Opens. "I may shoot 80 and I may shoot 65, but I'm going for broke."

Never better than 11th in the PGA, Trevino started Saturday's third round in sixth place, four shots behind pace-setter Johnnie Walker.

He moved into a tie for the lead on two different occasions, but never held it alone until the final hole when he put his approach shot just four feet from the cup and rammed home the go-ahead birdie putt.

Nicklaus, who has not been a real factor in the

One-legged Yeager shoots down Cards

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—Steve Yeager was soaking his injured leg in the bathtub the other evening when the call came to his hotel room from Al Campanis, the Dodger vice president.

"Listen," Campanis said urgently, "tell me the truth. Can you catch on that bad leg or do I call up someone else? I want the truth, too."

"I can catch," replied Yeager. "The leg feels fine."

What Yeager didn't tell his boss was that he was probably biting a towel, the leg hurt so badly.

But Saturday night, as the Dodgers spilled the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2, to end a three-game skid and retain a 5 1/2-game jump on Cincinnati in the

BODGER OF DAY

JIM WYNN slugged two-run homer in 6-2 victory over Cardinals.

"There was no way I was going to say I couldn't play," Yeager, a fiery, free spirit, had just finished playing probably his finest game as a Dodger catcher—better, though not as dramatic as last Monday's game when his grand-slam home run beat the Reds.

All Yeager did, before 45,293 fans in Busch Stadium was:

• Throw out Lou Brock, the game's most dangerous baserunner who was trying to steal at a critical stage in the seventh inning.

• Pick Reggie Smith off first base, foiling a third-inning rally.

• Pop two hits in four times at the plate.

• And, pulled muscle and all, crash heavily into St. Louis shortstop Jerry DaVanon in the sixth inning to break up a double play.

Jimmy Wynn sparked the Dodger attack against four St. Louis pitchers, including 38-year-old Bob Gibson. The Cannon rifled a two-run homer in the first inning, stole two bases, was on base four times and also threw out Brock at the plate.

The game was a splendid testimony to Campanis' wizardry during the off-season, when he traded away lefthanded pitcher Claude Osteen for Wynn, a move that also

L.B. Grand Prix proposed for '76

By ALLEN WOLFE
Staff Writer

On May 26 of this year, a carnival crowd of nearly 150,000 lined hotel balconies, narrow boulevards and in some instances perched on palm trees to witness the Monte Carlo Grand Prix in the tiny European principality of Monaco.

The Formula 1 race remains today, much like it did 40 years ago, unique and individual in the world of motorsports—the last vestige of a bygone era when all such events were held on public streets and thoroughfares.

Yes, Monaco stands alone in this respect—a single bastion against the so-called progress of "text book race tracks" formulated in the mind of an architect and transformed into reality by an army of earth movers and cement.

But will Monaco stand alone for long? Not if four men take a step into the past and simultaneously project the city of Long Beach into the future as one of auto racing's major international capitals.

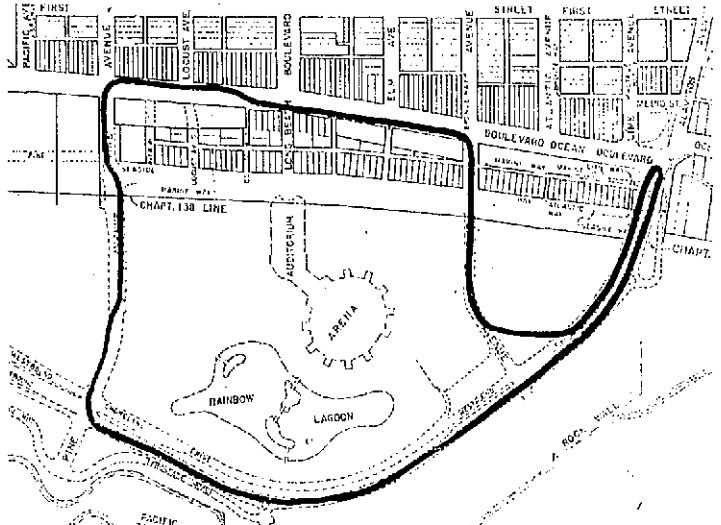

The American Grand Prix at Long Beach, a fully-sanctioned international Formula 1 Grand Prix, to be run over a 1.8-mile road course circling the Long Beach Arena and Auditorium complex, is the ultimate goal of race organizers. If it blossoms into reality, the race will be held in April, 1976, to coincide with the Bicentennial celebrations across the United States commemorating America's 200th year of independence.

The road from interesting idea to realization begins this week when Cameron Argetsinger, executive director of the Sports Car Club of America, makes a formal proposal before the executive board of the Automobile Competition Committee for the United States, meeting in Washington, D.C., beginning Monday through Wednesday. Argetsinger is expected to be joined by Gurney at the time of the presentation.

IF ENDORSED, which it is fully expected to be, another similar proposal will be drafted and submitted to the Commission Sportive Internationale, competition body of the world's motorsports governing body, the Federation Internationale de L'Automobile (FIA), which convenes in Monza, Italy, in early October.

If the sanction is granted and placed on the international Formula 1 calendar for 1976, the American Grand Prix at Long Beach would immediately become one of the world's top motorsports attractions, perhaps in time equalling the stature of the Indianapolis 500 or the 24 Hours of Le Mans.

In addition, the United States would become the first country to host two internationally-sanctioned Formula 1 events counting toward the world's drivers championship in the same year. For many years, the FIA has maintained a steadfast policy—one

THE FOUR principal men involved in the project are Dan Gurney, former Grand Prix driving great and now president of All-American Racers, Inc., in Santa Ana, builders of USAC Championship and Formula 1-Formula 5,000 cars; Les Richter, former all pro linebacker with the Rams and currently president of Riverside International Raceway; Christopher Pook, president of Western Travel Promotions and Marketing, Inc., in Long Beach, and founder of the concept of the American Grand Prix at Long Beach, and Don Dyer, partner in the Long Beach law firm of Riedman, Dalessi, Deukmejian, Woods & Dyer.

Although still very much in the formulation stage, preliminary plans call for a base and contingency purse of $175,000 to $225,000. Another $400,000 to $500,000 would be needed to underwrite the race with the majority of the money being earmarked for safety feasibility studies (some of which have already been conducted and approved), construction of the course including 20,000-feet of two-tiered Armo barrier, promotion and publicity and the transportation of cars and drivers from European-based cities via air freight carriers.

The start-finish line of the proposed 1.8-mile course would be Ocean Blvd. near the intersection of Long Beach Blvd. From there, the cars would progress south in a clockwise orientation toward Linden Ave., where they would negotiate a hard right-hand turn. They would then race over sections of Linden Ave., take a 180-degree hairpin onto Shoreline Drive and continue on this section—a sweeping high-speed straightaway—until encountering a right turn at the foot of Pine Ave. They would then head up toward Ocean Blvd. for the return to start-finish, having completely circled the Long Beach Arena, Auditorium and Rainbow Lagoon.

country, one race. Since 1961, the United States Grand Prix has been held at Watkins Glen, N.Y., approximately 120 miles from Rochester.

The last time the hybrid open-cockpit, open-wheeled, single-seat machines raced in Southern California was during the Quaker Grand Prix, a non-championship Formula 1-Formula A event held in March, 1971, at Ontario Motor Speedway. Before the U.S. Grand Prix was moved to Watkins Glen in 1961, the race was held one time only—in 1960—at Riverside International Raceway with the legendary Stirling Moss of Great Britain driving a Lotus-Climax to victory.

"There were two major considerations that prompted me to get into this," says race originator Pook. "First, within the last year the FIA in Paris has reassessed its position with regard to the United States hosting more than one Formula 1 race. I can only think they finally saw the obvious merit of tapping the rich Los Angeles-area market. It's one of the richest in the world, without a doubt."

"Secondly, Long Beach, in my estimation, would provide one of the most dramatic backdrops for such an event. Can you imagine ABC Wide World of Sports or some other network televising it to 80 million people around the world with the International Towers, the Pacific Ocean and the Queen Mary for background. It's just one fantastic natural setting—and no other city on the Pacific Coast has this rare combination to offer."

ATTORNEY Don Dyer, active in Long Beach community affairs for 15 years and current president of the 49er Foundation at Long Beach State University, believes the race and its far-reaching prospects could have a profound effect on the future economic status of the city.

Seven-hit winner, 2-1 Remember Rudy May? Angels certainly do

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

The bright lights of Broadway and Times Square...elegant restaurants...lively night spots populated by the Beautiful People...in a nutshell, Fun City, U.S.A. "Hell," says Rudy May, "I didn't want to go to New York but I gotta pitch."

And pitching was something May wasn't doing a lot of with the Angels this year. So, on June 15, he found himself bound for New York after the Yankees dangled $75,000 under Harry Dalton's nose and purchased the 30-year-old southpaw.

On Saturday night at Anaheim Stadium, before a Helmet Night throng of 28,534, Rudy May went out to oppose his former teammates for the first time.

He checked the Angels on seven hits, the only run he gave up was unearned and he was the winning pitcher as the Yanks shaded the Angels, 2-1.

The smile that creased May's face in the aftermath of victory was the smile of deep satisfaction.

Asked what this game meant to him, May replied poignantly, "Everything in the world."

"I wanted to beat the club. I played with for so many years," May said. "I didn't have real good stuff because I was so nervous about pitching against the Angels. I didn't sleep real well last night."

May explained his frustration and inactivity with the Angels earlier this season.

"I wasn't pitching because I wasn't effective and I wasn't effective because I was uptight. It's hard to pitch well for a manager who doesn't have confidence in you."

That manager was Bobby Winkles who watched May suffer through a 7-17 season last year. Now Winkles is gone but so is May.

"I can't blame Harry (Dalton)," May said. "He did everything he could."

His new manager, Bill Virdon, has exhibited nothing but faith in May but only because his new left-hander has given him sufficient reason.

He has completed five of his six Yankee starts with a seven-hitter, a six-hitter, two four-hitters and a two-hitter. His record with New York is 4-1.

The Yankees scored the winning run on Ellic Rodriguez's throwing error in the seventh inning to burden Andy Hassler with his seventh loss in nine decisions.

Hassler actually out-pitched May, restricting the Yanks to four hits while striking out eight. He was the second Angel pitcher to lose a low-hit effort in the past four days.

On Thursday in Chicago, Nolan Ryan lost a three-hitter to the White Sox, 2-1, after hurling no-hit ball for 8½ innings.

Craig Nettles opened the seventh with a walk, was sacrificed to second and took third on Hassler's wild pitch. When Rodriguez retrieved the ball he attempted to nail Nettles at third but his throw sailed into the outfield and Nettles pranced home.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead in the third on a walk to Denny Doyle, Rudy Meoli's infield hit and Sandy Alomar's throwing error on a botched double play on which Alomar's relay wound up in the Yankee dugout.

A blooper double by Lou Piniella and Thurman Munson's clean single got New York even in the fourth.

And the rest of the night belonged to Rudy May.

MONTEREY (Special) — Pete Tereschuk faced only 18 batters in five innings as the Great Western Cardinals of Long Beach enjoyed another one-sided victory Saturday in the Connie Mack Regional championships here, defeating Beattie Ford of Monterey, 11-0.

Tereschuk surrendered only four hits while striking out nine in a game shortened by an eight-run difference rule. Friday, the Cardinals, who are the defending national champions, had ripped British Columbia, 15-4.

As the tournament's only undefeated team, the Cardinals advanced to today's finals.

Don Zimmerman, Kelly Mills, Doug Stokke and Dale Waters were the leading batters Saturday. Zimmerman had three hits in four at-bats, Mills, Stokke and Waters were all 2-for-3.

RAMS LOSE—

"We just made too many mistakes tonight," said Ram coach Chuck Knox, who had been under personal duress since his mother's stroke 10 days ago. "We had the opportunities, but we weren't able to put them together."

Morton's 5-yard flare pass to veteran running back Walt Garrison with 5:50 to play settled it.

A source said that "five or six thousand" ticket holders had requested refunds, and by halftime a few more must have wished they had, too.

A Ram defense led by middle linebacker Jim Youngblood, bidding for Jack Reynolds' job, dominated the game. Hadl and Staubach, both in camp only a week, worked the first quarter and couldn't turn up a touchdown between them.

Staubach, despite help from the left side of his regular offensive line—Ralph Neely, John Niland and center Dave Manders—couldn't produce any points, while Hadl managed to put the Rams on top on a 22-yard field goal by rookie Bob Thomas.

Hadl, 1973's all-pro quarterback, didn't throw a pass until his third series, which started on the 50-yard line after tackle Bill Nelson sacked Staubach for an eight-yard loss.

On third down, Hadl looked right to Ananian Carson, then passed left to Rob Scribner for 17 yards. A 16-yard completion to Lance Rentzel—his first reception in two years, drawing appreciative applause—reached the six-yard line and, after former UCLA linebacker Cal Peterson stopped Scribner on third down, Thomas made it 3-0 Rams, Steve Preece holding.

That drive actually overlapped into the second quarter, and when Ron Jaworski, who led last week's 24-21 win over Cleveland, took over on the Rams' next possession, it looked like he still had the touch.

Following Marv Bateman's 15-yard pop-up punt or Dallas, Jaworski, again favoring his backs as receivers, took the Rams from their own 40 to Dallas' 12 on an eight-yard jump pass to Cappelletti, a seven-yard pitch to Scribner and a swing toss to Cappelletti good for 13 yards. But then he went to light end Terry Nelson at the goal line and, hit from behind by Bob Prout, juggled the ball into Prout's hands.

Prout's 24-yard return launched the Cowboys' first scoring drive. Morton passed 40 yards to William Houston and got a break when his interception to the Rams' Bill Drake was turned into a 15-yard gain by a personal foul against the Rams.

Cappelletti's 29-yard burst off tackle—the Heisman Trophy winner ran right past the NFL's No. 1 draftee, Ed (Too Tall) Jones, who took himself out of the play with a

Miami blitzes Saints, 45-20

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins rested most of their 34 strike-breaking veterans Saturday night but still rolled to a 45-20 National Football League exhibition victory over New Orleans Saints rookies behind two long touchdown punt returns by Charlie Thomas.

The crowd of 41,524 that watched the Orange Bowl game boomed loudly when a public announcer reported in the second half that Washington negotiations to end the players' strike had broken up with no settlement in sight.

The Saints, with only 10 veterans dressed for the game, fell behind 7-0 on the fourth play of the game when Thomas, a free agent from Tennessee State, raced 66 yards down the sideline on a punt return.

Thomas came back with a 90-yard punt runback for another Dolphins score in the fourth quarter.

The Dolphins started only four regulars from their two-time Super Bowl championship team but made heavy use of several backup performers.

Raiders subdue Falcons

BERKELEY (UPI) — Rookies Larry Lawrence and Harold Hart figured in four touchdowns Saturday to lead the Oakland Raiders to a 28-16 preseason win over the Atlanta Falcons before a crowd of 34,319.

Hart, a running back from Texas Southern, scored the first two Raider touchdowns on runs of 20 and 11 yards.

Both scores were set up by passes from first-string quarterback Ken Stabler who played only the first quarter during which he completed nine of 11 for 111 yards.

Lawrence, a free agent from Iowa, passed 18 yards to Kent Gaudyos for one TD and then ran seven yards for the final Oakland tally of the day.

The former bear wrestler from Tennessee Tech wasn't so sure.

"Really, I'm not pleased at all," he said. "If we'd won I'd feel better, but I remember all the mental errors I made and nothing makes up for it."

"I worked hard all week in practice and thought I had it down, but when they start shifting my mind's a blank."

Cappelletti, modest as always, said, "It was a good game for me but I had a lot of holes up front. Anybody could have run through them."

Rentzel was probably the happiest Ram, for good reason. He acknowledged the crowd's applause.

"That was terrific. I only caught a 6-yard pass. I just can't tell you how nice it was."

Earlier, the Eagles, who started 15 rookies, stunned the Bengals with a three-touchdown explosion in the last two minutes of the first half.

With the Bengals trailing 21-14 at halftime, Clark replaced veteran Ken Anderson and connected on a 44-yard pass play to rookie Richard Williams on the fifth play of the third quarter.

Minnesota no match for Denver

DENVER (AP) — Rookie running backs Jon Keyworth and Jimmie Jones ripped the Minnesota defense for nearly 250 yards rushing to spark the Denver Broncos to a 27-21 victory over the Vikings in exhibition competition Saturday night.

Neither the Broncos nor Vikings have any established veterans in camp.

Keyworth, a 6-3, 230-pounder who played seven positions at Colorado, carried 28 times for 148 yards and scored two touchdowns.

Jones, who played behind Kermit Johnson at UCLA and was a World Football League cut by the Southern California Sun, churned out 97 yards on 16 carries and had one touchdown.

There's no room for fear when Gary Scow reaches 190-mph mark at Stadium.

Among mortals that lead commonplace lives are those that object to loud noises and are excited only by the prospect of sleeping late on a weekend morning.

To meet the dawn, if not one's Maker, is what life is all about, say the poets. But chances are that Gary Scow's East Long Beach neighbors would be less than poetic if they knew more about the quiet young man behind the metal-framed glasses who lives in the cozy backyard cottage with his pretty wife Tina and pretty much minds his own business.

Scow's business is responsible for the cacophony that pins ears to walls anytime the drag boats gather at nearby Marine Stadium, as they will next Friday, Saturday and Sunday for the 11th annual National Championships.

To his neighbors it is noise; to Gary Scow it is music.

"I used to ride my bicycle down to Marine Stadium when I was a kid," says Gary. "I'd sneak my sister's camera out of the house and go down and take pictures of all the boats and just watch."

FROM WATCHING to driving was not a simple transition. Scow explains that he got into racing the way most people get out—through a serious accident.

'Sam' proving golfers' vision is perfect 20-20

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP)—Pro golfers are smashers, not mashers, says Sam, the golden-tressed, mid-skirted sheriff's deputy.

"I haven't been pinched once," Sam says. "A guy thinks twice before pinching a girl wearing a gun." Sam's square name is Evelyn Owens. As a Forsyth County, N.C., deputy sheriff, her job this weekend has been to guard the contestants' door at Tanglewood, site of the 56th PGA Golf Championship.

As Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and others stride from the Tanglewood lobby, past the dining room and into the locker room, they blink twice. If they have 20-20 vision, they may blink a half-dozen times.

There stands Sam in police brown, a .38-Colt Cobra hanging on her right hip, a black aerosol can of mace and handcuffs dangling from a wide leather belt.

"Sure, I can use it," Sam says of the revolver. "I had to go through training like everybody else."

Evelyn, named Sam by her fellow officers, is the estranged wife of another deputy. She has been on the force a little more than a year. She was in the wings at a bank robbery shootout and once she was part of a posse tracking down a convicted murderer.

"THIS HAS BEEN a pleasant assignment this week," she says. "All I have to do is check credentials at the door. I don't know anything about golf. But I've learned a lot about golfers."

Sam, 29, brown-eyed, fair-skinned with blonde hair that falls almost down to her pistol, says she has found most golfers perfect gentlemen.

"Some of them kid me when they come by," she says. "They point a finger at me and say 'Bang, bang'. They all seemed intrigued by my gun. I haven't had to use it yet."

"One asked me for my telephone number. A few have asked me out to dinner. I have no personal objections to it. I just haven't had a chance to accept."

She can shoot, too

Evelyn (Sam) Owens is deputy sheriff in Forsyth County, N.C., and instead of chasing robbers this week, she's been guarding contestants' locker room during PGA Championship at Tanglewood Golf Club. No one has tested her accuracy with .38-Colt Cobra on her hip.

"My father had a service station out in Bellflower and a kid who lived behind it had an old '55 Chevy that he raced at the drags. After going out with him for about a year I was in a traffic accident. About nine months later I got a settlement, took the money and instantly blew it on that car so I could become part of it myself."

Soon Scow joined up with Gary Gabelich, who was driving a funny car for Beach City Chevrolet.

"I was just the gopher for the team," Scow says, "but at the same time Gary was racing boats and he got me very interested in that. When I finally got a chance to start driving them, Gary had a lot to do with it."

THE LIVES of Scow and Gabelich, both Long Beach lads, are intertwined.

"But as close as we've been," Scow says, "we've never competed against each other. Gary's a very different person. There's no else in the world like him. He touches an ultimate that nobody else does."

Scow was at Bonneville four years ago when Gabelich set the world landspeed record of 622 mph.

"At the time I was driving a funny car on tour back East," says Scow, "but I quit that to be with Gary and help with the Blue Flame."

'Embarrassed' by national wins Girl rowers eye World title

Seven Long Beach lasses who won so many events in the National Sculling Championships last June they were "kind of embarrassed", are en route to Lucerne, Switzerland, today to take part in their sport's biggest show of all, the World Rowing Championships.

Better than the actual competition, maybe, says Karen McCloskey, will be the fact that when they get to Switzerland the girls will have a brand new shell awaiting them, a far cry indeed from the "tub" they usually use on Alamitos Bay.

Six of the seven Long Beach Rowing Assn. members earned the right to participate in the world event (it starts Aug. 28) by finishing among the top eight on Lake Merritt (Oakland) in the nationals. The seventh, Irene Moreno, 21, is the coxswain, who wouldn't be Switzerland-bound unless her teammates had dominated the Oakland affair so decisively.

ALL BUT ONE of the girls attend Long Beach State. The other, Kim Fletcher, has nothing against Dr. Stephen Horn's institution, it's simply that she's only 15 and still attending Wilson High.

Ace of the star-studded shellers is Joan Lind, 21, women's national sculling champion who will represent Long Beach in singles in Switzerland.

Heide Hartman, 23, will be in the doubles, with Lisa Hansen, 20; Jane Loomis, 21, and Karen, 23, in the quad event and Kim serving as alternate.

When the Long Beach girls landed in London a few days ago, they were joined by Diane Braceland, 24, of Philadelphia's famed Vesper Club, who trained with them during the summer and will be the fourth member of the quad crew. Also joining them was Heidi's world doubles partner, Gail Pierson of the Cambridge Club in Boston. Gail is a comparatively ancient 34, but she's also a professor of economics at MIT so obviously must have the "valuable experience" football coaches always are talking about.

THE LONG BEACH ROWERS needed $10,000 for the European trip and got it one way and another.

"Some of the clubs like Vesper, Lake Merritt and Cambridge have a lot of financial support all year-round and don't have the problem raising money like we do," sighed Karen. "We got some of the $10,000 by baking cakes and raffling handmade quilts, but our biggest help was from the City of Long Beach, which really gave us a chunk of money. Some money came from the U. S. Olympic Committee and we really got a windfall from the National Rowing Foundation."

"The Foundation set very rigid time standards and if we matched them, we'd get some money. We matched them okay, but it was really hard."

UNLIKE SWIMMERS AND GYMNASTS—Karen is one of the latter, too—Judy scullers don't usually indulge themselves in their sport at a tender age.

Karen has been rowing four and one-half years. Joan one year less, while Jane began two years ago then took a vacation last year before resuming the grind, and Lisa, Heidi and Kim are "veterans" of less than a year. Irene the coxswain coaxed the Long Beach State men's lightweight crew before joining her girl friends this year.

Karen got this whole show going in 1970 when she joined the LBRA Shell and Oar Club, something like a women's auxiliary.

"I was excited about rowing, but at that time it was a no-no for women," recalled Miss McCloskey. "One day I was down at the boathouse and met Melinda Collis, who had been taught a little rowing by some of the men rowers. She turned around and taught me, and before long Melinda and I were rowing together."

"The men suggested we enter the nationals that year and we did even though I'd been rowing only six weeks. We didn't do so well, though, but it was a start."

"Tom McKibbin (a world champion and member of two Olympic rowing teams) admired our enthusiasm and began coaching us and a few other girls who joined us, and he's still helping us today. Most of the Long Beach Rowing Assn. members are recreational rowers, so it's hard for us to find someone like Tom who'll spend the time instructing us."

"It's not like that with the Vesper and Merritt Clubs, which have coaches coming out their ears."

Roar of drag boats music to Scow's ears

"To go that fast that quick excites me. It's you and God in that boat, and you're just hanging on with your hands and feet." — Gary Scow.

RICH ROBERTS

Scow also was with Gabelich two years ago when the latter almost killed himself in an experimental funny car at Orange County Raceway.

"I helped build that car," Scow says. "I'd worked on it for a year-and-a-half."

Next weekend Gabelich returns to drag boat racing—he was the first man to exceed 200 mph—to drive the new Shock Wave boat. The old Shock Wave perished last June 30 at Oakland, taking driver Mac Christensen with it.

"Mac was a very close friend," says Scow. "We conversed on the phone a lot and I used to take his daughter out."

BUT SCOW considers the accidents of his friends as "just bad things that happened."

"It's part of it. You have to accept it." In fact, Scow says the flirtation with danger is a large part of the motivation.

"First, it's the acceleration more than the speed. Anybody can go that fast, but to go that fast that quick excites me. That's where the thrill is."

"The danger is a big part of it. You have to work yourself up every time, for every run, mentally and physically. Once you get closer to 200, it's easier. Not many people have done it. I was the sixth."

Tripping out

HOW DID THE MEN REACT when the gals invaded their domain?

"Oh, the guys took to us very well," beamed Karen. "They always gave us a lot of support. It's so different from other clubs where everyone's fighting one another and there's a million petty jealousies. We have a nice closeness, support one another and don't quibble on dumb things."

Karen feels the highlight of women's rowing in Long Beach took place in the June nationals.

"We had 12 girls entered and won the overall point trophy," said the 49er femme. "Lake Merritt had 40, but we just kept winning almost everything we entered. We were kind of embarrassed we won so often."

"But it showed that Long Beach is coming to be known in the United States as THE sculling center of the country for women. Lisa Hansen was so impressed with our program, for example, she came from another part of the country to row with us this year."

KAREN CAN'T WAIT TO REACH SWITZERLAND—the girls have one stop first in Hanover, Germany for the famed Hanover International Regatta—to try out that new shell.

"It's a brand new lightweight quad boat made for women," she bubbled. "It's not like the tub we use on Alamitos Bay that was built for 200-pound men. Unfortunately, though, the boat will stay in Europe."

"Our regular boat was built in Washington, and it's heavy and not streamlined for women. The European boat is built for smaller people, like women. The 40-pound weight difference is a great deal. It's a struggle for us to lift up our boat every day."

"We never take our boats to Europe (the Long Beach girls were there in 1972 and '73 for the European Championships) because the expense is so great. I don't know why the best boats are built in Europe, but they are."

"It might be a help to us, though, after practicing in our big boat to get into the streamlined shell. I'm ready to get out of our tub right now."

PETE ARCHER, who has been around Long Beach swimmers and rowers for over 40 years, is the biggest booster of Karen's gang. Now a Recreation Dept. employee, Archer is No. 1 man at the boathouse ("I even repair canoes if they need repair").

"Man, do those girls work!" enthused Archer. "They're in the water three different times a day, then they have daily weightlifting at Long Beach State, run up and down hills, and they all ride bicycles. It's brutal."

Apprised of Pete's comment, Karen replied: "He helps us a lot and always has a warm smile. He's sweet."

It'll be even sweeter when Karen and her friends finally get in that spanking new European shell. The "tub" on Alamitos Bay will never seem the same.

Scow concedes that the chances of surviving an accident in a race car are better than in a boat. There is a third dimension to consider: depth. That's why boat racers don't wear safety belts.

"It's you and God in that seat," says Scow. "and you're just hanging on with your hands and feet. I love it. There's nothing greater. I wouldn't quit for anything."

RACING DRAG BOATS is the primary vocation of Gary Glenn Scow, 28, and there isn't a lot of money in it.

"I enjoy doing just this," he says. "Oh, I work part-time as a bartender, and I'm about ready to get back into sportfishing. I used to be a deckhand when Pierpoint Landing was doing its thing."

"I have been fortunate this year to get money up front—a guarantee whether the boat wins or loses or whatever."

"Whatever" has happened to Scow only twice in his three years at the game. Recently his boat The Beast, owned by boat builder Harold Kindsvater, sank in the Mississippi River but was recovered in a 10-day salvage operation. A year ago Scow cracked up at Marine Stadium.

"They estimated that I crashed at between 180 and 190 mph," he says. "I walked away from it."

It is suggested, then, that Gary Scow is able to walk on water.

He laughs. "No, just lucky. I hit a bony and took about the whole left side of the boat off. I saw it but I thought I could get around it. The boat was on a fairly good run and I didn't want to shut it off."

"I thought if I did hit it, it wouldn't hurt anything because they're usually just styrofoam. The one I hit had a cement pole in the middle of it."

SCOW MET Tina, his bride of three weeks, at a drag boat meet in Oakland.

"I've always liked things that go fast," she says. No, she doesn't worry about Gary.

"He could get killed crossing the street," she reasons.

But Scow doesn't think his parents will be there next weekend.

"My mom and dad never have been to a race," he says. "I think my mom would go if I took her, but when I go, I go to race."

"My dad just doesn't like loud noise."

Ben wants only 'old Crenshaw' swing to return

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI)—Ben Crenshaw had them all fooled. All except one, that is.

He made it look so easy last year and everybody just knew he would be the next superstar after coming out of the University of Texas with three NCAA individual golf championships.

Nothing that Ben Crenshaw did last year dimmed anyone's opinion of him.

Crenshaw won his first tournament after earning his tournament player's card. He very nearly won another.

People called him the "new Nicklaus" or the "new Palmer."

If Ben Crenshaw had been a little less of a realist, he would have figured right then and there that he had it made. But the truth of the matter is that he kept his 21-year-old (he's now 22) head screwed on straight and these days he's thankful he did because the only thing he wants right now is to be the "old Crenshaw" again.

ENOUGH TO DRIVE YOU BATTY

LONDON (UPI)—Mushtaq Mohammad, a veteran of 35 test matches, and 22-year-old Wasim Raja came to Pakistan's rescue on a grim third day of the second cricket test match at Lord's.

Wasim, playing in his fifth test, came in at three o'clock when Pakistan was 77 for three wickets and needed 63 to make England bat again.

When the fourth rain interruption drove the players off for the final time shortly after six o'clock, the pair had scored a hard-earned 96 runs in two and a half hours and Pakistan, with 173 for three, led by 33 runs.

With Mushtaq not out 55 and the left-handed Raja not out 44 and plenty of batting to come, England may have a lot of scoring to do in their next inning.

BEN CRENSHAW
Learns to practice

It simply hasn't been as easy as it looked.

"I never thought it would be easy," says Crenshaw, whose earnings of $61,806 must be considered good by standards normally applied to rookies.

"My game," he went on, "is not anywhere close to where I would like it to be."

Crenshaw says his play improved every year through his teens but "this year, I don't feel like my game has improved that much."

Ben's critics think they know the reason for that. They say he doesn't practice enough, that his swing has flaws in it that never were evident before but have become more glaring in the week-to-week grind of the professional tour.

To a point, Crenshaw agrees.

"I think you have to learn how to practice and I haven't done that yet," he said while relaxing in the cramped Tanglewood locker room before practicing for the PGA Championship.

"I can go out now with some purpose in mind," Crenshaw said. "I used to go out and just hit balls quickly because I wanted to get out and play. I'm still not a good practitioner yet, but I'm gonna learn to be, though. I think you have to be. Practice is a lot more fun now."

How much is a WFL team worth?

Q. Tom Origer, owner of the Chicago Fire of the World Football League, says his franchise is worth more than $4 million. Of course, he can say it's worth anything he wants to say. Is there some basis for this or is it propaganda?—Elliott Vestal, Detroit.

A. If true, this makes the WFL the greatest investment since Coca-Cola sold for 10 cents a share. "Hot Line" happens to be privy to a franchise-sale negotiation — of one of the existing franchises — a bare month before the season kickoff. We have everything but the tapes on it. Our man was offered the franchise at the "bargain" price of $250,000. He said fine, and he would pay the fee by taking only half of the announced TV share, supposedly $100,000 a year per club, for the next five years. WFL commissioner Gary Davidson was the bargaining agent and he said, "Forget it. We are only interested in cash."

Q. Somewhere in my travels, dreams, imagination. I came up with this statement: When Bronko Nagurski was presented with a ring (Hall of Fame, all-America or whatever) the newsmen noted the fact that a standard-size golf ball would roll through it. Did I dream, or is it true?—H.F. Gardner, South Gate, Calif.

A. Nagurski's ring, presented to him at the Canton, Ohio, Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1967, is a size 19½. The jewelers, the famed Balfour Company, say it is the largest ring ever made in the U.S. It took them four years to construct it because they had no dies that size and new moulds kept shattering. As for the golf ball, if Bronko wanted a golf ball to go through there, it would.

Q. The story about the pro football players strike mentioned that Detroit players before World War I struck in support of Ty Cobb. That's all it said of the incident. Was Cobb a contract holdout?—Al Dabney, Boston.

A. In May, 1912 Cobb was suspended indefinitely for going into the stands and attacking a fan who had heckled him. The all-male audience in those days could get rough, and Cobb's teammates sided with him. A collection of semi-pros and college boys, not unlike the teams fielded by the WFL and NFL this summer, was hastily recruited by Detroit and lost to Philadelphia, 24-2. Cobb then appealed to his teammates to return to action and they did. He was reinstated 10 days later and fined $50. This led to the first union group in professional sports, "The Ballplayers Fraternity."

The fan claimed Cobb "hit me in the face with his fist, knocked me down, jumped on me, kicked me, spiked me and booted me behind the ear." Years later, Cobb was shown a yellowed clipping of the fan's complaint and he said, "I'm pleased to note that I didn't overlook any important punitive measures."

Q. I have the "NFL Record Book and Guide" and it is very handy settling any question about pro football. But with the baseball record books I get from "The Sporting News," I waste a lot of time trying to look things up. Do you know of a good baseball record book I could get?—James Scurry, Tampa.

A. The best we've found is a new one turned out by the Elias Sports Bureau, official statistician for major league baseball, the NFL, and the NBA. It's called "Book of Baseball Records." Get it by writing Elias, 11 West 42nd Street, New York, N.Y. 10036.

Sermon for today: Bad boat manners

Fishermen have to take the bad news with the good, the empty sacks with the full ones, but there are some things that they should not have to do when they pay high prices for trips on sportfishing boats.

This is the feeling of Fred M. Adam, 6371 Candel St., Long Beach, who has the courage to speak out against some practices that exist on some sportfishing boats which run out of Southern California landings.

There is not room to print all of Fred's letter, but I'd like to list the highlights; perhaps the listing may do some good for Fred in the future and for others who may have had the same problem.

Fred says that he is a once-a-month angler on some live-bait boat out of either local landings or others nearby and that he always felt that he had fun on fairly reasonable trips until just recently. Then, somewhere along the line, sportfishing landings and skippers started taking the word "sport" out of the business. Continuing, he says:

"I have been encountering an increasing number of young men on the boats, usually in their late teens who seem to be great friends of the captains and the boat crews. Their actions are causing increasing grumbling among the passengers. On occasions, this unrest erupts into loud words and threats by the passengers, but the captains and crew members ignore them.

"THE TWO MOST APPARENT problems involve the jackpot and rotation. Those young men seem to be both knowledgeable in their fishing skill and well equipped in their tackle, but nothing seems to shake them loose from the stern of the boat. If a passenger protests loudly enough, they simply step back and fish over his head or crowd out some person with a milder disposition. Women and children are their favorite targets.

"I have seen them swap duties with the deckhands, chumming and gaffing fish while the deckhands fish. I have seen them put big fish in an empty bait tank. Then in some manner, that fish gets into the jackpot and often wins."

Fred concludes with the advice that all ocean fishermen who have the same problem as he describes should boycott that landing, or landings, and go to some other area to fish. He is kind enough not to mention names but I, for one, know that such practices do occur on some boats.

I agree thoroughly with Fred that there are many skippers and landing operators who give the passenger a fair deal, whether the fishing be excellent or very poor.

There is another thing that customers should do if they are ignored by skippers and crews; go directly to the man who owns or leases the landing and place your case before him in as pleasant a way as possible.

ONCE AGAIN, LET ME remind you that California's dove season will begin on Sunday, Sept. 1, and not one day before, and the reason is that nobody can change the opening date—or at least push it forward—because of the international treaty that the United States has with Canada and Mexico.

The state will have a straight 30-day season on bandtailed pigeons, but the dove season will be 46 days, split with a 30-day season, then a later one of 16. The 30-day season runs from Sept. 1 through Sept. 30, with the other following, Nov. 23 through Dec. 8.

The limits will be the same as we had last year—10 doves per day, or 20 in possession, but after the opening day. The bandtail limit is eight per day and eight in possession.

EVER HEAR ABOUT a free catfish clinic? Well, the Department of Fish and Game has one scheduled for Puddingstone Reservoir near Pomona and San Dimas from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 22. If you are interested in how to catch, clean and cook catfish, put that date on your calendar right now, and save this column as it will not be repeated. Although the clinic is scheduled for only two hours, there will be a question-and-answer period immediately following.

Robert D. Montgomery, Southern California regional manager for the DFG with offices in Long Beach, said that he had no idea how many people will show up for the clinic, but that plans were being made for a large crowd.

"We know that there is considerable interest in catfish," he said. "In the past year we have received more than 10,000 requests for copies of a brochure on 21 ways to prepare catfish. Hundreds of those were accompanied by requests on where the catfish could be found, how to catch them, what bait to use and what kind of tackle. That is the primary reason for this clinic.

"Catfish represent a relatively untapped resource in California. We are planting nearly a million channel catfish a year, but the percentage of catchout is far less than our trout program."

To reach Puddingstone, turn off the San Bernardino Freeway at Ganesha Drive, go north a mile to Puddingstone Drive and turn left to the lake.

All this in common with our sister city

OUR SISTER city, Yokkaichi, Japan, is a thriving seaport with 230,000 people and a Long Beach oil rig on the lawn of its civic center.

Like Long Beach, it has industry, a forest of smoke stacks, shipping, air pollution, traffic congestion, an energy crisis and inflation. And it has the same relationship to the megapolis of Nagoya as we have to Los Angeles.

Yokkaichi also has many gracious and friendly people, a new civic center and a new library. Our most recent common denominator is the volunteer civic services of Bob Pierce, one of Long Beach's most productive natural resources.

As if he doesn't have enough to do in home port—what with the City Planning Commission, the Yacht Club, the Chamber of Commerce, Port Ambassadors, the St. Mary's Hospital executive board and his piano collecting—Pierce has taken on a book exchange project for our sister city.

THIS CAME about some months ago after Pierce, traveling in his capacity as president of the International Beauty Pageant (now being held in Japan), visited Yokkaichi's beautiful new library which, he discovered, has a Long Beach Room.

"It's a fabulous library," he said last week over his "usual"—a weight watcher's special at the Yacht Club.

"Symbolic of Japan's national paternalism, a supervised nursery and play area are provided for small fry so mom and dad can indulge in cultural pursuits while the city babysits.

"Everything—reference books, photographs, novels, records and tapes, historical documents and memorabilia—are beautifully filed and catalogued.

"And indicative of our close 11-year relationship with the gracious people of Yokkaichi is this spacious and handsomely decorated room set aside expressly to house books and mementoes from Long Beach."

Right now, it's pretty bare, he said. "There are pictures of visitations by local dignitaries and sister city exchange groups, a letter from Mayor Edwin Wade, a yearbook from the Yacht Club and Mac Epley's word-and-picture documentary commemorating Long Beach's 75th anniversary."

LONG BEACH'S Mr. Piano (even his desk is shaped like a grand piano) says he is currently getting together Long Beach News Bureau brochures and planning concepts published by the city to include in the collection.

But Pierce admits he is behind schedule and is soliciting help from the citizenry.

Yokkaichi, eager to get on with the book exchange, has already sent cartons of books—both in kanji (Japanese sanscript) and English—to City Librarian Frances Henselman. And we don't even have a new building to put them in yet!

Pierce is seeking help from the City Library, the Historical Society of Long Beach, docents of the two ranchos, organizations and individuals, noting that such contributors will be recognized, if desired, on the fly leaves of donated books.

Needed are sets of encyclopedias, books of Americana, Queen Mary and Long Beach memorabilia, children's books, English language books, films and cash.

They can be left at the City Library, any of the branch libraries, the Chamber of Commerce or Pierce's home, 1880 Termino Ave.

PIERCE, WHO spent three years fighting the Japanese in the Solomon Islands, believes books can accomplish a lot more than bombs in our quest for world peace.

It might also help in the war against a mutual enemy which has invaded us both—pollution.

Japan, which rose from the rubble of World War II to build itself into the world's third largest industrial power—also the most heavily polluted—is fast becoming its most environment-conscious nation. Survival demands it.

The country's high-density islands pack 107 million people into an area smaller than California, home of 21 million. So grave is the problem that diseases of pollution have come to be known by the names of Japanese cities.

Yokkaichi, for instance, is not only famous for oil refineries and other varied industries, but also for an affliction called Yokkaichi asthma. Some years ago citizens demonstrated to make companies put up higher smokestacks. Now the stacks are monitored electronically to show emission violations.

And, in Tokyo, electronic signs near the Ginza give air-pollution readings for sulphur dioxide and carbon monoxide.

Maybe, with an exchange of ideas, we can come to peace with our environment.

County vs. school districts

Dispute on training program nears end

By KATHY ESTELLE
Staff Writer

A dispute over control of a vocational training program between the Los Angeles County and local school districts is ending in favor of the county, thanks to some help from the 1964 Civil Rights Act, the state system of financing education and the celebrated Serrano decision.

The dispute concerns the Regional Occupational Program (ROP) set up under state law to insure that vocational training is available to all persons needing it, regardless of geographical area.

The program is open to anyone 16 and older.

The state education code says that either counties or two or more local districts may form ROPs. Any local districts which do so, however, must have the written approval of the county superintendent of schools.

In May, the Bellflower and Downey unified school districts applied for a joint powers agreement to set up an ROP. The county superintendent, Richard W. Clowes, turned them down. Lynwood and Paramount also had an application turned down.

The State Board of Education approved a countywide ROP in July. The program, which is being started in September, will include all four local districts, according to Dr. E. Maylon Drake, the county's assist and superintendent of education for instructional programs.

The superintendent's office cited possible violations of the Civil Rights Act and the Serrano decision, in which the State Supreme Court ruled that the present system of school finance is unconstitutional because it fails to provide equal educational opportunities for poor children.

The reason for citing these, according to Dr. Drake, is that allowing Bellflower and Downey or Lynwood and Paramount to form joint ROPs would geographically isolate Compton from the program.

Because children cannot cross district lines to join an ROP, one of the largest minority areas in the county would be discriminated against, Dr. Drake said.

Bellflower and Downey together would have only a 12 per cent minority group, he said, far lower than the county average of 41 per cent. The low figure, along with the geographical isolation of Compton, would invite suits under the Civil Rights Act and would violate the equal opportunity philosophy of the Serrano decision, Dr. Drake said.

The county also cited underfinancing and contended the county could provide a broader based program in refusing the Bellflower-Downey and Lynwood-Paramount applications.

The county could indeed pour more money into the program due to "a quirk in state law," according to Curtis Smith, administrative assistant to Bellflower Superintendent Richard Guenrich.

He said the district would re-

'Champs' get their kicks

Professor back to smog fight basics

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

Almost everybody talks about auto pollution these days, but few people actually do anything about it.

An exception is Dr. G. S. Samuelson, assistant professor of engineering at UC Irvine.

The doctor recently received a $28,000 grant from the Air Force to make a detailed study of "the why and how" of exhaust pollution from gas turbine engines.

The grant is for the first year of a proposed three-year study, although Dr. Samuelson says that, if it proves successful, it will probably be continued "possibly indefinitely."

The experiment involves setting up a gas turbine combustion chamber and then, by use of laser beams and a computer, studying and analyzing combustion characteristics inside the chamber.

"We're going back to the fundamentals of combustion to identify how pollutants are formed," Samuelson says.

"The computer will enable us to simulate the combustion process through mathematical process," he adds. "This will give us the flexibility to modify various designs without having to build several intermediate and very costly test engines."

The combustion chamber, with its laser attached, has been set in a laboratory on the fifth floor of the new Engineering Building on the Irvine campus. It consists of a long glass tube in which the gas, usually methane, is burned while the laser analyzes what is going on in the flame.

The data is then fed into the computer, which is located in the building next door.

Samuelson and the Air Force hope to learn enough about the formation of pollutants in gas turbine engines to be able to design a clean-burning one for the use in airplanes and power plants and possibly automobiles.

If the laser can locate and isolate "hot spots" and other areas of uneven burning in the chamber then the computer can be used to figure out the most efficient, meaning clean-burning, fuel to air ratio.

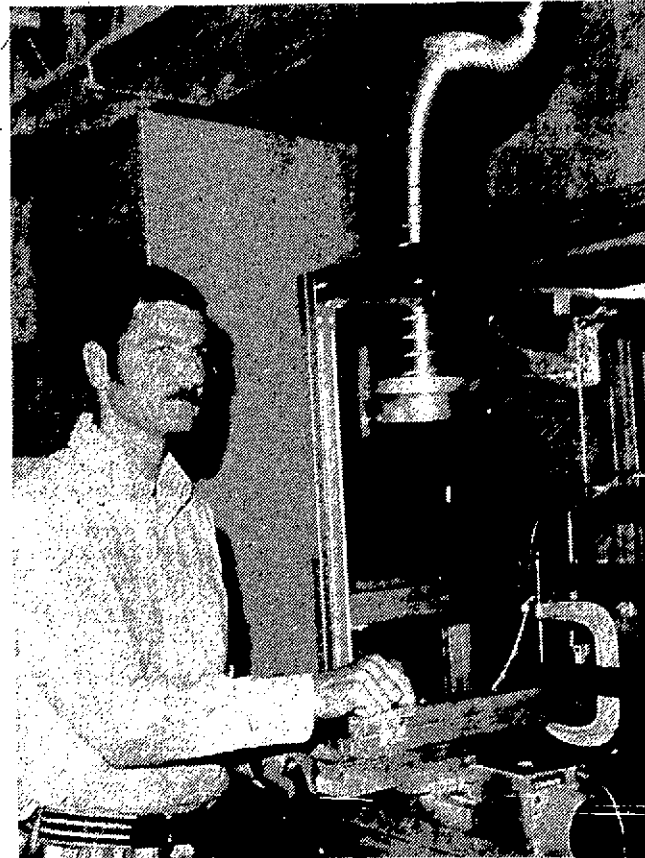

"This is a relatively new area of study that has started receiving much greater emphasis lately," Samuelson says. "The combustion chambers in use today were designed with very little concern for pollutant characteristics."

Now, he added, military and civilian jet aircraft account for most uses of gas turbine engines but some electric companies also use such engines to boost their energy output from one to two per cent during peak demand periods.

Although generally much cleaner than automobile piston engines, today's jet engines are responsible for one to two per cent of the air pollution in Southern California.

Samuelson's research also is supported by General Motors Corp., one of the automobile manufacturers now considering the gas turbine engine as a replacement for the piston engine.

"So we hope that our work here eventually will aid in cutting automobile pollution also," Samuelson says.

DOCTOR Samuelson of University of California, Irvine, examines test chamber in which he will attempt to determine what physical properties and reactions occur in the production of smog.

Resignation... and a pang of sorrow

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Richard M. Nixon had resigned—and Sheldon Beeson of Long Beach felt none of the bitter joy of some and more than a pang of sorrow.

Beeson is Nixon's cousin, a boyhood companion of the nation's 37th president.

At 57, he is a retired elementary school principal, a veteran of 33 years in the Long Beach schools.

When he heard Nixon was to speak Thursday night, Beeson knew what it meant, and began driving for Lindsay, a small town near Fresno.

He wanted to be with his 84-year-old mother Jane. She was Nixon's childhood piano teacher.

"It's an emotional matter," said Beeson in a telephone interview, "and it hurts all of us to hear people saying things we know are not true."

The calls had been coming in steadily since just after Nixon's historic speech, he said, most of them in favor of what the former president had done.

"He has our country's best interests at heart," Beeson remarked, "he resigned instead of fighting."

Nixon lived with the Beesons for a time when both were boys. His mother was in Arizona taking care of two critically ill brothers who ultimately died.

When asked how Nixon would react during a tragedy, Beeson called back a memory.

"I was with him when Arthur (an older brother) died," he said, "and the man just won't show any emotion in public. He likes to isolate himself, ponder, brood and collect his thoughts. He is extremely sensitive."

"He always went all-out to win the games we played as children," he continued, "he was a great competitor—he'll come back."

Beeson was not sure what Nixon would now do with his life, but was fairly sure that he would not go back to practicing law.

"He'll probably do a lot of writing," he speculated, "or perhaps he could be named some kind of ambassador-at-large. It's a shame to waste his talents in the international relations area."

The family will try to contact Nixon soon, Beeson noted, adding that his mother had tried to call him in the Capitol Wednesday night, only to be connected with an aide. "He was probably going over his resignation speech," Beeson said.

What would they tell him? "That we of the family still have faith in him. We back him 100 per cent."

"He'll find an inner strength," Beeson explained, "most of the family is that way. He is a man of extreme determination."

"I've been pretty sad these last couple of days," said Jane Beeson, Nixon's aunt, "but I'm getting along fine."

"I'm sure he (Nixon) will too, with all those people praying for him," she continued, "it must be the Lord's will that he resigned, and it's probably best for him, also."

Mrs. Beeson said that Nixon accomplished as much in six months as most students do in four years when he was her piano pupil. She still teaches children from the area.

"I was pleased at his composure and his command of the situation. It was an excellent speech," Beeson reflected, "but I feel the impeachment process was twisted and was he tried in the press and on TV."

"Dick has had an uphill battle ever since he got into politics," Beeson closed.

'A little straight talk'

"Just a little straight talk among friends," Gerald R. Ford called his brief remarks after he was sworn in as President of the United States on Friday.

The "straight talk" was a contrast — and surely a deliberate contrast — to the manner of Ford's predecessor.

President Ford demonstrated in his first hours in office that he has a keen eye for the symbolism of what he does.

Thus his first act was to assure the nation and the world that Henry Kissinger would remain secretary of state and that American foreign policy would not change.

To emphasize that, Ford devoted much of his first full day in office to meeting and being photographed with ambassadors from foreign lands.

Ford's first appointment was of a Washington newspaperman as his press secretary, a marked contrast to the former advertising agency man who had been President Nixon's press secretary. The appointment of J. F. terHorst of the Detroit News signaled a desire for openness with the press and with the nation, a desire that Ford underscored in his first remarks as President to the American people.

"In all my public and private acts as your President," he said, "I expect to follow my instincts of openness and candor with full confidence that honesty is always the best policy in the end."

In those remarks, Ford made another symbolic gesture, this one of cooperation with Congress. He said he would meet with Congress Monday evening to share with his former colleagues and the nation his views on "the priority business of the nation, and solicit your views and their views." President Ford emphasized the spirit of cooperation by asking, almost casually and with no tone of command, that the speaker of the House and other members of Congress who were present at the ceremony meet with him after it. If they could do that, the President said simply, "I would appreciate it."

Nor did the new President ignore in those first remarks the Watergate scandal, which had engulfed the Nixon administration but which President Nixon never seemed to regard as anything more than mistakes in judgment.

The wounds of Watergate, President Ford said forthrightly, have been "more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars." And the President recognized what lay at the heart of Watergate when he called on us all to "restore the Golden Rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and of hate."

No one knows just what kind of President Gerald Ford will make. We know he admires Dwight Eisenhower, has a straightforward style reminiscent of Harry Truman and is generally conservative in his economic ideas.

In his vice presidential confirmation hearings, his views were explored at length. The depth of his commitment to them will become apparent as his administration develops.

He told his inquirers that he favors regular press conferences, a greater role for Congress in foreign affairs, first priority for defense expenditures, and exploration of revived diplomatic relations with Cuba. He said he believes that when Congress enacts a law the President is obligated to administer it "faithfully" instead of scuttling it as President Nixon did with the antipoverty program. He indicated that the stands he took as a Michigan congressman might not always be the stands he would take as President. The needs of a national rather than a local constituency might cause him to alter his positions, Ford said candidly.

The major matters to which he must address himself at the start of his administration are selection of a vice president and bringing inflation and a sagging economy under control. The vice presidential selection may take another week. Presumably he will discuss the economy when he addresses Congress tomorrow.

The details of his programs will and should be debated. But Congress and the nation, we think, are confident that the new man in the White House is what he seems: a President who likes and trusts people, who has political adversaries but no enemies, who can ask for prayer without seeming hypocritical or being uncomfortable, and who means to keep his promise to "be the President of all the people." It is a good start.

Mosquitoes: endangered?

(From the Washington Star-News)

A professor at Western Illinois, Dr. Samuel Singer, is reported to have discovered a type of bacteria which, served up in a cupful of pale broth, could pretty much eliminate all the mosquito larvae in an average-sized farm pond.

The potential worth of these small warriors, bacillus sphaericus, if they're even half as good as they sound, could be incalculable. It's estimated that the malaria mosquito, anopheles, transmits death to something like 10 million persons throughout the world each year.

STILL, AT THE risk of sounding soft on mosquitoes, for whom we've done a great deal of bleeding, we're forced to acknowledge that the common American summer-on-the-lake mosquito is a formidable adversary for whom we have acquired much respect. One of his kind at large in a tent can murder sleep more effectively than the strongest stimulant. There is considerable divergence of opinion as to which is worse, the sinister sing-song hum of a mosquito approaching in the dark, usually near one's ear, or the moment when the humming suddenly stops and one doesn't know where to hit.

As for a walk in the woods in, say, Wisconsin in June, men have been known to be driven mad by the clouds of fellow travelers which tag along.

WE KNOW A stalwart lady with a streak of masochism in her make-up who says that mosquitoes were added to nature as a sort of condiment like pepper or salt — to season our delight in being outdoors by adding a touch of suffering. Maybe so.

All we know is that we feel a small twinge of sorrow, now that the balance of power is tilting in our favor. No longer will this fragile fellow have only to pit his cunning against the hard, but inaccurate, hand of man. Bring on the bacteria, but here's to a doughty old foe.

McCarthy 'discourtesies' rapped

SACRAMENTO — Meanwhile, outside Washington. . .

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy had reason to be optimistic after his first week as leader of the 80-member lower house.

The reason is that things can only get better.

McCarthy, as expected, made a number of changes in committee assignments. Members removed from chairmanships and taken off preferred committees for the most part accepted their fate as the fortunes of political war.

What made many members unhappy was the manner in which those changes were disclosed.

Fullerton's John Briggs, in his fourth year as chairman of the important Committee on Agriculture, learned he was no longer chairman when an Assembly aide informed him he was going to have to move from the large office required by a committee chairman (to accommodate the committee's staff) into an ordinary-sized office.

A few days later, Briggs said, he received a copy of a letter to the state controller's office designating Ray Seeley of Blythe as the Agriculture Committee chairman.

He has yet to hear from the speaker's office, Briggs says, and he considers McCarthy guilty of discourtesy.

Jack Fenton of Montebello, the former house majority leader, aggressively worked in behalf of Willie Brown, the man McCarthy defeated in the speakership battle. As a consequence, he expected to have to yield his positions of power to supporters of McCarthy.

But he learned he had been replaced as a member of the Finance and Insurance Committee while he was sitting in the Assembly chamber, listening to McCarthy read new committee assignments from the rostrum. He had not been personally informed in advance, an oversight that made him indignant and which drew sympathetic indignation from other assemblymen.

The word "courtesy" has a high place in the priorities legislators feel should be attached to their offices, and abuses of courtesy are not regarded lightly.

Briggs and Fenton were not the only legislators who found reason to be displeased with McCarthy last week, and unless the new speaker makes some quick repairs in the operation of his office, his administration is not going to be very smooth.

Willie Brown, meanwhile, is bristling at his own treatment at McCarthy's hands, and while he acknowledges that his chances of "putting something together" to topple the speaker are remote, he adds "unless he throws it away" — and suggests McCarthy is doing just that.

Brown will be a very interesting lawmaker to watch in the future. It is certainly true, as his critics claim, that he is flamboyant and abrasive. But it is also true that he is highly intelligent and industrious, and it would be a loss to California if his energy and talent were not taxed.

He is extremely unhappy at being removed from the Ways and Means Committee, which he headed for four years. But McCarthy is probably correct when he says that the new chairman, John Foran, would find it difficult to put his own stamp on the committee if Brown, with his strong personality, were still a member.

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

For the rest of this year he will work hard for about half a dozen candidates for the Assembly, Senate and Congress, and he says he will also work for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Jerry Brown and for March Fong, who is running for secretary of state.

He will do so, he says, "without trying to raise the specter of being a speakership candidate again."

As for his own future legislative activities, he says he expects to become deeply involved in health and criminal justice issues.

Note: Richard Nixon is certainly not the only politician who puts getting elected ahead of just about any other consideration. Democratic staff members in the Assembly and Senate — the ones who do the hard campaign work — are uniformly glum over Nixon's resignation.

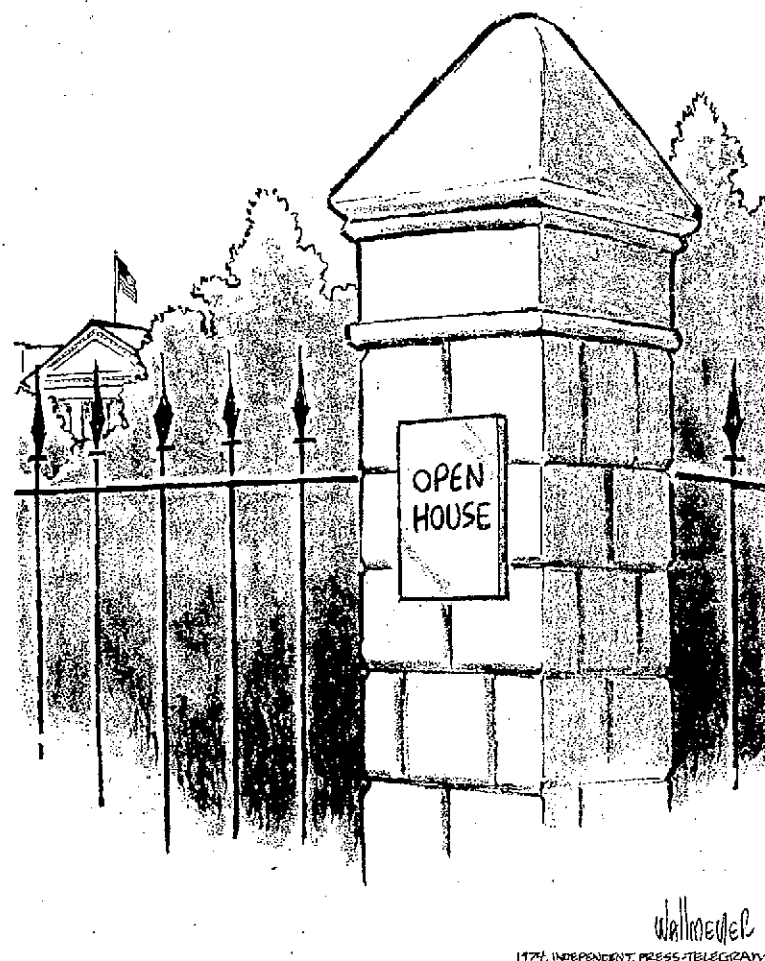

"I had hoped the water could be kept boiling through November," one said. "I wanted the guy still in office, with Watergate still before the public every day."

The Democrats are concerned that Republicans, who might have stayed home Nov. 5 had Nixon and Watergate still been hanging over them, will flock to the polls in droves now as sort of a symbolic confirmation of Gerald Ford.

If that happens, they may very well lose a seat or two in the Assembly, although there appears to be no danger that the GOP can actually become the majority party in either house.

Not all Democrats put their partisanship so high. Congressman John L. Burton of San Francisco, the state party central committee chairman, told the San Jose Mercury: "It is better to have the campaigns fought out on issues of the quality of life rather than on Nixon and his personal failings."

But there are many Democratic campaign professionals who feel otherwise, and isn't that what Watergate was all about?

Nixon must pay penalty

EDITOR:

Sitting here and watching our now former president and family returning home to San Clemente, I think it must be all but impossible for even the most callous of Mr. Nixon's foes not to feel a great sense of pity for this man, whose life in public service has ended in tragedy unparalleled in the history of this country. How, then, does one reconcile this feeling of pity and empathy with the view that his departure from office is long overdue and would not have come about even yet had he not been faced with the most completely hopeless set of circumstances?

I believe the answer lies in the fact that there are, in effect, two Richard Nixons, capable of evoking completely opposite reactions from anyone who has observed them.

There is the personal side of the man, a man surrounded by a wonderful family, a super sports fan, the man walking on the deserted beach with only his wife and his dog — in short, a man whom anybody would be hard-pressed not to like. Unfortunately, it seems that none of his decency in private life carried over into his dealings in the executive office.

So preoccupied was he with going down in history as one of our great presidents that he did not want any sort of a blemish on his record; hence, what could have been terminated early on as no more than the actions of a few overzealous campaign officials resulted in the President's doing everything, including blatant lying and attempting to use the CIA to block an FBI investigation, to keep the truth about the Watergate affair from the public. The President of the United States, with probably more power than anyone on earth at his disposal, using that power to make a farce out of the due process system, to keep the truth from being known.

That abuse of power, power vested in him by the people of this country, is what makes Richard Nixon the most despicable form of criminal. And no matter how tragic a picture is portrayed by this man and his family, no matter how likeable his personal side is, the political Richard Nixon has committed the most heinous of crimes against the people of this country, and should be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Ashamed of America

EDITOR:

I am writing in regard to the "assassination" of President Richard Nixon.

Although he was re-elected with a record percentage of votes in November 1972, Nixon has never been a popular or cherished political figure. Something about him has always seemed to spur his opponents to unusually harsh attacks on him and his policies. It seems that during the whole Watergate affair the prime thought was not on any real heinous crime the President might have committed. The prime thought was focused on how to "get Nixon." Well, they finally "got him" — and it makes me sick.

I liken this assassination of Nixon to the assassinations of John F. Kennedy and other great men in our nation's history — an unfortunate and shameful loss to the country. Yet, an overwhelming majority of Americans have delighted in this assassination of another of our presidents. I am ashamed, as an American, of what has happened.

No immunity

EDITOR:

Now that Mr. Nixon has resigned there should be no deals to give him immunity.

He was not compassionate. He gave amnesty to no one, except Hoffa. If we give him a break, every small-time crook should get a break, too, as his embarrassment would also be punishment enough.

He was the chief law officer, not a poor, ignorant man.

Prosecute Nixon

EDITOR:

Twenty-eight years ago Richard M. Nixon defeated Congressman Jerry Voorhis with the help of the so-called Committee of 100. Twenty-four years have elapsed since Richard M. Nixon defeated Helen Gahagan Douglas for a Senate seat, claiming Mrs. Douglas was "soft on communism."

Today both of these able, competent and well-liked congresspersons have been vindicated.

So far 21 of Mr. Nixon's aides, or members of his re-election committee, have been convicted or indicted. These men and their families have been disgraced. The lawyers among them have been disbarred or disbarment proceedings are pending against them. They have lost the means of supporting their families.

Why should not there be similar treatment for Mr. Nixon?

The taxpayers have been called upon, through Congress, to pay the huge costs of congressional hearings in both houses of Congress, the special prosecutor, grand juries and the ever-increasing cost of living.

The President could have prevented all this two years ago by admitting to the people that he had indeed obstructed justice, as he did admit on August 5.

Congress should seek no immunity from prosecution in Mr. Nixon's case.

Why spare Democrats?

EDITOR:

On Aug. 8 you reported that Senate Watergate committee records show that "oil millionaire Leon Hess pumped $225,000 into the losing 1972 presidential try by Sen. Henry M. Jackson by disguising his secret donation under the names of other persons."

The article was on page A-6. Why don't you put news like this on the front page? Why spare the Democrats?

Nixon's American language

WASHINGTON — "Bring us together" and "law and order" were the first catch phrases of the Nixon men, and in the end they did bring us together in the cause of law and order, but not in the way the phrase makers of 1968 had in mind.

The Nixon people would have said that what went wrong was the "scenario." At the end it simply "wouldn't play in Peoria." They talked like that. They were marinated in the faith of the public-relations quackery which holds that high gloss on a sow's ear will make it a big seller in the silk-purse market.

Their talk was public-relations talk. Weighing a problem, they discussed the "P.R." of the situation. They established, probably forever, the barbarous usage of "media" as a singular noun meaning "the news business."

In the early days they talked about "the input process." When the President listened to suggestions about things that ought to be done, they said "the input process" was going on. In the tradition of public-relations talk, this kind of pseudo-learned jargon sounded impressive and in the words of the headwaiter justifying the flaming food in the Pump Room, didn't hurt the meat none.

Every administration evolves its own prose signature. With Kennedy we all talked about "charisma," "vigor" and "style" until we persuaded ourselves that this kind of talk was saying something trenchant. Johnson suffered to the end from the suspicion that he lacked both "charisma" and

Russell Baker

New York Times News Service

"style," and often seemed deluded by the notion that but for their lack he could have raised a higher "Camelot."

Politicians will not revive "Camelot" for awhile now. Every disaster has its bright side.

In the manner of the public-relations minded, the Nixon men understated unpleasant realities and overstated their case when it was weakest. Thus Watergate was dismissed at the beginning as "a

WASHINGTON, D.C. — All legal logic and justice now point toward eventual prosecution, conviction and imprisonment of Richard M. Nixon as the master planner of the massive two-year obstruction of justice that has been the Watergate cover-up.

Although he has tried to minimize it, Mr. Nixon has now admitted guilty knowledge of obstruction of justice since a few days after the Watergate burglary arrests on June 17, 1972. On June 23, 1972, he admits he conspired with his then White House Chief of Staff H. R. "Bob" Haldeman to misuse his authority as President for a political cover-up of his re-election committee's involvement in serious federal crimes.

That admission of efforts to misuse the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) for pothird-rate burglary" unworthy of presidential notice, and the Judiciary Committee's impeachment hearings were denounced as a "kangaroo court."

Both phrases were disastrously memorable. Pride in phrasemanship, an essential quality in good public-relations men, afflicted the administration with phrases the public could not forget.

In Ronald Ziegler's agony, when the "third-rate burglary" turned first-rate, he fell into the most dismal trap of all and took the public-relations man's refuge in gobbledygook. Thus was born "inoperative." The "scenario" of the "third-rate burglary," Ziegler announced after the upgrading, had simply become "inoperative." He meant the official White House story had been a lie.

At this point, with cases going to court, the administration desperately needed judges who might see that it was not "appropriate" — another Ziegler coinage — to press the White House too firmly with the law.

Unfortunately, it was too late for that. There was that wonderfully memorable phrase of the President's, uttered in happier days when "law and order" meant an entirely different kind of courthouse "scenario" — the phrase in which the President had denounced "soft-headed judges" for leniency toward the criminal classes.

The White House was cornered by its own prose again, and in the last days Nixon men could only grumble privately about the Judiciary's excessively unsoft head.

Gassy bloat, always present in public-relations talk, swelled the language beyond all comprehension as the "P.R." became more and more difficult. Bloat in language results from a breakdown between thought and expression. The more determined a person is to conceal his thinking, the wordier he becomes. Eventually there is a Niagara of words that communicates nothing.

Saying "at that point in time," when you mean "then," requires a lot of time and wears down the audience. Talking about "seeing the constitutional process through to the end," when you really mean you don't know what you are going to do next, becomes an exercise in obliterating communication.

The private shop talk, which was fated to become public, was the breezy colorful shorthand commonly used by bright young men in business conferences devoted to planning ways to shear the customers. "Stonewalling" and "the hang-out route" will become prominent entries in the lexicon of Nixonisms to be left to the country, and "modified limited hangout" will probably need a long footnote of explication, as well "the big enchilada," John Ehrlichman's term for John Mitchell.

The input process is ended now and the American language as revised by Richard Nixon is complete. It is tempting to say, "Now it belongs to the ages," and unless we are lucky, some last departing phrase maker probably will.

litical objectives under cover of "national security" cannot be minimized, but must be put in the perspective of a blatant, arrogant effort to warp the entire system of justice and lie to the American people.

Democratic leaders in the Senate and House — Speaker Carl Albert, Authorities must eventually decide if he should be prosecuted as any other person for the role he now admits in the massive federal crime against the American system of justice.

In making that decision, some federal political figures must weigh Mr. Nixon's pleas for mercy and forgiveness against the whole series of prosecutions of subordinates at the White House and the Nixon re-election committee.

By what logic can Mr. Nixon be treated less severely than his former counsel, John W. Dean III, who admitted his role in carrying out a cover-up plan conceived and endorsed by Mr. Nixon, Haldeman and Special Assistant John D. Ehrlichman at least as early as June 23, 1972?

Dean, who cooperated with prosecutors against the wishes of President Nixon, was sentenced to a prison term of one to four years by United States District Judge John Sirica despite the fact that he has agreed to testify against Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Attorney General John Mitchell and others.

What Democratic or Republican political leader can argue that Mr. Nixon should be treated with less severity than Jeb S. Magruder, a young and frightened deputy director of the Nixon re-election committee who believed he was carrying out instructions from Mr. Nixon when he perjured himself to protect the White House? Magruder also persuaded a young assistant, Herbert L. Porter, to lie to a federal grand jury to hide the White House role.

Magruder was sentenced to ten months to four years imprisonment, despite cooperation and the plea of guilty. Porter was sentenced to serve 30 days in prison.

Or who can argue that Mr. Nixon should be dealt with more lightly than former Special Counsel Charles W. Colson or John D. Ehrlichman, whose rationalization of their involvement in the conspiracy to destroy and discredit Daniel Ellsberg was that they believed they were carrying out Mr. Nixon's wishes for national security reasons?

Now by his own admission Mr. Nixon lied to his own attorneys about the contents of the White House tapes, misrepresented facts to the American people, and knowingly misled Republican Senate leader Hugh Scott, then Vice President Gerald Ford and others into taking part in a vicious campaign to discredit and destroy John Dean as a government witness.

In a television address on April 30, 1973, Mr. Nixon declared:

"For specific criminal action by specific individuals, those who committed those actions must of course bear the liability and pay the penalty. . . . I will not place the blame on subordinates — on people whose zeal exceeded their judgment, and who may have done wrong in a cause they deeply believed to be right."

He went on to say:

"In any organization, the man at the top must bear the responsibility. That responsibility, therefore, belongs here, in this office. I accept it."

At that time he denied any knowledge of the existence of cover-up activities by John Dean and others until March 21, 1973. Now that Mr. Nixon has been forced to reluctantly admit that his defensive posture was a sham, will he be up to facing his responsibility as he saw it in television rhetoric a year ago?

L.A.C. Says Are record profits misleading mirage?

By L.A. COLLINS SR.

About all that can be said about Watergate has been said and printed in the past week. It is now time for Congress and the people to give equal attention and concern to our economic problems which face the nation and the new President.

The spiraling profits reported by many corporations for the second quarter may be like a mirage — something illusory — according to some of the experts. They are one factor that gave the stock market its impressive surge and decline in the past week. It is one reason for the very low price earning (P-E) ratio for many stocks. This is the ratio of earnings to price of the stock. A large percentage of stocks are selling at four to eight times earnings, compared to the long-time acceptable levels of 12 to 20 times earnings over recent years.

One reason given for the very high profits in the second quarter is that producers have shown large profits on use of their inventories. The billions of dollars of raw materials, equipment and finished products have gone up in value since the end of controls on April 30. As these products soared in value with higher prices under inflation, they showed up as profits in the month when they were consumed.

The misleading factor is that those products have to be replaced in succeeding months at the prices inflation has increased them. The corporation has to pay taxes on these profits so it has less money left to replace them at higher prices. It is the factor that causes many observers to question how long these second quarter profit rates can be maintained.

The May and June profits were also raised by the end of price controls when finished products' prices were raised to make up for the increases of previous months when inflation was increasing cost of all materials. New labor contracts have increased manpower costs from 8 to 12 per cent in many industries.

Spectacular changes have been shown in the auto industry where the energy crises drastically reduced the sale of larger cars. General Motors profits were 61 per cent below those of the second quarter of the year before, Ford was down 57 per cent and Chrysler was down 74 per cent. The new small car production by these companies is expected to provide their normal sound profits in the months and years ahead. But they are suffering from the fear that gasoline can again be in short supply, so the trend is to smaller cars.

By contrast, oil company profits have soared because of the high prices caused by world market prices set by the Arabs. Gasoline sales are near previous levels at greatly increased prices. The second quarter profits of Standard Oil of Indiana were up 130 per cent over the same quarter of 1973. Mobil was up 99 per cent and most other companies up 30 to 60 per cent for the period.

Profits were up in lower degrees for an estimated 72 per cent of all industrial producers. The building industry and suppliers of their materials have been hurt by the slowdown in construction. The slump in new housing has hurt suppliers of household appliances.

Food prices have been reduced. But the drastic drought conditions now apparent in the crop-growing Midwest from Texas to the Dakotas is expected to bring about higher prices for the balance of this year. Such increases would be a boon to the farmers who have a crop to sell.

These are some of the factors that greatly concern the economists. The auto and oil companies have been hurt or helped by the effects of energy shortages and the fear that such shortages may recur. But the greatest danger we face is continued inflation. That can only be curtailed by governments cutting their budgets by 5 to 10 per cent and consumers holding down their purchases of nonessential products until supply exceeds or equals demand.

Until these are accomplished, the dollars we earn or have in savings will continue to decrease in value. It is a crisis situation more dangerous than Watergate. It should have at least as much attention by Congress and the people in solving the problem as has been given to Watergate.

‘Sammy’— a bit big for his age

By BOB ANDREW

‘Sammy’ was a little bit big for his age compared to the other 5-year-olds who played with him Thursday at the Harbor Pre-School, 2521 S. Avalon Blvd., Carson.

He outweighed them by nearly half a ton, but then Sammy was an elephant.

The elephant, who usually earns his hay performing at parties, cat shopping centers, recently completed an episode of ‘Apple’s Way’ to be televised next December. His companion, Marvin, a chimpanzee, isn’t a television personality, but entertained the children by imitating an auto dealer who stands on his head.

After Marvin had performed magic tricks and Sammy had run through his acrobatic repertoire—standing on either fore or hind legs, walking in circles with one foot on a swiveling pedestal and rolling over—the youngsters were allowed to pet Sammy.

‘He feels like a hairbrush. . . Mister, did you make his skin out of sandpaper? . . . I don’t want to pet him. . . I want to pet him again.’ The children’s comments and questions came in a flood.

But the most devastating one was, ‘What happened to his nose?’

Sammy will never win an elephant beauty contest because his trunk is only a tapir-length stub about two feet long.

‘I worked with him when we were in a small circus,’ explained owner Larry Johnson of Corona. ‘One night a tiger got hold of him and bit his trunk pretty bad.’

To save the animal, his trunk had to be amputated. Then the circus nolonger wanted Sammy, so Johnson bought him, quit and started his traveling show and petting routine.

Sammy should consider himself fairly lucky. He lost five feet of skin off his nose, but he found a real friend.

Orange Co. calls for drilling safeguards

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

A resolution strongly opposing offshore oil drilling at this time and calling for future safeguards, has been adopted by the Orange County League of Cities.

Adopted on vote of 22 to 2, with only Los Alamitos and Placentia opposed, the resolution will be sent to the Department of the Interior, which has announced the government’s plan to permit oil drilling along the continental shelf from Santa Barbara to San Clemente.

The cities faulted the Interior Department for its failure to hold public hearings on the oil exploration plans, failure to consult with local officials, and failure to demand safeguards.

The cities faulted the Interior Department for its failure to hold public hearings on the oil exploration plans, failure to consult with local officials, and failure to demand safeguards.

Mayor Don Melanis of Newport Beach, the city which offered the resolution asked for unanimous approval and seemed disappointed when Los Alamitos and Placentia rejected his plea.

Earlier, the league had considered a resolution by Laguna Beach, which simply voiced strong opposition to offshore drilling.

The Newport Beach resolution recommended that there be ‘a comprehensive regional energy policy,’ a state and local review of the offshore oil development program, protection of marine sanctuaries, a determination of the responsibility of developers to protect natural resources, and ‘a comprehensive analysis to determine if a true need for the oil actually exists.’

It noted that ‘oil is a diminishing resource, which should be conserved rather than exploited.’

The Newport Beach resolution seemed to concede the inevitability of offshore oil operations in the future, and so stressed the demand for the safeguards. It also called for a delay in awarding drilling leases until the safeguards are met.

In other business, the league nominated Mayor Jess Perez of Orange to be its new president, and said the election will be in September. Nominees for vice president include Councilman George Scott of Fountain Valley and Councilman Art Holmes of San Clemente.

The league failed to muster a necessary two-thirds support of a resolution offered by Buena Park, opposing further increases in assessed values of properties in Orange County. League officials gave the objection a majority vote, but lacked the two-thirds requirement for passage.

Sea Festival to end with sand sculpture

An opportunity to express the creative urge and to ‘perform’ on television are two added inducements for entering the sand sculpture contest which will wind up the annual Long Beach Sea Festival Sunday, Aug. 18.

The contest will be held at the foot of Junipero Avenue, and entrants will have from noon until 2 p.m. to complete their sand creation. Judging will begin at 2 p.m.

From 1 to 3 p.m., KNBC’s ‘Sunday’ show, with Paul Moyer and Kelly Lange, will tape the contest for showing on Channel 4 at 4:30 p.m.

Deadline for entering the Sea Festival’s closing event is Tuesday. Entry blanks may be obtained at the lifeguard station at the foot of Cherry Avenue, or from the sponsoring Long Beach Regional Arts Council office, 130 Pine Ave., Suite 209.

There is no charge to enter, and up to 12 persons may work on any one sand sculpture. Each entrant will be assigned a 20-by-20-foot section of the beach, and must create the sculpture by using only sand and sea water. Hand tools, plus buckets or jars for the water, are permitted.

Prizes will be awarded in three divisions — children, recreational groups, and businesses. Judging categories will be most original, most artistic, most humorous, and best sand castle. A sweepstakes trophy will be given to the best overall sculpture.

NAACP to open meet

The Southern California Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will begin a meeting Friday aboard the Queen Mary, Edward A. Bernard, president of the Long Beach chapter, announced. The local unit will host the event.

Keynote speaker will be Mrs. Dolores Tucker, secretary of state in Pennsylvania and the Helicopter field released by U.S. for public use

The military has released its 137-acre helicopter landing field at Mile Square Regional Park in Fountain Valley, Congressman Andrew J. Hinshaw, R-Newport Beach, announced. He said it’s ready for public acquisition.

His announcement set off a flurry of official activity as Orange County pressed its move to acquire the landing field’s 137 acres without cost.

Supervisor David L. Baker of Garden Grove, who engineered the initial county ‘takeover’ of what once was the Navy’s Mile Square Auxiliary Airport, filed a formal bid on behalf of the County of Orange.

The government gave more than 500 acres to the county about six years ago; and the county began development on a piecemeal basis.

A golf course was laid out and developed along Wacker Avenue along the south side of the field, between Brookhurst Street and Euclid Avenue. The county then began developing the land for park purposes along the Euclid side, and leased a 213-acre parcel at McFadden Street, the north boundary, for farming.

In addition, the county leased 55 acres on Brookhurst Street to the City of Fountain Valley, which will develop this section.

Supervisor Baker’s bid for the cost-free transfer of the 137-acre landing strip was made to Frank Sylvester, chief of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

However, as a Member of Old West Traders Club, you will receive, at no obligation to buy, an illustrated bi-monthly catalogue of some of the finest lines of handcrafted Indian Jewelry made in the Southwest. We are certain you will be so thrilled with your introductory purchase and with the material you will get through the mail, that you will be a customer of Old West Traders for life. You will be one of a limited number with a source of valuable Indian Jewelry at wholesale prices!

Description: The necklace pictured contains approximately 6-1/2 oz. of pure Sterling silver and 125 carats of carefully matched Kingman Blue turquoise stones. Since each necklace is individually handcrafted by Navajo artisans, some of the workmanship details of your necklace will vary from the picture. The basic design and weight will be the same. It would ordinarily retail for over $400. The necklace is also available in Nevada Green turquoise, Coral, and Mother-of-Pearl. Please indicate your choice in the reply coupon below.

History: The design of the necklace is a centuries old Indian adaptation of some of the decorative formal wear sported by the Conquistadores from whom the Navajo nation learned silversmithing techniques. The design is thought to be imbued with powers of good fortune and protection from evil forces. It has long been used, and is still often used as a medium of exchange in the Southwest Indian Nations. An Indian’s status and wealth is often symbolized by the number and quality of Squash Blossoms he owns.

Pollutants reduced

More than 4,000 tons of pollutants are poured into the atmosphere every day by smog-producing sources in Orange County, according to Air Pollution Officer William Fitchen.

He reported completion of the 1973 "emission inventory" for the county supervisors, and noted that while the air pollution problem is difficult, it is improving.

Fitchen said there was a net reduction in emissions of reactive hydrocarbons into the atmosphere during 1973 compared to 1972, but that there was an increase in oxides of nitrogen and sulfur oxides because many manufacturing plants had to shift to oils when supplies of natural gas and low-sulfur oil became scarce.

He also noted "the increase in oxides of nitrogen is attributed to the fact that control devices, while effective, have not been able to keep pace with the number of vehicles in Orange County."

Despite the 8.6 per cent increase in number of motor vehicles, the emissions for 1973 showed a 13.42 per cent reduction, he said.

Last year, the pollution measurement was 4,097 tons daily; in 1972 the measurement was 4,731 tons daily.

Automobiles continue to be the "major offenders," Fitchen claimed, ascribing 3,957 tons of pollutants daily to the rolling stock. Stationary sources contributed only 128 tons, and aircraft and railroads only 11.7 tons.

Of all the pollutants, motor vehicles spew out carbon monoxide in quanties which Fitchen said are "alarming."

His department measured the daily output of cars to be 3,235 tons of carbon monoxide, with 313 tons of oxides of nitrogen and 271 tons of reactive hydrocarbons.

In all, motor vehicles contributed 3,957 tons of the county's total of 4,097 tons of pollutants daily, his report said.

New Boy Scout center dedicated at Reid Park

Simple outdoor dedication ceremonies were held Saturday in Will J. Reid Scout Park for a 4,500-square-foot training center financed by donations from citizens and community organizations.

"This building will add a new dimension to what is already a tremendous camping facility," John Hancock, president of the Long Beach Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, said during the ceremonies.

He said the park, located at 4747 Daisy Ave., has been in need of a training center since 1941, when scout leader Will J. Reid donated 10 acres of land to the council.

"This new training center effectively replaces a building brought here in 1941 from the Cerritos Gun Club in Lakewood," Hancock said. That building, demolished in 1971, "was in need of repair when it was brought here more than 30 years ago," he added.

Hancock described the park, used mostly as an overnight camping area, "as a unique in-the-city facility."

The training center, to be used for scout gatherings, merit badge activities and the training of adult leaders, consists of a multipurpose room, several meeting rooms, a small kitchen and storage area.

The $125,000 structure, a simple concrete block building designed to blend into the outdoor atmosphere, is one of a long line of improvements to the campsite since its donation, Hancock said.

The Scout Hall, a barn-like structure, was constructed in 1948, the swimming pool in 1953 and the parking facility in 1957.

Teen troupe to perform

Damn Yankees will be performed by the cast of Summer Teen-age Recreation (STAR) Productions at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Whittier Community Center, 7630 S. Washington Ave. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for children.

The production, which is sponsored by the Los Angeles County Department of Parks and Recreation, also will be performed Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Aug. 15-17, at the Cerritos College Burnight Center Theater, 11110 E. Alondra Blvd., Norwalk. Curtain times for those performances also are 8 p.m.

Improvements have also been made to the actual camping area, he added.

Hancock told the audience of approximately 75 persons—including Reid's daughter Virginia Reid Moore—the new structure was financed entirely by donations. He said donors included the Aetna Foundation, the R. C. Baker Foundation, the California Community Foundation, Henry H. Clock, Howard P. Conrad, Raleigh Darnell, Daniel Dunlap, Elmer L. Decker and the Douglas Aircraft Welfare Foundation.

Other donors were the Downtown Lions Club of Long Beach, the Freeman E. Fairfield Foundation, John W. Hancock, Sr., Madge L. Hancock, Lewis

N. Hindley, Jr., the Independent, Press-Telegram, the Kiwanis Club of Long Beach, Virginia Reid Moore, the Southern California Building Foundation and James W. Wood.

Architects Hugh and Donald Gibbs donated their services, as did the engineering firm of Moffatt and Nichol. William M. Wilson served as general contractor.

Following the dedication, Hancock—who is leaving later this week for a two-year business assignment in Australia—was presented with a plaque in recognition of his two years as president of the council.

Incoming president Lew Hindley, Jr. made the presentation.

AF transport ahead of schedule

Milestone for new Douglas plane

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

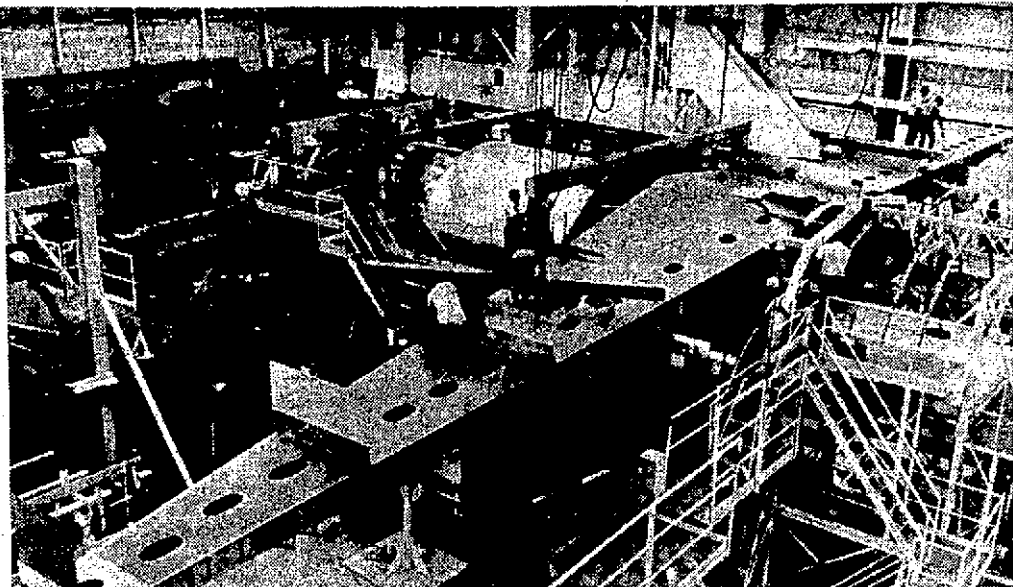

Construction of the first Air Force YC15 jet transport passed a major milestone in Douglas Aircraft Co.'s "X-shop" in Long Beach last week with the joining of the wing structure to the forward fuselage section.

The aircraft is the first of two Advanced Medium STOL Transport (AMST) prototypes which Douglas is building under the direction of the Air Force's Aeronautical Systems Division.

Purpose of the program is to develop the technology for a jet-powered, wide-cabin cargo aircraft which will carry larger payloads from shorter airfields to expand the combat support capabilities of the Air Force's medium transport force. The same technology could be applied to new short take-off and landing (STOL) commercial jet transport designs.

High-lift devices, including a system for lowering the wing flaps directly into the engine exhaust to increase lift, will enable the YC15 to operate from unimproved fields only 2,000 feet long at operating weights of up to 150,000 pounds.

According to Douglas designers, the YC15 will transport a payload of 70,000 pounds in a fuselage measuring 124 feet, three inches long and 18 feet in diameter. Maximum range of the prototype without payload will be about 3,000 miles.

The high-wing YC15 will be powered by four Pratt & Whitney Aircraft fanjet engines, each developing 16,000 pounds of thrust at takeoff.

First flight of the YC15 is scheduled for 1976, followed by a joint Air Force-Douglas flight test program and evaluation.

The wing joining on the first aircraft was accomplished ahead of the production schedule. Assembly of the aft fuselage section has started and it will be joined to the forward assembly later this year. Controls and instruments are being installed in the nose section.

Construction of the second YC15 prototype has begun, with assembly of the cockpit and forward fuselage section under way. Both aircraft will be used in the flight test program.

Boeing Aircraft of Seattle is developing two similar AMST prototypes under the Air Force designation of YC14 for that design.

House prices shoot up

Prices of single-family detached residences in southeast Orange County are skyrocketing at about the rate of $850 per month, the First American Title Insurance Co. of Santa Ana said.

Philip W. Kunisch, director of market research for the firm, listed results of a study of 26 developments, the same ones used in a survey in November 1973, and said he found that average prices had risen from $53,961 to $60,711 in less than eight months, to show a cost increase of $6,750 within that short time.

The study involved 57 developments in all, and showed that the average base price was $65,552 in this marketing area, and that only four per cent of completed dwellings remain unsold.

Of the 57 projects, only one offered VA financing; the others had arranged so-called conventional loans.

Kunisch said that membership in a homeowners association was a requirement in 24 of the areas, and that the average cost was $22.79 per month for this.

Last June, First American studied condominiums in the same sections of the county and discovered that price increases averaged $4,000 per unit over a nine-month span.

In the 57 tracts surveyed, 7,399 houses, or 54 per cent of the total, are completed and sold; 2,504 more are under construction.

Panel to study transit needs

A steering committee to help plan Orange County's rapid transit system — and critique the district's doings—has been set up.

Ralph B. Clark of Anaheim, chairman of the Orange County Transit District, asked the committee to set up subcommittees on cost, benefits, financing, environmental and social impact, and technology.

Formally called the Orange County Citizens' Committee on Transit, the group will be headed by Richard Hart, head of a printing plant in Orange.

Its members include Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich of UCI; Robert J. Clifford, president of Air California and chairman of the Orange County Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Gerald Podolak, transportation chairman of the League of Women Voters; Jeff Laddner, vice president of Mission Viejo Co.; Ray Mendoza, an official of the Hod Carriers' Union; Ray Pelozo, an official of Avco Community Developers; Mayor Bill Thom of Anaheim; Sandy Berwick, a real estate broker; and Josh White, who heads his own firm of consultants.

Clark called on the committee to make an independent report to the people of Orange County on transit district plans and operations, and recommend future directions for the district to take.

Training program dispute nears end ceive $1,045 per student average daily attendance per year. ADA is the formula used to determine state aid. But because of a provision called the base revenue limit (BRL), the district could only pass $916 of that on to the program. The county can pass the whole amount along because it is not covered under BRL.

In addition, local ROP districts cannot levy property taxes, while the county can.

But the underfinancing argument hasn't convinced Manuel Gallegos, Downey superintendent of schools. "They'd have more money, but their expenses would eat up the extra $100 or so," he said.

Expenses for the county will be heavy because of the support services it will have to provide. Those services include counseling, placement, and transportation.

Transportation costs will be very high for the county, said Gallegos, because the county will have to operate programs across a 25-district area which includes areas from the Antelope Valley to Bellflower to Malibu.

Since ROP is designed not to duplicate existing training programs, the county program will have to be spread out over a wide area. Conceivably, said Gallegos, a Downey participant might have to be bused to the Antelope Valley for a certain program.

The loss of local control over ROP, however, is what irks Gallegos and Smith the most. If the two districts operated a joint ROP, each would have 50 per cent control over the program. Under the county system, each of the 25 districts will have one representative on the steering committee. This reduces their control to 4 per cent.

They also point out that ROP, since it utilizes mostly on-site training instead of classroom instruction, would have been a good opportunity to establish better contacts with local businesses.

In Bellflower, a joint ROP would have meant a 3 cent decline in the property tax rate. The $129 the district is unable to pass on to ROP, because of the base revenue limit, could have been used in regular instruction programs, thus enabling the tax cut.

The county argues that the Bellflower-Downey

ROP would not have enough students — 26,000 — to make the program productive. "The wider student base you have, the more programs you can offer," said Dr. Drake. The smallest present ROP is Long Beach's with 55,000 students.

Dr. Drake points out that the Mt. Wilson ROP, which operated out of Pasadena, folded because of underfinancing. The assistant superintendent said that ROP was better financed than the proposed Downey-Bellflower program.

The last word on the matter may come from State Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger. The Bellflower School board has asked Supervisor James Hayes to get a legal opinion from Younger on whether the county can force a district into the county ROP without the consent of the district governing board and whether the county can legally impose taxes on a district where the governing board has not consented to enter the program.

The Los Angeles county counsel has said it could, but in a similar case, the San Joaquin county counsel gave the opposite opinion.

The impact of either opinion would not have any effect on the Bellflower-Downey proposal however. Even if the county could not include them in its ROP, the districts could not form their own without the approval of the county.

Dr. Drake said that even a ruling against the county by the attorney general would not persuade the county to do that.

Larwin's Tiburon

Larwin Group, Inc., has announced start of construction and sales on new unit of 30 three and four-bedroom townhomes at Larwin's Tiburon Cerritos. First phase sold out. Priced from $37,490, homes are available in 24 exterior designs. Four decorated models are on view at 12301 Abana, Cerritos.

EXCELLENT LOAN TERMS ... available at Cypress Monterey in Cypress

Cypress Monterey has variety of floor plans

An impressive variety of floor plans has been a prime factor in the immediate success of builder William J. Krueger's new Cypress Monterey townhome community.

The Showcase Homes development presents five different models including one and two-story plans in a unique new split-level design and a tri-level townhome with three bedrooms and choice of alternate kitchen plans.

The walled Cypress Monterey neighborhood at Valley View Street and Ball Road in Cypress is planned as a series of "mini-neighborhoods" with tile roofed and contemporary-styled buildings arranged in clusters around individual swimming pools.

Within the grounds will be three tennis courts, eight swimming pools and eight therapy spas. Tree-lined pathways wind through the abundantly landscaped greenbelts and the community is protected by an Entraguard security system.

Prices begin at $25,995 for the luxurious townhomes, complete with built-in kitchens, central air conditioning, shag carpeting throughout, quality color-coordinated draperies, walk-in closets or large wardrobes, master suites with deluxe private baths, laundry areas, private enclosed patios and two or three-car garages with extra storage space.

THE hard-to-find one bedroom homes and two bedroom plans are both single story, available in either upper or ground level locations and "staggered" to prevent an overlap of living space in the new design concept called "privacy-separated ownership levels".

Two different one-bedroom designs offer spacious living.

The development may be easily reached by taking either the San Diego or Garden Grove Freeway to Valley View, then north to Ball Road and Cypress Monterey. From the Artesia Freeway, drive south on Valley View to the community.

It's housing boom—Yucatan style

The land is cleared by hand with machetes. When the limestone base is too near the surface, the men shout "bomba" and blast the rocks before the foundation can be set. Cut trees hold up the house during construction. The largest machinery is a one-sack concrete mixer.

The half-dozen construction workers hum or sing while they climb ladders made of wood scraps and balance five-gallon cans of cement on their heads. Everyone works at everything.

This is not the scene of a barn raising on the American frontier. It takes place every day at Le Club De Golf La Ceiba, a luxurious villa, townhouse and condominium second-home community for Americans being built nine miles from Merida, the capital of the Yucatan Peninsula in Mexico.

"Even though the methods are primitive, the electrical and building codes here are as strict as in the U.S.," according to Harold C. Marshall, president of Amermex Corp. the Fort Lauderdale firm that is developing La Ceiba.

THE cinderblock constructed villas with poured concrete roofs feature red Spanish tiled floors, solid mahogany doors and doorframes, ceramic tiles in bathrooms and kitchens, and central patios with fountains.

They are being built around the only golf course in the Yucatan and are attracting adventurous Americans who want a second home to give them a second life rather than just a retreat.

Merida is only eighty minutes by air from Miami or Tampa and costs approximately the same commuting time and money as the conventional cottage in a neighboring state.

Prospective buyers pay their own transportation to Merida and make arrangements for accommodations at a villa by contacting Amermex.

The basic three-bedroom, two-bath villas which are available in nine models begin at $24,500, and the custom three-bedroom, two-bath villas are $27,500.

Townhouses start at $23,500 and condominiums at $21,500. Alterations and modifications can include hand wrought iron grillework, marble floors, and sunken bathtubs. Servant's quarters and bath are available for an additional $1,200.

PLANS CALL for 400 villas on 400 acres surrounding the 215-acre golf course and $1 million clubhouse—swimming pool complex. Phase I is nearing completion. A shopping center and 120 villas are planned for Phase II.

In a recent interview, Marshall described the # Park Westminster lists wide floor plan choice

Homebuyers are being offered the widest choice of floor plans at Park Westminster townhomes by the De Ruff Development Co.

Six varied and innovative interior designs distinguish the walled community of 128 dwellings in Garden Grove.

Presented in one and two-story elevations of distinctive exterior dignity in contemporary architectural treatment, Park

Westminster's floor plans include units of two, three and four bedrooms with one bath, a bath and powder room or two full baths.

A pioneer in condominium design and community planning, builder-developer Robert De Ruff of Newport Beach has put more than two decades of accumulated know-how into his Park Westminster offering.

Quality materials and top-of-the-line fixtures and hardware, excellent soundproofing and insulation, and interior planning that utilizes maximum space within the homes is indicative of the builder's attention to detail.

PARK Westminster is a new private neighborhood, close to schools, full service shopping centers, several major employment areas, beaches and marinas, fine restaurants and places of entertainment.

It also has its own recreational facilities. Centered around a one-acre park, the community offers owners exclusive use of a large heated swimming pool and sun deck lounge area, a clubhouse, and a playground and wading pool for children.

A planned community designed to afford maximum privacy for every owner, Park Westminster is set up to control traffic safely, with lanes and drives leading to attached, enclosed garages.

The entire grounds and all structural exteriors are maintained by professionals through a homeowners association elected annually by the residents.

STEPSAVER kitchens with luminous ceilings, built-in dishwasher, disposal, range and oven, wall-to-wall quality carpeting and draperies, private fenced patios, individual air conditioning in some plans and community landscaping are standard features included in the price of the homes.

The homes, varying in size as well as floor plans, are priced from $24,990, with 8 per cent financing terms available on new home loans.

Furnished models and a sales office are open daily from 10 a.m., with Davidson Realty & Investment Co. sales agents on the premises.

Models are within the community on Parklawn Drive near the recreation building.

Exit the Garden Grove Freeway at Euclid Street and drive south a short distance to Westminster Avenue, then turn east a few blocks to Park Westminster townhomes, at 11273 Westminster Ave., Garden Grove.

It's housing boom—but in Yucatan style

unique Yucatecan construction methods.

"It takes about six-and-a-half months to complete each villa. In the U.S., the land would be cleared with bulldozers, but in the Yucatan, they do not have sophisticated machinery and have to use machetes," he said.

"Usually in the Yucatan the idea is to burn out the land, but we wanted to save as many of the small ceiba and banyan trees as possible, so the men used only machetes and did not burn the underbrush," Marshall said.

HE EXPLAINED: "After the land is cleared, they mark the lines where the house will be and dig until they get to rock. Then they fill the excavation with a mixture of lime and concrete and stone, lift up the foundation a foot-and-a-half, level it, and fill the inside with rubble. Then they put down the concrete slab.

"If they have to blast, they will go ahead with the walls and leave the concrete floor until last."

Even the laying of plumbing pipes is not typical in the Yucatan. Rather than a four-inch cast iron or plastic pipe drain for the sewerage system, an eight-inch sewerage line is made on the site from cement and concrete, according to Marshall who has his own villa at La Ceiba.

"Unlike the U.S., construction in the provinces of Mexico is based on cement, concrete and stone," Marshall said, adding, "Wood is used for doors and frames but not for the basic construction, because the Yucatan's precious mahogany cedars are used for exportation."

AN UNUSUAL feature of the finished villas is the lack of shingles or roof tiles. "There is no clay in this area, so there are no bricks or roof tiles," said the energetic developer who commutes from his Fort Lauderdale home.

BIA builders' Seminar slated

"One of the most outstanding speaker groups in the homebuilding industry" will round out the one-day Sales and Marketing Seminar at the Disneyland Hotel, Friday, Sept. 20, BIA Chairman Howard Gurvitz of Rossmore Leisure World Corporation stressed last week.

The meeting will be built around the theme "Make it Sound Like a Bargain" and will highlight tv auto salesman Cal Worthington.

Joining Worthington is Calvin Hamilton, director of planning for the City of Los Angeles.

"Hamilton will provide a balance with Worthington in connection of markets, planning, and how to reach them", Gurvitz explained.

Four other industry experts will complete the program, sponsored by the Sales and Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association.

At the head table will be decorator Carol Eichen; designer Barry Berkus; homebuilder Jim Peters, and moderator John Schmidt.

The theme, "Making the Psychological Sale," will be the topic of award-winning decorator, Ms. Eichen of Fullerton.

Seaview post to woman

Marie Woods, a salesperson with Walker & Lee, Inc., has been named sales manager of San Clemente Seaview Townhomes, it was announced by Merrill Butler, Jr., president of the Irvine-based Butler Housing Corp.

Mrs. Woods will supervise the sales of the townhomes being built in San Clemente by Butler Housing.

The development is a joint venture of Butler Housing Corp. and Pacific Lighting Properties, Inc., a subsidiary of Pacific Lighting Corp., Los Angeles.

BERKUS will stress the importance of design and marketing. The 37 year old Berkus founded Environmental Systems International, Inc. and has led the firm to national and international prominence in the field of environmental planning and design.

Master of ceremonies Schmidt, an architect, is president of the Environmental Systems International group of companies. He is involved in a wide range of activities from initiation of new client contacts to coordinating the activities of B.A. Berkus office in Los Angeles, Irvine, Chicago, Washington, and Miami.

A limited number of tickets are available at $49.95 from the seminar headquarters, 3355 Via Lido, Newport Beach, California.

Homebuilder profits grow more narrow

Homebuilder profits are suffering from the combined effects of rising interest rates and construction or sales delays, according to Robert J. Dunham, president of Ashley Economic Services, Inc.

The Newport Beach-based consulting firm has been studying a trend that is developing in several of its client's projects.

Dunham cited as an example a typical $45,000 home or condominium, which would be expected to generate a minimum profit of 10 per cent.

However, a rise in the construction loan rate from 10 to 12 per cent, if no offsetting price increase were possible, would lower the profit to $4,280. An increase to 15 per cent would lower the profit to $3,953 or just under 9 per cent.

MORE important, construction delays due to work stoppages or material shortages can cause even greater problems.

A six-month delay with no change in the interest rate would decrease profits from $4,500 to $2,600 per unit.

The combination of six months delay plus an increase in the construction lending rate from 10 to 15 per cent would drop profits to $1,043, or just a little over 2 per cent of the sales price.

On this basis, 5 per cent increase in the interest rate combined with a six-month delay in absorption can cause a 77 per cent decrease in profits.

For this reason it becomes important to ensure a rapid sales rate via the offering of the best possible product.

It has become critical to use precision in measuring the level of demand and gearing the project specification most closely to the target market, the report stated.

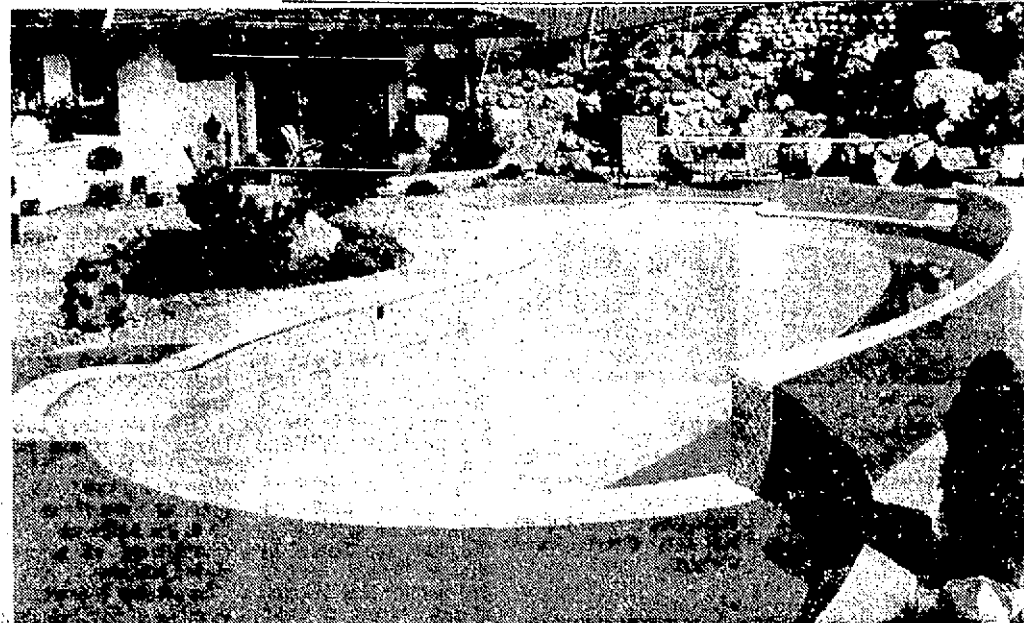

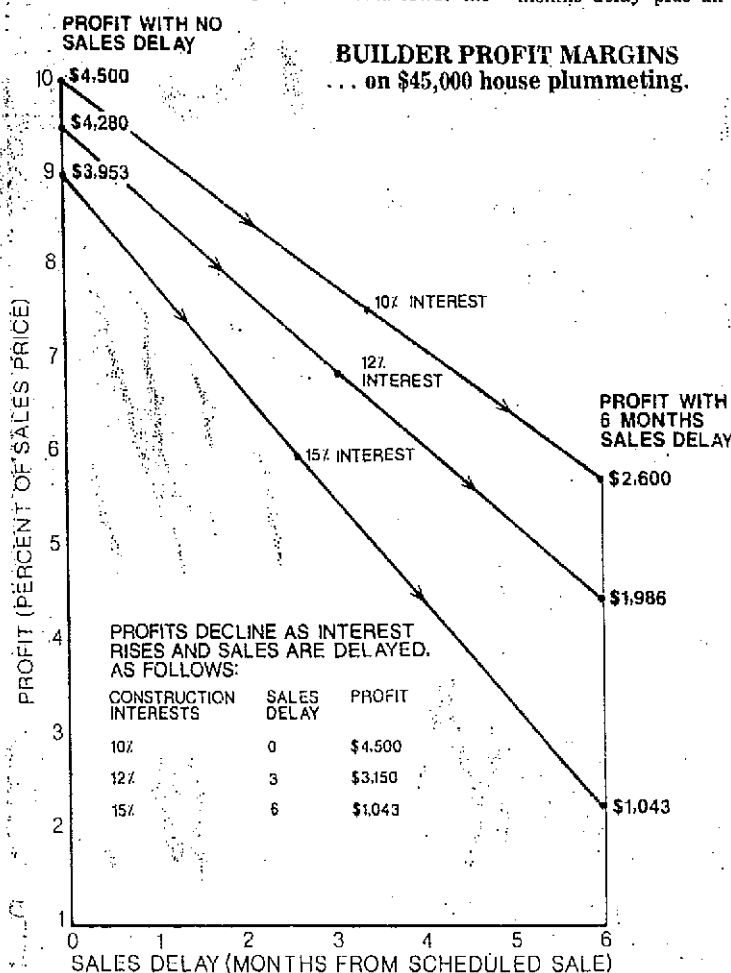

THE homebuyer soon will encounter price increases to offset these growing costs to the builder.

In the above example a price increase of $3,457 would be necessary to offset the added cost of an increase in construction interest from 10 to 15 per cent, plus a six-month sales delay.

This amount reflects the difference between the average profit of $4,500 and the reduced profit of $1,043.

The price increase would add $6,307 to the interest charges over the life of the mortgage. On this basis, the total price increase would be $9,764.

Companies that have retained Ashley Economic Services for this type of financial analysis as well as market research include The Irvine Company, Deane Development Company, Leadership Housing, Avco Community Developers and California Builders Council.

Comfortable cushioning underfoot

Exclusive, non-woven vinyl construction of new pool deck and patio surfacing material from 3M Company provides better footing, say spokesmen. Water splashes flow through material, keeping surface drier and helping to prevent falls. No adhesive is needed to hold vinyl to concrete or wood and it can be rolled up during hosing.

Immediate occupancy at Westport Cerritos

The two and three-bedroom townhomes of Westport Cerritos Villas in Cerritos are available for immediate occupancy, according to Merrill Pugmire, marketing director for Westport Home Builders, Inc., developers of the park-like community of roomy dwellings.

In its final phase of construction, innovative interior design features have contributed much to the rapid sales pace of the stylish townhomes, where 188 of the 228 dwellings have been purchased in recent months, according to Pugmire.

Centrally located for easy shopping and family services, the villa townhomes are just off the Artesia Freeway (91) and handy to employment centers of Long Beach, Lakewood, Los Angeles and northern Orange County.

The popular Los Cerritos Mall with major department stores and 64 satellite shops is just a few minutes away by car.

PUGMIRE pointed out that a full range of home financing plans are available at Westport Cerritos Villas: FHA, VA, Cal-Vet and conventional. There is no down payment required on VA loans, he said.

The commodious townhomes are priced from $25,650, and include a long list of interior amenities along with numerous community recreational features.

Kitchens designed for homemaker convenience with luminous ceilings carry a complete line of quality built-in appliances such as range, oven, dishwasher and disposal.

All primary areas are covered with wall-to-wall carpeting, while secondary locations within the homes have been installed with deluxe vinyl asbestos floor covering.

Attached two-car garages with extra storage space offer direct access to the dwellings, each home has a private enclosed patio and some floor plans include huge master suites with walk-in closets or wide-as-wall wardrobes.

A SOCIAL clubhouse, heated swimming pool with cabana, a playground and game tables are provided for the special use of homeowners. The grounds are lushly landscaped and maintained by professionals as are all exterior structures.

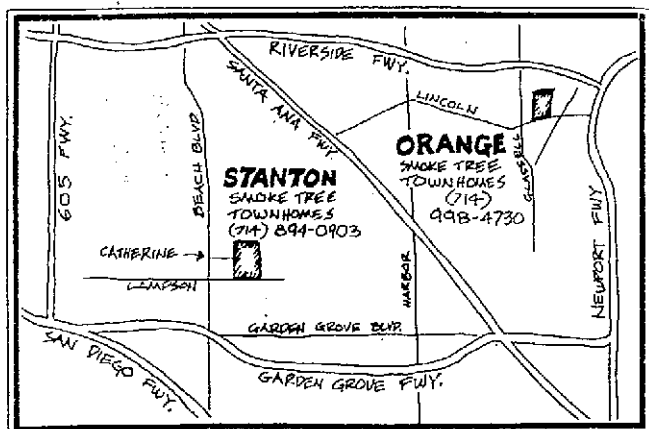

To visit Westport Cerritos Villas take the Artesia Freeway to either Bloomfield or Norwalk and turn north to 166th Street where the models showing the varied floor plans are open for inspection.

The Bad News

Next month, the average new townhome monthly payment will be $3.57 more. In two months, $7.14 more. Three months — $10.71 more. A 6 months' delay adds $21.42 to each and every monthly payment. By then, you may not be able to afford it.

The Good News

Today, you still can buy a 4 bedroom, 2½ bath Smoke Tree townhome for $35,950. 1535 square feet. Available now as the area's outstanding buy. Ideal locations.

Or pay off other bills. And start building equity immediately. Larwin has developed the "Great Take-Off" program that takes away the burden of high monthly house payments.

This is how it works: For example, on a $37,490 home, you would normally have to make a monthly house payment of $235.64*. However, under our "GTO" program, Larwin sends you a check for $100 every month for 12 full months. So your monthly payment is only $135.64. Of course, there are comparable savings on homes in other price ranges. But in order to qualify for Larwin's "Great Take-Off" program, you must take title to your new home by August 23, 1974.

Art show slated at Sherwood Village

"New Variations," an invitational art show featuring the work of 10 new southland artists, will open with a 3 p.m. reception on Saturday, Aug. 17, at the new townhome community of Sherwood Village in Placentia.

The public is invited. The show will continue from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 18, 24 and 25, with the artists present in the gallery, located in one of the Sherwood Village model homes.

Paintings, sculpture, graphics and textile designs will be exhibited in the show, coordinated by Orange County sculptor and painter Pat Mauceri at the request of Sherwood Village builder George D. Buccola.

Location of the exclusive new adult townhome community is Yorba

Linda Boulevard and Rose Lane in Placentia, just east of the Orange Freeway.

Sherwood Village is a private, brick-walled neighborhood, lavishly landscaped and including resort-type recreational/social facilities. There is an elegant clubhouse, swimming and therapy pools, cabana and putting green.

THE two-story townhomes are priced from $35,500 to $42,200 and are offered in two-bedroom-plus-den floor plans with up to 2½ baths and a full complement of price-included features.

Ownership requires one member of the household to be at least 30 years of age while others may be as young as 21.

The development is a joint venture project of the Buccola Co. and Pacific Lighting Properties, Inc., a subsidiary of Pacific Lighting Corp. of Los Angeles.

The model home complex may be easily reached by taking the Orange Freeway to the Yorba Linda Boulevard off-ramp, then drive east on Yorba Linda to Yorba Place (between Valencia Avenue and Rose Drive).

From Imperial Highway, drive south on Rose Drive then right on Yorba Linda to Yorba Place.

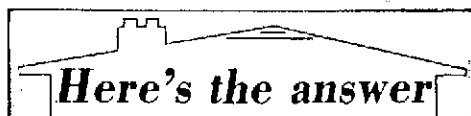

From the Riverside Freeway, take the Kraemer Ave. exit, then north to Yorba Linda Blvd. and east to Sherwood Village in Placentia.

Q. — Some years ago I finished the attic in our house, using 4 by 8 plywood sheets and hardwood molding along the top near the ceiling. I remember that it was quite a job painting the molding a harmonizing color. The lesson I learned was to paint the molding before it was put up. I have a similar job now in another house we bought. Can I buy the molding already finished?

A. — In some lumber yards and building supply houses, yes. But it will cost more. A fairly recent development is the sale of molding in exactly the same color and pattern of the paneling. A friend of mine finished a basement room, using a hardwood paneling with a textured, light-colored surface. The molding was made of exactly the same material in the same color with the same texture. He said the lumber yard had the paneling in stock and was able to get the matching molding on order. As a result, the paneling and the molding flowed together so that the molding was inconspicuous. In molding that is already finished, it usually is stained, because most molding is made of hardwood with a pleasing surface that is best left unpainted.

Q. — I PUT down a flagstone walkway on our property. Grass has now started to grow between the stones. I don't want to run the mower over the stones because of the possibility that the blade might scrape them. What's the best way to keep the grass from growing between the stones?

A. — Use one of the permitted weed killers. It will also kill the grass. But use it carefully according to directions. Especially, don't use it on a windy day if you employ a sprayer.

Q. — WE have a piece of property more than four acres. Part of it is hilly, part flat. Where's the best place on it to locate a house that we will use for weekends and vacations?

A. — Nobody can tell you that unless they see the property. A lot of factors are involved, including the multiplicity or lack of trees, the location of the access road, whether the house will be with or without a basement and, possibly the most important of all, the drainage conditions on the land. Desirable drainage soils include sands, loams and gravels. The highest point on the property is often the best, because it provides the proper surface drainage away from the house in all directions, and the subsurface or ground water will be at the greatest depth.

Also good is a hillside where drainage water can be routed around the high side of the house for runoff at the ends.

Lesny's starts in record

Approximately $7.6 million in housing projects was placed under construction by Lesny Development Co. the first six months of this year, it was reported by executive vice president Rudolph Lowy.

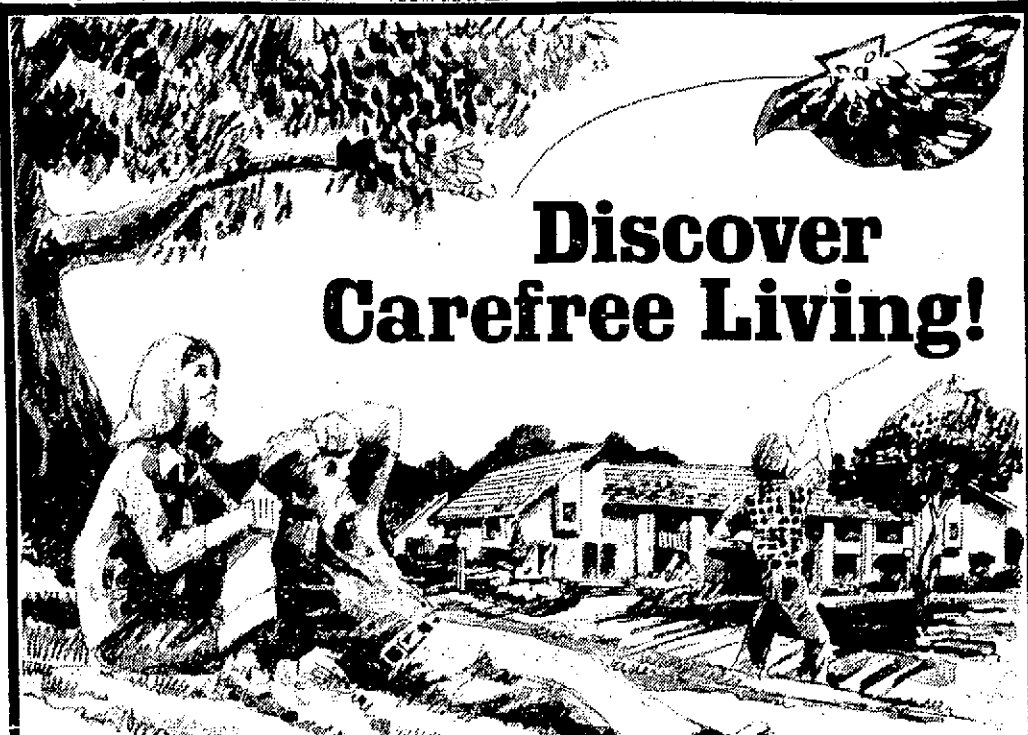

The figure represented the largest dollar volume of building starts for a like period in the 19-year-old company's history, Lowy said. He projected the total for the full 1974 calendar year to exceed $10 million.

Housing units which contributed to the first half-year's activity included the Phase II addition at Alpine Meadow Townhomes in Sunland, Via Versailles rental apartments in Long Beach, Encino Racquet Club condominium homes in Encino and the Country Meadows development of single family residences in Chatsworth.

The Los Angeles-based Lesny Development Co. is a family owned firm founded in 1955 by Marcus Lowy, its president.

What realty boards are doing

RLC

Warren G. Ringer, president of the Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors, announced E. Thornton Ibbetson, board member and vice president of the American Society of Real Estate Counselors (ASREC) will be attending the annual high level conference held in Montebello, Quebec, Canada.

This three-day meeting is arranged with topics, speakers and member participation geared toward an understanding of current questions which relate to the real estate industry.

Theme for this year's conference is "The Economic Impact of the Energy Crisis on Real Estate - Short Term and Long Term."

The program will offer enlightenment and discussion with outstanding experts and top policy makers who will talk on our present and future supplies of oil, gas, electricity, and coal; the effects on research and development, recreation lands and the environmentalists, use of land, and transportation; and the effects on our living, today and tomorrow.

RINGER also announced Pat Neylan, Realtor member, and Louis O'Brien, Realtor associate member, have been selected by the California Real Estate Association to serve as Graduate, Realtors Institute instructors.

The board has four such instructors among its members. Ringer and Bruce Mulhearn are the other two members who instruct GRI classes.

The Graduate, Realtors Institute has been developed to fill the gap between formalized education and on-the-job experience.

EQUAL HOUSING OPPORTUNITY

What can families afford for housing?

By DON CAMPBELL

It would certainly simplify life, but the dullness of it boggles the mind. What would happen, that is, if everyone in the world — although differing in appearance — were exactly alike in his tastes, likes, dislikes and in his response to any given set of circumstances?

MR. CAMPBELL:

I've enclosed a recent article written by you and it raises a question in my mind. Do you, yourself, really feel that the rule-of-thumb — that "the average family can carry a mortgage equal to twice its annual income" — is true? I've read this many times and just can't see it. Or is this figure on an after-tax basis?

My husband makes close to what the people in your column make (Ed: $22,000) and we would never dream of buying a $40,000 home or paying taxes in an expensive neighborhood.

I work part-time bringing our income even closer to your letter writer's income, but I find that I am using my salary to buy a few extras that we could never have before, or to keep our bills paid more promptly.

We don't have outstanding bills; we've never had a new car, no well or completely furnished rooms, and no extensive vacations (never go more than 500 miles and do not stay in motels nor eat in restaurants.) We live within a strict budget and feel that we are frugal.

How do these people making $22,000 a year pay $350-a-month mortgage payments, fill their house with fine furniture, drive a new car (sometimes two), give their kids camp, music lessons, etc? What are they doing right that we're doing wrong?

My own feeling is that these people must be leaning on credit for everything! What's your conclusion? — Mrs. A. L. H., Buffalo, N.Y.

ANSWER: I suspect that there's considerable truth in your conclusions. It's quite true that consumer debt is historically high in these days of tight money, and that many people, quite clearly, are "robbing Peter to pay Paul."

And I think it's hardly a coincidence, either, that delinquencies on consumer debt are currently standing at a 22-year high.

At the same time, mortgage lenders are pretty much in agreement on the "twice-your-annual-income" yardstick and many even think that going to 1-1/2 times income isn't out of line.

Virtually everyone in the business is also in general agreement, however, that the total cost of "carrying" a house — a broad field covering not only mortgage payments and interest, but taxes, utilities, insurance and maintenance — shouldn't exceed one-fourth your monthly income.

On this basis, then, the family with the $22,000 income is cutting it a bit thin when they take on a mortgage payment of $350 a month, since a fourth of their monthly income is about $423.

But, of course, another point has to be kept in mind here: the difference between families in their attitude toward home ownership.

Many people, that is, put such a high value on this that they are perfectly willing to forego many of the niceties of life that the rest of us insist on, simply to attain this goal.

They're quite happy having meatless meals six days out of seven in order to make payments on a mortgage that — in the cold light of day — their income doesn't justify.

People are simply different.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I plan to retire in 1976 at 62 with an income of $1,100 per month which includes pension, Social Security and investment income.

At the present we have close to $42,000 in cash plus income from a $12,000 mortgage due to be paid in full in 1978.

We plan to sell our home and should realize a profit of $75,000 which will make our total worth at the time of retirement about $129,000.

We've just purchased a condominium that is being built and will be ready later this year for $60,000. They are asking 10 per cent down, but we think it would be more advantageous to put down more cash in order to keep the mortgage smaller.

We were advised to put down as little as possible in order to keep more cash on hand drawing interest.

With a large mortgage payment, maintenance fee and utilities, this will cost us about half our monthly income, about $585 a month.

My main concern is the fact that if something should happen to me, leaving my wife a widow, the pension of $700 a month would be discontinued and all she would have as income would be Social Security and interest on our savings, about $7,000 a year.

How would the capital gains tax affect us? — Mr. J. W., Allentown, Pa.

ANSWER: I think that your chief concern centers on what happens to your wife if you predecease her, because there's no way in the world (going the big mortgage route) that she's going to be able to cut a $585 monthly payment on Social Security and the interest income that you project.

As a matter of fact, I'm a bit uneasy at all of your projections — at the assumption that you will, of course, realize a $75,000 profit on your home when you sell it in 1976 (and yes, you'll pay a capital gains tax on this which will work out to about one-half of your usual rate), and that you'll be able to invest your assets two years from now to yield you 7-1/2 per cent, which, as I calculate it, is the figure you're using.

What you are doing is basing all of your plans on 1974 realities (today you could get between 8 and 9 per cent on your money in good-rated corporate bonds instead of 7-1/2 per cent), not 1976's possibilities.

Incidentally, just how would you pay off the condominium in full today since the money you intend to use for this purpose won't be realized for another two years?

I'm not saying that you should pay off the condominium completely, but you've certainly got to pay enough on it to get those monthly payments down to the point where your wife can afford them when you die.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Writer

A new message transmission system is putting low-cost home security within reach of subscribers in large housing complexes and condominiums and in the matter of a few years whole communities may be guarded against intrusion, fire and other emergencies by the alarm hookup that sends coded messages to monitoring centers.

So says Barry N. Horn of Milwaukee who devised the system which can be used even now by residential homes and businesses in close proximity to such complexes. Another aim is eventually to link single family residences in a plug-in system of some sort.

Hitherto most alarm systems have been expensive — available to the affluent or to the individual in housing complexes. But the next electronic capability makes it possible to link a large number of subscribers — 12,672 — on one line, give each one individual protection and bring the cost down.

IT DIFFERS from basic systems where each alarm is connected to a repeater station and feeds back to a main station over a trunk line. That basic security system has been able to identify the station nearest the problem, but it could not identify the origin of the alarm, Horn explained.

In solving that problem Horn maintains his patented system is "electronically unique." An individual may be spotted at once as needing help.

Horn's system is able to bypass the expense of small capacity telephone trunk lines by feeding alerts to a building-based relay station which sorts out the coded information and sends it by telephone to the 24-hour monitoring station. In a large hookup this breakthrough makes it possible to provide the service for about $5 a month.

"The system works like a giant octopus with 128 subscribers on each of 99 octopus feelers that can be fed into a monitoring station on one line. It could even be fed directly into a police station where monitoring is possible," explained Horn.

AT THE main station the unit includes a computerized printer storage facility for more than one signal at a time, plus a standby generator to take over in the event of a power emergency.

Coded tone signals are automatically interpreted in numbers and letters printed as a permanent record of the progression of events, including the date and exact minute of the intrusion, fire or other emergency. Such messages can be recorded every four-tenths of a second. The computer print-out is useful also in furnishing documented evidence to law enforcement agencies, insurance adjusters and others.

Horn, the 32-year-old president of Datalarm, was an installer of communications and alarm systems for three years after studying electrical engineering at the Milwaukee School of Engineering. He devised the present system and applied for his patent when he was given the opportunity to custom plan a security system in a large resort which included apartments, shopping centers and recreation facilities.

THERE IS no limit to where the idea can go, he says. It has all sorts of springoffs.

"We can program a door panel for 20 combinations of coded 'keys' that will open a door and at the same time provide a coded message that tells who opened the door, what time it was opened and who entered it."

It can be useful on campuses where persons might need to gain entrance to schools on weekends. Installations are made for heat sensing and smoke sensing, as well as for sniffing out gas leaks. Cottages can be monitored for pipe freezing or fire.

a garden of sweet spells

EXULTING IN THE sunshine and aromatic herbs that cover her backyard, Betty Wylder greets the day.

Staff photos by ROBERT GINN

Life/style

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—L/S-1

Joyce Christensen, Editor

Long Beach, Calif., Sun., Aug. 11, 1974

INTENSELY INVOLVED in her project, herb expert Betty Wylder fills a magical mojo bag for a friend. Each little red sack is different, chock-full of herbs and sealed with fragrant oils.

By CAROL IVY
Staff Writer

If you're having trouble growing parsley, it's probably because you are too good a person.

You must overcome that goodness if you want a healthy parsley patch, because parsley grows well only for the very wicked. Also, you should plant four times as much parsley as is needed, because parsley must make nine trips to the devil before it's grown.

Sage hits of advice from Betty Wylder, relaxing in the shade of a backyard patio surrounded by her own budding herb gardens.

Noting she is NOT a witch herself, Mrs. Wylder said she simply attempts to absorb all the information she can about 'witches' herbs.

"I had always been fascinated with the occult," she explained, "so when our daughters (Betty is married to Long Beach State University English professor Dr. Robert Wylder) saw 'Rosemary's Baby' and wanted to start a witch's garden, I agreed."

"Dr. Glenn Walker, then president of the Long Beach Herb Society, gave the girls some jimson weed (a tall, ominous-looking, poisonous member of the nightshade family) and some poison hemlock.

"Then when the girls went away to school, Bob and I were left caring for what herbs they had planted. That's when my interest grew and I began reading everything I could get my hands on — which isn't much — about witches and their herbs."

THE WYLDERS JOINED the Herb Society and Betty was charged with putting together a witchcraft display for the Long Beach Hobby Show. Bob re-planted their front and back yards, with every type herb imaginable.

Since then, Betty's become something of a local celebrity, lecturing before social and educational groups about how witches make use of plants.

"The wonderful thing about herbs, whether you're a witch or not, is that most are weeds and require very little care and not much moisture. And they smell so wonderful," Mrs. Wylder said, sniffing the air.

Their yards today are lovely and wild and overflowing with yummy lemon, peppermint, floral and tangy scents that waft across the patio and into the house.

"You can do so much with herbs," she pointed out. "Use them in cooking, make gifts from them or just leave the dried ones around for their lovely aromas. Linen closets smell so much nicer with a bit of lavender."

PUSHING THE LONG sleeves of her Indian-print, loose, cotton shirt away from the pages of a notebook she's filled with bewitching words, Mrs. Wylder returned to the subject of witches' herbs.

"People visited witches throughout the years for a variety of reasons, you know. They performed many functions — as physicians, casters of spells. Witches certainly had to know their gardens."

"Many herbs, of course, have been used extensively for medicinal purposes throughout history. Witches probably used them all first."

"Foxglove, which we have growing in some pots back behind the shed, is a plant that now is well-known as a major source of digitalis, a powerful cardiac stimulant. It was 'discovered' many years ago by a doctor who found a witch in Shropshire, England, administering tiny doses of foxglove to some of her clients."

Pointing toward a prickly cactus-type plant, Mrs. Wylder said "and that is aloe vera, an extraordinary source of ointment."

She tore off half a leaf and a gooey, thick substance oozed out. "It is wonderful for sunburns, cuts, kitchen burns, mosquito bites. We keep one of the plants around all the time for just those purposes and simply smooth a little on the injury. It's very soothing and takes away all the burn and itch. I noticed the other day a bottle of suntan lotion that contained aloe vera."

"And then there's ephedra, a plant that is a major source of ephedrine, a cold medicine."

"And did you know that wormwood — besides being a major ingredient in ver-mouth and absinthe, which is illegal in this country — is one ingredient in Absorbine Jr?" she laughed.

"Look over there by my back door," Mrs. Wylder indicated, pointing toward a lovely leafy-green plant spreading just outside the screen. "That's angelica, the holiest of all plants. It should be planted by one door and dill by another to guard the house against evil spirits. For additional protection, hang some garlic over the doorways."

"I've only done the garlic bit once, though," she admitted, "when three rather disturbing things happened in one day. First, the mailman announced he'd found a dead rat by the doorstep. I found an entire book of burned matches alongside the house. And a friend called with some especially bad news. That did it. My daughter hung out the garlic!"

SOME SWEET-SMELLING and familiar herbs, besides making beautiful pomanders and potpourri, are good for specific bewitching purposes, as Mrs. Wylder explained.

Lemon verbena makes awfully good tea, she noted, reaching to pinch-smell a thimbleful. "And if you carry a sprig of it in your pocket, it will uncross any spell a witch has cast upon you." How handy.

Chamomile is for those wishing luck at cards. Gamblers should wash their hands in chamomile tea before sitting down to a game.

Rosemary is for general good luck and, in particular, bridesmaids pin sprigs of it on a bridegroom for special happiness.

Sage strengthens memory. In Sicily, if a couple is having a falling-out, they are given sprigs of pennyroyal, which is also hung on fig trees to prevent the fruit from falling before it's fully ripe.

Lucky hand root is carried for good luck in all five fingers.

If unwanted company arrives, scrub your floors with rue (a vile-smelling herb) and that company will never return. But

Black women achievers hailed

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK — You've heard of Shirley Chisholm, the Democratic congresswoman from New York, whose name was placed in presidential nomination at the Democratic National Convention last time around.

You've heard over television recently another black and female congresswoman, Rep. Barbara Jordan from Texas. You saw and heard her during broadcasts of the House Judiciary Committee's Watergate and/or impeachment debate.

The two are just the tip of the iceberg. Black and female power in public life is moving ahead at local, state and national levels.

The Washington-based Joint Center for Political Studies in a national survey counts 337 black women in elective office — from municipal court judges and school board members to members of Congress. Compared with the total number of elective offices, 520,000, it's tiny. But it is a 160 per cent increase over the number of black women in elective office in 1969.

DR. ETHEL ALLEN is a surgeon and Philadelphia City Councilwoman. She enjoys telling people she ran on the platform — "fat, black and intelligent." Her philosophy for black females: "You should never apologize for three things: being black, being female, and being able to do the job."

Emma Darnell, a lawyer, is commissioner of the Department of Administrative Services for the city of Atlanta. Her staff numbers 200. Her budget for purchasing: $60 million.

Jewel Lafontant is deputy solicitor general in the Department of Justice; Connie Newman is one of five commissioners of the Federal Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Black females in business and public life were hailed when C. Delores Tucker, also black and female, spoke to her achieving sisters a little while back.

She is secretary of state for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania — third biggest job there.

Using an oratorical style reminiscent of an old-fashioned black preacher, she fired off the verbal salutes at a lunch in the Hunt Room (once a male enclave) at the Twenty-one Club in New York.

Mrs. Tucker was among the black female achievers honored by host Earl Graves, publisher of Black Enterprise magazine. The current issue is devoted to black women high achievers in business and public life.

MRS. TUCKER, who has a very regal bearing, rolled her r's and fixed her audience with voice as well as stares during grand pauses.

She drew the most "amen, sister" when she said achievements of black females remind her of what a black woman long ago said when she was freed from slavery. To wit:

"I feel so tall ... within me I feel the power of the nation."

"Many of you," she said, "have infiltrated the halls of the kings of business, industry, education, government."

"Many of you are in the position to bring influence to bear — if you have the courage of Esther who could say — 'I will go in unto the king, which is not according to the law and if I perish: I perish.'"

"Esther knew what seven million black women must learn — that power is always there, waiting to be used; and if you don't use it for good, someone else will seize it for evil!"

She reminded the key women in key places that "the function of a key is to open locks."

"Key people unlock doors but we cannot stop at this roster of noted achievers. There are seven million other black women of voting age in this nation today — anonymous women, unknown and unsung — who are also key

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Sailing for fun, dollars

By CAROLYN McDOWELL

DR. HAL AND MARTI Ochsner put a sailboat in their swimming pool.

The Sabot class craft, donated by M. Z. Marine Woodwork, will be given to the lucky (or skillful) winner of the upcoming (Sept. 7th) sail-a-thon sponsored by the Long Beach Lung Association.

Since Hal is president of the association, he and Marti invited sponsors and committee members to their Huntington Harbour home for cocktails and prize viewing.

Marti tells me that they came up with the idea of a Sabot race to pique public interest in clean air and clean lungs — and what is better for both than a sea voyage — even a short one.

The money raising angle will be similar to walk-a-thons with pledges made for miles sailed. It will probably cost you extra if your sponsored boat tips over.

There will be entry blanks around town and they hope to have 200 boats racing around Alamitos Bay for a good cause and a great prize.

I have to tell you a story about my sailor son, Larry, who has been Sabot racing for about ten years.

When he was much younger, he came home one day a trifle damp.

"How did you do?" I asked.

"Well," came the reply, "My boat was in first place all the way but I hiked (that is sailing talk for hanging over the edge to make the boat go faster) out so far that my hiking strap broke. I fell overboard and the boat went on without me."

The boat can't win a race without a skipper so he was disqualified.

Back to who was at the kick-off party.

More were the Dick Van der Laans, Dr. Walter and Marni Stegeman, Dr. Anselmo and Monique Pineda, Carolyn Raney, Dr. Gerry and Dorian Trostler, Glen Tatum, Alan and Ophelia Voda, Dr. Ralph and Jan Simonian The Dr. Dick Reeses, Paul and Sharlene Sullivan and Dr. Kent and Chari Thayer.

IT WAS HAPPY birthday time at Margaret Andersons.

Everyone came to offer good wishes and view her new Westminster townhouse.

Those assisting at the cocktail buffet were Lori Eaks and brother Kevin, Wilson Bell and Mike and Judy Bell.

Guests included John and Catherine Smith, Larry and Heather Eaks, Jerry and Helen King, Tom Cook, Pete Peters and Lela Pierce, Vera McMasters and son, Tom, Frank and Marilyn Hartzell and Margaret's daughter, Bev Brown.

Judy Johnson was there sans husband, Homer.

Homer is in rehearsal for the father in the Community Playhouse production of "Time Out For Ginger."

Actually Homer just went along with daughter, Kathy for the try-outs.

Homer got the part of father all right but they didn't think Kathy would make a believable daughter for Homer.

LONG BEACH'S loss is Pasadena's gain.

Long time localite, Thelma Gittleman wed Dr. Edward Neumann Horner in a recent ceremony.

They announced their surprise marriage to family and friends at a dinner party in their new Pasadena home.

HARVEY AND MARIE Beckman invited friends from all over to come for cocktails and dinner.

And they did. Dr. Ron and Davida Gersten flew all the way from St. Louis, Mo., to say hello. Max and Zelda Stollard popped in from San Diego.

Others from nearby included Archie and Marion Lloyd, Dr. Sam and Ruth Fishman, Sal and Carrie Barbara, Harry and Edith Rubin, Howard and Blanche Amos, Ira and Judy Handelman, Lloyd and Barbara McCormick, Bill and Gloria Bayzerman and the host's son Bill and his wife, Barbara.

Party goers danced to the music of Jerry Elliot and his one man orchestra.

MEMBERS OF EBELL Juniors gathered at the Bixby Knolls home of Jeff and Marsi Skinner to honor new provisionals, eat steak and view the Skinners' street light.

Yes, a genuine antique light which once graced a street in our town, now resides in their back yard.

Party planners were Linda Williams and husband, Lynn, Sue Lemmerman and Jim, Terry Lee Peterson and Ralph.

New provisionals are Sherry Jenkins, Marlys Livingood, Sue Durant, Robbie Westburg, Pat Delgado and Joyce Guimond.

On hand to welcome guests were President, Judy Daniels and her husband, Hal.

SISTER Mary Wilfred, seven years as administrator at St. Mary's, catches up on paper work before leaving Long Beach for new assignment as coordinator of health care for 16 hospitals run by her order.

Sister Mary

Wilfred gets new post

By DIANNE SMITH
Staff Writer

During her tenure as administrator at St. Mary's, Sister Mary Wilfred Shorten has presided over the largest expansion program in the hospital's 50-year history, culminating in establishment of the Bauer Hospital-St. Mary Medical Center complex.

She also has witnessed dramatic changes in the field of health care, with the addition of specialized care areas and regional medical facilities, including making St. Mary's the base station for Long Beach paramedics two years ago.

These events are some of the accomplishments pointed to with pride by Sister Mary Wilfred as she prepares to leave Long Beach after seven years. "The long-range plan was being developed when I came and things started happening after that. Of course, we're not finished yet," she said during an interview in her office in the Bauer addition.

The opening in February of the Bauer addition to the hospital increased the bed capacity from 341 to 537 to make St. Mary's the second largest of the 16 hospitals operated by her order, the Sisters of Charity of the Incarnate Word.

Sister Mary Wilfred has been elected by other members of the order to the governing board of seven directors. She will serve at least a four-year term as coordinator of health care for the congregation's hospitals located in Texas, Louisiana and California (besides St. Mary's, there's St. Bernadine's in San Bernardino, where Sister Mary Wilfred was supervisor of the X-ray department from 1944-55), plus a care facility for the aged in Salt Lake City, Utah.

She will report to Houston, Tex., to assume her new duties in September.

SHE HAS SERVED as administrator (the title was changed to president in 1971) longer than any previous sister. She explained why.

"Under canon law, an administrator also served as superior of the convent at the hospital and one sister could not serve more than two three-year terms as superior. Therefore, after six years, she would have to move somewhere else. However, this was changed four years ago to allow the convent sisters to elect their own superior. That's how I could be appointed for a third term. I was one year into that when the new appointment came."

Soft-spoken and bearing a trace of the Irish brogue of her heritage (she was born in County Cork, Ireland, and came to the United States in 1933), Sister Mary Wilfred was reticent to talk about herself, but commented more freely about the changes she has seen at St. Mary's. "Through ambulatory (outpatient) and preventive care, a patient's time in the hospital is less."

During her tenure, she also opened the board of directors to lay persons "to get input from the community we serve." The advisory committees to the board also are composed primarily of lay people, she added.

REFLECTING ON St. Mary's role in Long Beach, she said, "it has contributed to the well-being of the community for 50 years and has stayed in the forefront of providing health care. The establishment of specialty care areas has enhanced this position and the connection with UCLA in medical education three years ago has kept us ahead in innovative programs and continuing education."

She oversees 1,200 employees, plus a medical staff of 200, a number she hopes will increase with the opening of more accommodations at Bauer. "Doctors go where the beds are available."

Believing a national health insurance plan is "around the bend within a couple of years," Sister Mary Wilfred mused that more and more medical care will become regulated by the government. "I think it's good...that it will improve medical care because quality assurance is stressed. California is advanced in anticipating things and the California Hospital Commission, proposed by the state hospital association, has already adopted state regulations."

"I see great advantages in such trends. I think it will upgrade the general quality of care everywhere."

HER NEW JOB will entail assisting the administrators of the various hospitals with long-range planning. "This will be done through meetings every two months. It will require me to do some traveling, too. I've visited every hospital at one time or another and know all the sisters. I think I'll enjoy the work and I look forward to it."

Her replacement as president is Sister Mary Eusebius Brett, who is scheduled to arrive around Aug. 18 for a two-week orientation by Sister Mary Wilfred. She comes from St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a 400-bed facility in Beaumont, Tex., where she was president.

The hospital family will say good-bye to Sister Mary Wilfred and welcome to Sister Mary Eusebius at a reception Wednesday, Aug. 21, from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Education Hall across from the medical center.

AT WIT'S END

By ERMA BOMBECK

The way everyone talks about recycling you'd think it was something new. Big deal. Our family has been doing it for years.

We never throw anything away ... clothes, furniture, appliances, toys, canning jars, maternity clothes ... cars ... we just call up the family and say, "I'm weeding out my treasures so if you want to look through before I give them the pitch" ... and before you can hang up there are 30 cars in the driveway.

More junk has been re-prieved from the jaws of the Goodwill and Salvation Army than anyone wants to admit.

When I was first married it wasn't unusual for me to drop the phone and head for the car shouting, "Pat is getting rid of her hot water heater." My husband said I clocked more hours in a U-Haul than I did in my marriage bed.

THERE WASN'T anything too tacky to be used again. A maternity dress with a knot in the drawstring ... a sleeping bag without a zipper ... a freezer that heated up ... a washer with parts available only behind the Iron Curtain ... a dress that could be worn and used to dust the piano at the same time ... a pair of boots with a hole in the sole ... all were goodies that we fought over like feeding time at the zoo.

I guess nothing generated more excitement than when one member of the family bought something new. I recall when my Aunt Louise bought a new chair, everyone moved up a chair. Her daughter inherited her old chair that had survived three cats in diapers. With the cat chair, her chair with the faded slipcover went to my mother. Mother's chair with the grease stains from Dad's hair dressing went to my sister. Her chair with the spring that came through the cushions came to me and my chair with the rip in the cording went to my cousin, Virginia. Her chair ... well, all in all, 15 people played the game of musical chairs.

THE HANDING down of clothes was probably worse. Wearing a discarded dress out was like going to a Hollywood wedding. It was risky to make any comment as everyone at one time or another had had custody of the dress. The other day I collected a large pile of stuff in the garage. "I think the economy is worse in this country than it has ever been before," I said to my husband.

"What makes you say that?"

"Look at the quality of this junk," I said picking up a Nehru jacket.

"This stuff looks familiar," he said.

"It should," I sighed. "It's EXACTLY the same pile of junk I offered ten years ago and now it has all come back full cycle. I don't know what the world is coming to."

The Aces on bridge

IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn: Some of our players say that a jump overall shows a weak hand. Most of us have always played it as a strong bid and highly invitational. Are we behind the times?

Over Forty.

Answer: Yes and no. The modern tournament treatment is to play it weak — a good six card suit and little else. However, most rubber bridge players have not converted and still play the bid as you do.

Dear Mr. Corn: Please cool this hot potato. Should East pass, or bid four spades after this bidding? East held:

♠ A 10 8 5
♥ Q 9
♦ A K 10 8 7
♣ 10 8

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♥	Dbl.	2♥	3♣
Pass	Pass	3♥	3♣
Pass	?

Sour Cream
St. Louis

Answer: He should pass. West is competing for the part score and should not be punished for doing so. On this bidding, West may well have five clubs and only three spades.

Dear Mr. Corn: Does the Q-X in a suit bid by the opponents count as two points?

Wasted Queen
San Francisco

Answer: Point count evaluation is only a guide for bidding judgment and can change as the bidding unfolds. In general, "promote unguarded honors when partner bids the suit; demote them when the opponents bid the suit." Otherwise, count them.

Dear Mr. Corn: In the game of Whist how was the trump suit determined?

Historian
Norwalk, Conn.

Answer: In Whist there was no bidding, as there is today. The trump suit was determined by the dealer's turning the last card face up on the table and that suit was trumps. After play to the first trick, the dealer could return the card to his hand.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Texas 75225 with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

Young couples married in religious ceremonies

Schafer-Morgan

A ceremony Saturday afternoon at Silverado United Methodist Church united in marriage Patricia Lynn Morgan and Charles P. Schafer Jr. Mrs. Richard Simmons was maid of honor for the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Downing L. Morgan Sr. of Long Beach. William Schafer attended the bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Schafer of Whittier.

The new Mrs. Schafer was graduated from Polytechnic High School and Long Beach City College. She is a student at Long Beach State University, where her husband was graduated.

They will live in Long Beach after a honeymoon trip to South Laguna Beach.

Dunbar-Denhaan

A first home in Fullerton awaits newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keith Dunbar (Felicia Jeneke Renee Denhaan) who were married Saturday afternoon at United Methodist Church of Garden Grove.

Mrs. Lamont LaMere was matron of honor for the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander E. Denhaan of Fullerton. The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Dunbar of Long Beach, asked Robert M. Wedemeyer to be best man.

The bride is a student at Fullerton College. Her husband is an alumnus of Long Beach City College and UCLA.

They are honeymooning in Seattle and Canada.

Heneise-Fowler

Millikan High School graduates Barbara L. Fowler and John W. Heneise were united in marriage Saturday noon in a ceremony at Wardlow Park.

Sharon Heneise was maid of honor for the bride, daughter of Mrs. R.F. Peeters and W.R. Fowler, both of Long Beach. Ron Sleeper performed best man duties for the bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Heneise, also of Long Beach.

The newlyweds were graduated from Long Beach City College. The bridegroom also is an alumnus of Long Beach State University where he affiliated with Epsilon Pi Tau.

They are honeymooning in San Diego and will make their home in Long Beach.

Parks-Montgomery

Kathleen Beatrice Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dion M. Montgomery of Long Beach, became the bride of William Albert Parks Jr. in a ceremony Saturday morning at Long Beach Unitarian Universalist Church.

Gail Pilchman was maid of honor.

The bride was graduated from Wilson High School and UC Berkeley. She did her graduate work at UC Santa Barbara. Her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Albert Parks of Urbana, Ill., attended the University of Illinois and was graduated from California State University at Fresno.

They will live in Lancaster.

THE NEW ETIQUETTE

Priceless menus bring complaint

By MAUREEN ELENA REARDON

Q. We were at a fine restaurant a couple of weeks ago. When my wife picked up her menu, she commented that there weren't any prices on it. I noticed that there were prices written in pencil on my menu. I thought that someone had made a mistake, and had forgotten to write the prices on my wife's menu, so I called the waitress over. She told me that women accompanied by men were given menus without prices because "women shouldn't have to worry about the price of food... men should." I was astounded, but didn't know what to do. Any ideas? — M. A.

A. You could first have suggested to the waitress that she bring your wife a menu with prices on it. Then you could have asked to see the manager or owner to complain. Giving a woman a menu without prices is a sexist practice. It furthermore deprives the woman of her right to choose what she will order on the basis of its price, and could be a sneaky way for management to push the expensive items on the menu.

Q. EVERY TIME I call my 18-year-old baby-sitter and ask, "Is Beth there?" whoever answers the phone will say, "Who is this?" Her mother does this. The children in the house even answer the phone, "Smithies' residence, who is this?" Should I give my name? — Mrs. E. T.

A. When the children answer, say, "I'd like to speak to Beth." If they persist and say, "Who is this?" again, you should say, "I will tell Beth who this is," or repeat "May I speak to Beth?" until you finally get through to her. The problem with the mother is a little more complex. You can say, "I will tell Beth who this is," because it's none of the mother's business who you are. But she might not let her daughter baby-sit for you again.

Catholic cards

A public card party is planned Wednesday noon in the parish hall of St. Cyprian Church, Clark Avenue and Arbor Road, Q. I AM HAVING problems with my kids. A couple of weeks ago my daughter, who is just learning to talk, pointed to my knee and said, "Ball." (I have bony knees.) Today my six-year-old son seriously asked my neighbor, "Why do you have a nose like a witch?" What should I do? — J. P.

A. There comes a time when parents have to have a kind of "facts of etiquette" talk with their children. I think it's time for you to tell your son that before he says something he should consider if it would hurt people's feelings. Say that your neighbor was hurt when he mentioned his nose. Tell him that people are all made differently, that we are not all made perfectly, and that he should accept this.

As for your daughter, she's obviously too young to reason with, so you'll have to live with her.

observations. I guess we all have to have a little sense of humor about ourselves. When your daughter gets a little older tell her what she said, and say, "I almost went out and got a knee job."

FASCINATING FABRICS

Sewing with triacetate

By FRANCES DIETRICH
Mrs. S.S., St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was pleased to see your column on triacetate. I have worn this fabric for years, whenever I could find it in ready-to-wear. It lasts indefinitely. Now I would like to sew with triacetate since it is becoming available in yard goods. However, I am not a particularly skillful seamstress and wonder what problems I'd encounter. Can you help?"

Gladly. Undoubtedly this reader has in mind a lightweight tricot jersey, as this is one of the most familiar 100 per cent triacetate fabrics in dresses. First, let's explore the type of knit. Tricot jersey is identified by tiny lengthwise wales on the face and crosswise wales, i.e., rows of knit stitches on the back.

Its structure provides certain advantages to the home sewer. It is stronger than a circular single knit jersey; more opaque; run-resistant and snag-resistant.

NOW TO ZERO in on transforming the soft, drapable triacetate tricot into a daydress, blouse, separates or stunning evening pajamas. Select a pattern with a minimum of seams. Preshrink the fabric along with zipper, interfacing fabric, seam and hem tapes. Just dunk it and dry it by machine or hand the way you would wash the finished garment.

Be prepared with a pair of very sharp shears, ballpoint pins and a ballpoint needle size No. 9 to 11, and polyester/cotton thread. Check the tension of the sewing machine on a double thickness of fabric. The tension should be fairly light, the stitches appearing the same on both sides. Sew approximately eight to 10 stitches per inch.

Stay-stitch curves and other off-grain edges so they'll be stable when joined to other garment sections. Sew woven seam tape into shoulder seams and waistline seams to maintain firmness at these stress points.

Sew at a uniform pace, holding the fabric gently in front and behind the needle, applying only a slight amount of tension to prevent seam puckering.

Finish facing edges with zigzag stitching or straight stitching one-fourth of an inch from the edge and tack in place with a loose hand. Finish the hem edge the same way and sew in place by hand with tailor's hem or catch-stitch.

BETTY Wylder sits at a table on the patio of her Long Beach home and discusses her plant loves — the herbs that surround her.

Sweet, magical herbs

— rue tea also will stop you from talking in your sleep.

Madly in love with someone who is not paying sufficient attention to you? Dissolve sugar in rosewater, add powdered almonds and finely chopped cashews. Feed the drink to your intended and he or she will love only you.

A man who wants to be positively alluring should add dill seed to his bath water before visiting the woman he loves. Mrs. Wylder said he will be absolutely irresistible.

If you've got a day in court upcoming, take along a piece of Low John the Conqueror root, bite off a bit as you walk through the door and toss the piece into a corner of the room, thereby insuring a favorable verdict.

ALL THESE GOODIES and others are herbs Mrs. Wylder frequently combines in small amounts for individual mojo bags for friends and strangers. A mojo bag is a little red packet stuffed with appropriate herbs which the recipient is to carry with him always and squeeze in moments of great stress.

The mojo must be red, the color for luck, and tied with three strands of red thread, knotted three times and looped three times around the top of the bag. It is then marked on one side with a tarot symbol and on the other with an astrological sign — both for luck.

Witches, Mrs. Wylder said somewhat sadly, always have had a rather hard time of it, in spite of the good luck and happiness they dole out along with a few evil spells here and there.

"You know the expression 'I slept like a log last night?'" she asked. "Well, that was a code among witches of yesterday to indicate they had attended meetings of their covens the night before. Before leaving home, a witch put a log in her bed and covered it, making it appear she was sleeping. Just in case some of the people who enjoyed hanging witches or burning them at stakes should show up."

Black achievers

women in key places. Key to the family, key to the community and key to the future of black America."

MRS. TUCKER urged the honored women to help black children to a dose of pride in themselves and hope to bring forth the best that is in each.

"For whatever warps and twists one child, warps and twists our whole society."

"We need to educate our children that black ain't beautiful when it's dumb! We must add another b — for brains."

Other women saluted included: — Ernesta Procope. Out of the pockets of poverty that cover much of Bedford-Stuyvesant in New York, she has fashioned an $8.2 million insurance brokerage business.

— Shirley Jackson, theoretical physics group, Fermi National Laboratory, Chicago, Ill.

— Harriet Michel, executive director of New York Foundation, with a budget in excess of $20 million.

— Joan Murray, former television news woman. Executive vice president and director of public relations, Zebra Associates, New York.

— Ethel Payne, associate editor, Sengstacke Newspapers, Chicago.

— Christine Philpot Clark, an attorney at CBS Inc. She also is an author. Among her books is "How to Get Along with Black People."

— Dorothy I. Height, national president of the National Council of Negro Women and director for the Center for Racial Justice of the Young Women's Christian Association of the U.S.A.

— Howardena Pindell, assistant curator of the Museum of Modern Art and a recognized artist.

Black women, says the report in Black Enterprise magazine, have something extra going for them when it comes to succeeding in business:

"A long tradition of hard work enables them to make the most of gradually opening high-level opportunities."

Cook up a gourmet kitchen look

By JUDY HAZLETT

Home Furnishings Editor

YEAR-ROUND GARDEN retreat kitchen was created by designer Bickford Johnson with more imagination than cost. The secret was the use of wallcovering designs which sum up and symbolize summer and garden scenes. Their environmental influence is accentuated by decorative architectural features such as the arched lambrequins (easily constructed with plywood or particle board) enhanced by a "Roman shade" look created with roller shades.

OES chapter to note 75th anniversary

Members of Long Beach Chapter 173, Order of Eastern Star, will mark the chapter's 75th anniversary Friday at 8 p.m. in Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

Organized in 1899 as the first chapter in Long Beach, early meetings were held in the Castle Hall, downtown.

Presiding over the festivities will be Frances Hayden, worthy matron, and Paul Rewland, worthy patron. Irene Hawthorne, past matron, is in charge of the program.

Highlights of the chapter's history will be presented by Mrs. Viola Dunbar, who served as worthy matron in 1922.

Entertainment will be provided by the Sweet Adelines octet and the Early Indications, a banjo trio.

Among special guests will be Zoe Harris of Long Beach, worthy grand matron of the state of California, and James Craven of Oakland, worthy grand patron.

RCEA to hear international children's choir

The International Children's Choir will entertain at noon luncheon meeting Wednesday of Long Beach Retired City Employees Association in Veteran's Park Clubhouse, 28th Street and Pine Avenue.

The 65 members of the choir range in age from 4 to 16. Easter Beakley is director of the group, which recently received the George Washington Honor Medal Award for Musical Ambassadors.

While cookbooks of every kind and ethnic derivation have become best-sellers countrywide, very little has been written about where these concoctions are prepared or served. If anything, the focus has been on the efficiency of kitchen appliances and equipment, and not how this most used area looks or what environment it creates.

As we know from our first cooking experiences — whether 12 and baking brownies or past 20, newlywed and making that first pot of coffee, kitchens should be outfitted to function. Hopefully we soon realize that they must have fashion as well.

One of the easiest, most practical and economical ways to create a refreshingly new and appetite-inspiring look is with easy-to-clean, easy-to-apply vinyl fabric wallcoverings.

They can be applied to all types of surfaces, including discolored enamel appliances and kitchen cabinets, and removed just as easily.

Whatever look or color scheme you wish to create, the right design is sure to exist. There are rich textures as well as sleek wet looks ... there are stunning, shiny foils and metalized Mylar designs.

Or what about the traditional damasks or Colonial themes — crisp geometrics and super graphics.

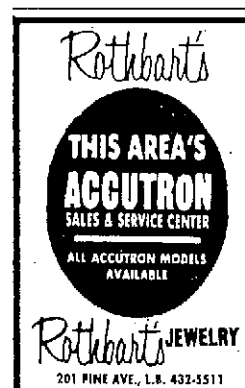

Dining can take on drama ... eye-catching designs used in imaginative ways to create a retreat for the cook; a haven for the gourmets.

MAKE A KITCHEN come alive and bring the outdoors inside with lots of leafy house plants, hanging lamps made of flower pots. The fanciful floral wallcovering is in rich shades of green and yellow creating a sunshiny kitchen all year round. And the pattern of big blocks is a perfect size for special touches, like using them on drawer fronts. It can also be made into shades with a new easy-to-apply backing designed just for vinyl fabric wallcoverings. Here, matching shades serve as a room divider, as well as light control, between kitchen and snack area.

Pictures at an exhibition

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

At Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., things keep changing. That is, the exhibits do. Through the summer — until Sept. 22 — this state will continue in keeping with the exhibition theme, "Kaleidoscope: Changing Selections From the Permanent Collection."

The museum sends this description: This exhibition will include familiar works, some resuscitations, some newly acquired objects. The exhibition, constantly changing, will provide the regular museum-goer with a kaleidoscope of works from the museum's Permanent Collection. Especially featured will be a group of past gifts to the museum from Dr. and Mrs. Maurice M. Rosenbaum of Long Beach.

Also at the museum, on permanent exhibit, is a display of enlarged photographs of art museum designs by I. M. Pei, the Chinese-American architect who is designing the new Long Beach art museum.

Beach is going to foster both art and nature.

How? By holding their second annual art auction at the Elk's Lodge, 4101 E. Willow St.

Jamin Art Auctions of Van Nuys will supply 125 pieces of art — lithographs, oils, etchings, serigraphs, watercolors — which will go on view at 8 p.m., then will be auctioned at 9 o'clock.

For a donation of $2.50, each guest will receive a catalog of all art on exhibit, a bidding paddle, refreshments and a door prize ticket. No-host cocktails will be available.

All proceeds from the auction will go into the Uptown Kiwanis Club Foundation Fund which supports programs for the aged, for youth work, underprivileged children, support of churches, vocational guidance, high school Key Clubs, college Circle K Clubs and the club's major emphasis program.

That's where nature comes in. This year's major emphasis program is the construction of a concrete path through Eldorado Park Nature Center on Studebaker Road. The path will have a guide rail and touch plates or recordings at stop stations so those who are blind may enjoy the nature center without having to have a sighted person along.

Among artists whose work will be auctioned are Chagall, Picasso, Miro, Braque, Peter Dunn, Guy Maccoy, Anne Hershenburgh and the Vietnamese artist, Lobadang.

MONDAY, beginning at 10 a.m., an important sculpture collection will be lifted by helicopter from the garden where it has been displayed for 12 years to begin its trip from the home of art collector Joseph H. Hirshhorn to Washington, D.C. There it will be housed in an outdoor sculpture garden on the National Mall next to the new Hirshhorn Museum.

A helicopter will be used in the first stage of the move of about 100 monumental sculptures — some weighing 4,000 pounds — by such artists as Rodin, Picasso, Calder, Moore and Matisse. They will be carefully lifted from their pedestals to the driveway of the Hirshhorn home where they will be packed and put on vans for shipment to Washington.

There, they will be unloaded and lifted into place in the sculpture garden by a large crane. The works are part of the 4,000 paintings and 2,000 sculptures in the Hirshhorn Collection which will form the nucleus of the Smithsonian Institution's new 19th and 20th century museum of modern art. Most of the collection never has been publicly exhibited before. It was given to the nation in 1966 by Joseph H. Hirshhorn, an art collector who assembled it during the past 40 years and, until now, has housed it in his homes, offices and a warehouse. Sir Herbert Read has described the sculpture collection as "unrivalled in its completeness and in its quality."

BEGINNING OCT. 4, the collection will be exhibited in a four story circular building and an adjacent sculpture garden designed by Gordon Bunshaft, partner of Skidmore, Owings and Merrill of New York and constructed by the Piracci Corporation.

Edward Monserrate, vice president of Hahn Brothers, New York, planned and coordinated the transfer of the outdoor sculptures with Douglas Robinson, the museum's registrar.

Some sculptures will be difficult to move because of their locations under trees or in sheltered gardens. One of the most difficult is Alexander Calder's 25 foot high stabile, "Two Discs." It must be dismantled into four sections and secured to a specially built cradle on a truck. Because of the height of the sections, the truck must avoid low tunnels and bridges along the route to Washington.

Movement of the sculptures completes the transportation of the entire collection to the museum. During the past eight months, thousands of modern paintings and smaller sculptures have been transported to the museum. The move is being paid for entirely by Hirshhorn. In all, about 55 van loads of art have been moved. The 900 works for the Inaugural Exhibition, which opens Oct. 4, arrived first. The remaining 4,000 have been stored in special storage areas.

The garden in which the sculptures will stand is a 356 by 156 foot multi-terraced area adjacent to the museum and has a rectangular reflecting pool in the center.

THE SOUTHERN California Ceramics Hobbycraft Association will celebrate its 25th anniversary with the largest show in its history at the Anaheim Convention Center Friday, Saturday and next Sunday. More than 450 displays and exhibits have been registered, including ceramics, fine arts, lapidary, metalcraft, decoupage, gold-crafted models and others.

There will be live demonstrations in lapidary arts, the potter's wheel, metalcraft, needlepoint, and a slide presentation on numismatics. Objects valued from $1 to $10,000 will be on sale.

The association maintains a permanent ceramics workshop at the Foundation for the Junior Blind and supports a research fund at the City of Hope Medical Center.

OIL PAINTINGS and drawings by Edwina Frank will hang in the auditorium of Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave., through August. The library is open Mondays through Thursdays from noon to 9 p.m., Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

N.Y. Ballet on Greek stage

New York City Ballet will present nine ballets not before seen in Southern California when the company makes its 10th appearance in Greek Theater, Los Angeles, Monday through Aug. 24.

The new ballets are "La Source" by Balanchine to a score by Delibes, and Jerome Robbins' new Ballet, "Dybbuk," to a specially commissioned score by Leonard Bernstein, to be seen Monday through Wednesday. Thursday through Saturday the program will include five ballets, "Scherzo Fantastique," "Le Baiser de la Fée," "Monumentum/Movements" and "Stravinsky Violin Concerto," all choreographed by Balanchine to Stravinsky music, and Jerome Robbins' "Circus Polka," which is a tribute to the great composer. Two other premieres will be seen on the closing program Aug. 22 through 24, "Agon," which has been called one of the great ballet masterpieces of all time, and the "Brahms-Schoenberg Quartet."

Ballets which have been performed here in past seasons include the all-time favorite classic "Swan Lake," Bizet's "Symphony in C," "Dances at a Gathering," "Stars and Stripes" and "The Concert."

During its Los Angeles engagement, the company will dance four different programs for three performances each.

Foster, Fiedler at Bowl

Lawrence Foster will return to Hollywood Bowl for his eighth consecutive season to conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra in concerts Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Joining him as guest soloists will be pianist Alicia de Larrocha Tuesday and flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal Thursday.

Wednesday, Rampal will be featured in the Bowl's second celebrity recital of the summer. Arthur Fiedler will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic in a pops program Friday and Saturday nights.

Foster's conducting has been a regular feature of the Los Angeles music scene since 1960 when he made his podium debut with the Young Musicians Foundation Debut Orchestra. Subsequently, he served as conductor and director of that orchestra for four years; for three years he was associate conductor for the San Francisco Ballet. In 1965, Zubin Mehta appointed Foster as his assistant with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, a post he held until 1968. The following year, he became the principal guest conductor of London's Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and in 1970 was named music director of the Houston Symphony.

BARCELONA-BORN Alicia de Larrocha made her American debut with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in 1954. She made her first Bowl appearance in 1969 and returned in 1971. She is considered one of the foremost authorities on Spanish music and has appeared with most of the major orchestras in the United States and Europe.

Rampal, son of a professor of flute in their native city of Marseilles, did not decide to become a flutist until he was more than 20 years old. Persuaded by a professor at the National Conservatory to attend classes there, Rampal entered — and left only five months later with first prize in flute. It was in 1946, after the liberation of Paris, that he embarked on his first concert tour. Today, he is one of the most sought after orchestra and chamber flute players in Europe and the United States. He made his Hollywood Bowl debut last summer at the "Baroque and Before" Marathon, then returned the next night as soloist with the Philharmonic.

John Steel Ritter, harpsichordist and pianist, will perform with Rampal Wednesday.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Take a chance with beef dish

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

There's one thing for sure, if you start looking for today's chef of the week, you'll find him out of doors. Chance S. Hill Jr. is director of parks, City of Long Beach.

Part of that search area could be up in the air as well. Hill volunteered for the Aviation Branch of the U.S. Navy in March, 1942. He was discharged the day after VJ Day, having had, to quote him, "a tour of a good deal of the South Pacific at the expense of the United States government."

Hill was born in Champaign, Ill., and following discharge returned to his home state and enrolled at the University of Illinois. He graduated with a degree in landscape architecture. He followed five years of private practice in Oak Park, Ill., with almost two years with the Cook County Forest Preserve.

Coming to California in 1957, Hill was employed by the Long Beach Park Department as a landscape architect. He was transferred to the Planning Department shortly after, but parks were in his blood and he returned to that department in 1960. He was named assistant director in 1961 and director in 1972.

HILL IS A REGISTERED landscape architect with the State of California; holds a certificate of administration and a certificate of specialization in park management with the California Board of Park and Recreation Personnel. He serves as vice chairman.

A member of the National Recreation and Park Association, Hill is a past president of the Park Operations Section of the California Park and Recreation Society. He also is active in the International and Western Shade Tree Conferences, the Street Tree Seminar and Long Beach Beautiful.

Hill and his wife, the former Louise Bloomquist, met while attending an adult education class. She calls herself an amateur artist and one of her pictures graces a wall in his office. She shares his interest in recreation and serves as secretary to Robert Van Antwerp, associate director of recreation for the City of Long Beach.

There are three young Hills -- son Craig, 21, and twin girls, Jane and Jean, 19. Craig is studying microbiology at University of California at Irvine; Jane is majoring in education at Brigham Young University and Jean is a nursing student at Golden West College, Huntington Beach.

Hill's hobbies include photography, sailboating, woodworking and putting in the yard. He also has a tent trailer, which they recently took on a trip to Canada. His really prized possession, however, is a pet parrot who, he says, "is a peanut addict. Her nutty appetite is absolutely unbelievable."

As for his cooking, Louise says, "Well, he does get his finger in the pot occasionally. And when he does, he thinks of it as recreation." Today, it's Beef by Chance.

BEEF BY CHANCE

- 2 pounds lean ground beef
- 1 egg
- 4 slices cheese
- 1/2 cup green peppers, diced
- 1 cup onion, chopped
- Salt and pepper to taste

Mix egg into meat, then separate into two equal parts. Lay both halves of meat on waxed paper then cover with another layer of paper. (This keeps meat from sticking to rolling pin.) Using a rolling pin, roll to desired thickness in an oval shape. On one half of the meat, spread cheese slices, peppers, onion and anything else your taste buds desire. Add salt and pepper. Place second half of meat on top and press around edges to seal.

Transfer meat to a sheet of aluminum foil and place another piece of foil on top. Bake in 350 degree oven or barbecue on grill until done. Top layer of foil may be removed for last few minutes of cooking to allow meat to brown on top. Serves 6 to 8.

DEAR ABBY

Minister defends his rites

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town and have always belonged to the Presbyterian church.

Our daughter is going to be married and wants a church wedding, so we went to our minister to discuss the wedding plans with him.

When our daughter told the minister that she wanted two special love songs sung at her wedding, he said: "I will not allow love songs to be sung in MY church!" (Get that, Abby: "HIS" church.)

Does he have the right to dictate what kind of songs will be sung at our daughter's wedding? Rush your reply, please.

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: To quote from the rules of all United Presbyterian Churches in the U.S.A.:

"The Christian marriage ceremony is a service of worship before God, normally conducted within the house of God. Reverence shall be expected on the part of all present, and the service shall be under the sole direction of the minister. Such music as accompanies the ceremony should direct attention to God, Who sanctifies marriage, and special care should be taken to assure that it is suitable and reverent."

Even though some ministers will bend the rules a little in order to accommodate some parishioners, not all will, so if your minister chooses to go strictly by the book, he's within his rights.

DEAR ABBY: The incident was as follows: I recently attended a lounge show. (The entertainers were friends of mine.) Since I had seen the show before, I decided to read a book and listen to the performance at the same time. (I have extraordinary powers of concentration, and I am capable of doing many things at once. Frequently, I will watch TV, listen to the radio, and read.)

My friends who were performing interpreted my reading during their show as an act of rudeness. I meant no offense, but I have been severely criticized for this.

What are your thoughts?

VEGAS

DEAR VEGAS: I agree with your friends. Even though you may be able to read and listen at the same time (and had already seen the show), the others in the audience, and the performers, might get the impression that you were bored.

In the future, demonstrate your "extraordinary powers of concentration" at home.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box 69700, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

VICTORIAN SPLENDOR OF FITZPATRICK CASTLE OVERLOOKS DUBLIN BAY

Paddy Fitzpatrick builds his Irish dream castle

By HERB SHANNON
L.P.T. Travel Editor

KILLINEY, Ireland — There is a castle in this town where you can settle down for a peaceful night's rest in the middle of a 300-acre estate as green as the flag of the Irish Republic. Or move in for a week or a weekend within view of Dublin Bay and the capital city itself.

Or live there happily ever after, as is the intent of the proprietors, Paddy and Eithne Fitzpatrick, as handsome and hospitable a couple as you are likely to meet anywhere.

Actually, the Fitzpatricks live in a nearby Victorian castle of their own, also magnificently furnished with antiques of the period and even before that, as the Irish might put it. But frequently Mrs. Fitzpatrick feels more at home in the hotel because her ebullient husband has a habit of surreptitiously transferring her collector's items there.

"We can't be selfish about these things," he explains lamely when Eithne discovers a vacant shelf in their parlor. "We should be sharing them with our guests."

TO WHICH Mrs. Fitzpatrick agrees on condition that she find a replacement. Her revolving accounts in the well-stocked antique shops of Dublin is one of the reasons Paddy perennially is broke.

Another reason is his pursuit of perfection in the 50-room Fitzpatrick Castle Hotel. Originally a turreted residence built in 1741 by a wealthy eccentric, it was known as Killiney Castle until 1972, when Paddy resurrected the shell, added a new wing and gave it a new name.

"The former name was a problem," he admits. "Killiney, Killarney, Kilkenny all sound alike to American visitors, but they're scattered all across the map of Ireland. Fitzpatrick Castle, now, that's identity!"

AND A BIT more. The name also represents professional pride. Fitzpatrick Castle is Paddy's way of making a point he couldn't get across as an executive of one of Ireland's largest hotel chains two years ago.

"I don't think it is necessary to Americanize a hotel to attract Americans," he says. "Do they want that much of home away from home? Why not a really good Irish hotel, with the traditions of this country?"

So Paddy up and quit his job, borrowed as much as he could and built his dream palace. Today his castle encloses within its spacious walls contemporary luxury untainted by breakable plastic, ersatz stonework or fake fireplaces.

The lower level of the new wing is a recreational area, with a huge heated swimming pool, a squash court, sauna baths, games room and solarium. Above are accommodations combining the best of the old and the new in king-sized four-poster beds, balcony suites and traditional leather-lounged sitting rooms. Three princely bedrooms are located in corner turrets of the building.

THE MAIN dining room on two levels carries out the mingled motif of modern Victorian, as do a separate grill room and the Dungeon Bar, appointed with relics of bygone Bastilles. There is no quarrel with the food and beverage service in any of them.

To this harmonious medley of the new and the nostalgic, Paddy and Eithne have added some touches of their own. Tennis and golf practice facilities are on the grounds; golf course, sailing and fishing arrangements are available on the premises; courtesy coaches run to and from the city center nine miles distant and pick up passengers at Dublin Airport, including arrivals of Trans World Airlines, the only American carrier flying directly to the Irish capital.

No change was needed in the castle setting, replete with historic and literary footnotes. There is evidence of a fortification of undetermined origin built on the site more than 500 years ago. Down on the coastline at Sandycove on the rim of Dublin Bay is another fortress of more certain authentication — the Martello Tower built by the British to resist a hypothetical invasion by Napoleon in the early 19th century.

THE TOWER doubles in literary history as the one-time home of James Joyce and Oliver St. John Gogarty, surely two of the finest reader references to roll across the tongue. The tower today is a museum of Joycean memorabilia, with original letters and manuscripts on display.

Less than a quarter of a mile from Fitzpatrick Castle, up a country lane into the wooded hillside, another literary shrine stands in splendid seclusion. The cottage where George Bernard Shaw produced some his finest works shares with Fitzpatrick Castle the rural quiet within view of the lights and hubbub of the city.

Which is why Shaw chose to live in the neighborhood in the first place.

PENNYWISE TRAVELER

No reason to panic

By JANE MORSE

It was Tuesday and it should have been Nicosia, but suddenly it was Beirut. For 385 American civilians disembarking from the U.S. Navy ship Coronado, it was an unexpected but welcome switch. They were evacuees from the bombed and battered island of Cyprus.

On Wednesday, July 24, another 140 persons, many of them a charter group from Kent State University, arrived in the same city through a joint British-American effort. Sixty others were airlifted by the British to the United Kingdom.

On the same day in Athens, some 3,000 to 4,000 more American tourists who'd left the island earlier at the commencement of hostilities were still waiting for the principal Greek airport to reopen after four days of no landings or takeoffs.

What happens to tourists when their piece of the world blows up? Who looks after them and how?

ALTHOUGH THESE UPSETS have been coming hot and heavy for the past year, the anatomy of a crisis is difficult to lay out. No two manage to be alike. At the outset, though, the State Department moves to perform perhaps its most important function, guarding the protection and welfare of American citizens.

The work actually commences before the crisis gets going. Consular officers are charged all along attempt is made to help the citizen have his own funds sent to him.

At this point, another more openhanded savior may appear on the scene. U.S. airlines have a reputation for being notably humanitarian in emergencies.

Although in the case of war or civil disturbance they, like other carriers, have no legal responsibility under current international law, they have a shining record for not letting a passenger suffer because of lack of funds.

When air travel is disrupted by hostilities or disasters, excursion-ticket expiration dates are normally waived and rules requiring groups to fly together are also suspended. Additionally, any re-routing that becomes essential is generally done at the carrier's expense.

The evacuees now in Beirut, for instance, would not likely have to go back to Cyprus to use their air ticket or pay any additional fare. By the same token, reverse "courtesy" comes into play: Those Americans removed to Great Britain should not expect a refund for their shortened journey home.

TOURISTS ON "package" holidays are caught in a slightly different bind in that some parts of their prepaid trip may not be refunded. The tour operator will generally return anything he can get from his suppliers, but it may not amount to the full sum for the undelivered services.

In the "for instance" case of a charter trip to a destination suddenly on the State Department's "not recommended" list, the passengers are likely to feel that a cancellation with a full refund is their due. The tour operator may be willing to oblige—if he, too, can get out of paying a default fee to the airline. The airline, though, may have to make the trip because it has another group to pick up in a nearby area and would lose considerable money carrying passengers only one way.

with reporting any and every situation in which American visitors run a risk, either as Americans or as foreigners. If there is any indication of trouble—political problems, natural disasters, outbreaks of disease—"we give our best advice."

The "we" in this case is the Office of Special Consular Services which in deteriorating situations issues warnings to all State Department posts abroad, to the media and to all offices of the department dealing with the public. Officers also pass the word to citizens who write in.

For ongoing major upsets, a special task force goes to work, often around the clock, in the Operations Center of the department giving advice to distressed relatives, acting as a go-between for Americans in the crisis area and their kin at home, as well as apprising would-be tourists of the situation as it's reported to them by officials on the scene.

THE WARNINGS, called "Travel Advisories," usually take one of two forms, either a somewhat wishy-washy announcement aimed at keeping things cool but still suggesting the need to "think twice before you make this trip" or a straightforward and meaningful recommendation not to travel in a given area.

Because of court decisions interpreted as limiting State's authority to play Big Brother by prohibiting travel, the advice to "stay away" is the strongest given. It's not issued lightly. Northern Ireland, for instance, hasn't made the "stay away" list chiefly because its government functions.

Nicaragua got on following a major earthquake two years ago, and the island of Grenada was a "think twice" destination for several months this year until the possibility of post-independence violence died out.

Prior to Cyprus, the Arab-Israeli war prompted recommendations to avoid a number of places and was the cause of the last American evacuation.

Evacuation of citizens is a function overseen by the State Department but carried out either by the military or through contractual arrangements with commercial carriers. If a military vessel is used, there's no charge to the evacuees; but if a chartered vessel is required, there is.

All charges are prorated, and each American is asked to pay his share or, if he can't, to sign a promissory note.

THROUGH ITS embassies and consulates, the State Department is also good for help with communications and hotels and for subsistence and repatriation loans in calamitous situations.

Loans are only made as a last resort. First, every

TRAVEL TOPICS

By Howard Jones

Friends often ask about the "travel business." It sounds like and is an exciting and colorful industry. But like many others it faces the problems of hurried... and hurried decisions, and lots of pressure!

A typical day includes calls to the consulates of foreign countries for visa information. It may mean countless minutes waiting on the phone while electronic recordings of air line offices say "All lines are busy; please wait for an agent to handle your call."

It may well be a day filled with telephone messages requesting changes on arrangements for a client who has had last minute emergencies that mean completely re-doing a trip you had worked on for weeks.

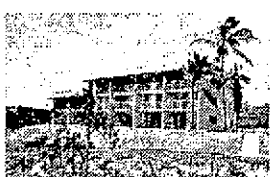

The secret of success in the travel business lies in well trained and experienced travel agents who take each problem coolly, calmly and professionally. They handle them to your satisfaction. Atlas and Bixby Knolls have those kind of people. Call us... for top professional service.

GAL-IVANTING

Escape to Moorea

By CHORAL PEPPER

I was stretched out on a patch of white coral sand on the Tahitian Island of Moorea, sipping milk through the eye of a fresh coconut and indulging in lofty speculation. Some botanists claim Central America as the coconut palm's origin; others claim Asia.

Whichever, it did not arrive here naturally because a coconut seed cannot germinate after it has remained very long in salt water and it would be too heavy for a seagull. So who brought it?

Theories vary and no one had yet solved the mystery... until suddenly there appeared before me a pixi-like apparition named Michael Moody who explained the whole thing.

Shaggy red sideburns escaped from under his broad-brimmed, flat-crowned hat and sunlight glittered against the steel rims of his eye-glasses.

"You see," he explained, "there was a cat named Tuna who fell in love with a broad called Sina. Tuna knew that a rival was out to get him so he told the broad, 'If anything happens to me, plant my head after I'm dead and you'll get something to remember me by.'"

"Sure enough, after a feast one dark night, he got it in the back. Sina planted his head, and do you know what happened? A tree sprouted right on the spot, with Tuna's eyes and mouth etched on its fruit. And that was the origin of the coconut palm on Tahiti."

After recounting his hip version of the ancient Tahitian legend, the quasi-missionary, an escapee from Chicago's cool winters, lifted the tails of his 19th century missionary's frock and retreated to the Club Mediterranean bar for another drink.

SOMEHOW, he fit into the incongruous scene as naturally as did the black-haired beauties dressed in flowered pareus who were garnishing a covey of new arrivals with flowers behind their ears.

Moorea is the most popular and accessible get-away spot from Papeete for those who become disenchanted when they discover that the Tahitian capital is not the languid paradise they had expected. Its dramatically serrated skyline rises from the sea ten miles to the west and can be reached in ten minutes by small plane ($10) or in 90 rough minutes by boat ($5).

Its lazy lagoons, crystal bays, cloud-shrouded mountains and colorful little villages are favored by artists and photographers, who also say that its girls are prettiest. With that, I must agree. Many even have teeth, so maybe the water is rich with minerals, too.

Island aficionados debate Moorea's comparative beauty with that of Bora Bora, a more distant isle of this Society chain, but I prefer Moorea. While Bora Bora's timeless beauty is as static as a magnificent Gauguin splashed on canvas, Moorea's beauty is a moving kaleidoscope of primitive variety.

A road follows a flat shelf of land that encircles the island's famous pierced mountain and all life on the island takes place along this road. To circle it may take from two hours to two days, depending upon how much lingering you do.

Pretty girls launder brightly flowered pareus in leafy pools along the route, shirtless men heave shimmering hemp bags stuffed with copra onto piers that stretch into Cook's Bay, and farmers carry baskets of vanilla and coffee beans to market from the plantations where they work.

HORSEBACK riders canter through sun-speckled lanes, bikini-clad girls wade in azure waters, and long stretches of pure sand lie quiet and undisturbed. Plantation villages nestle in valleys that plunge into the sea.

and fishermen cast nets along the shore. With the never-ending variety of scenic splendor come equally rich scenes of human interest.

These are an unusual

people in today's world. There is no problem distinguishing boys from girls, streets are littered with fallen coconuts, but no debris, and everybody seems to have a smile.

Because domestic ties are too loose to foster jealousy and because Polynesians are strictly a "now" people, they do not covet material possessions. This latter trait is illustrated in their refusal to accept gratuities, or tips. They want to serve you as friends, not as servants.

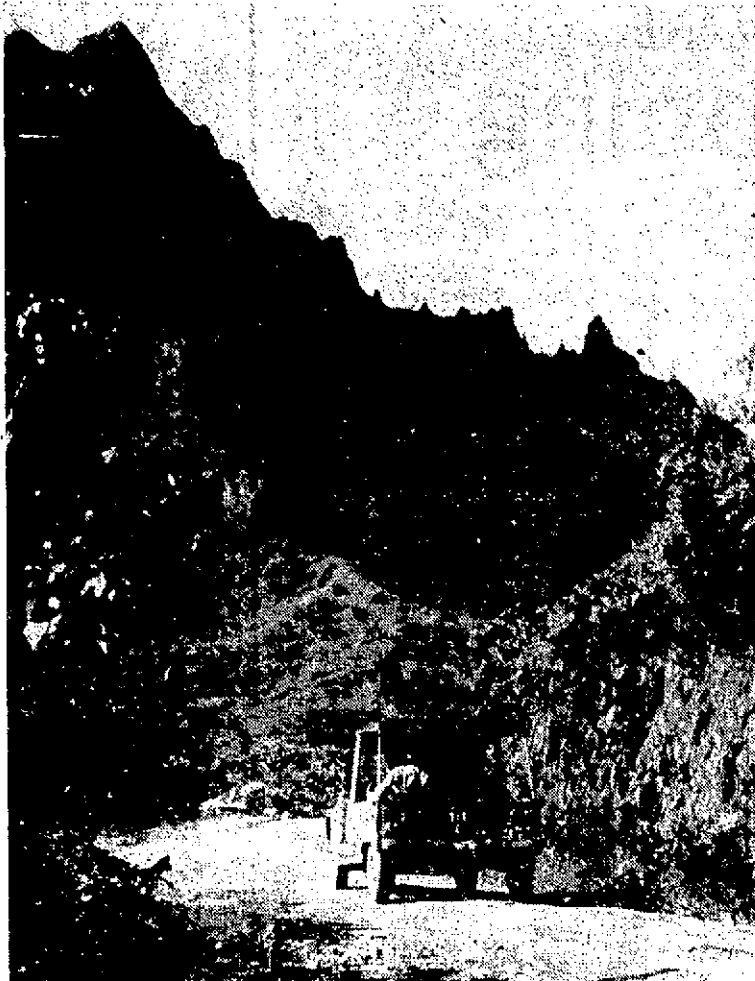

ACTIVITY on Moorea is sponsored primarily by its four leading hotels — Bali Hai, Hotel Aimee, Club Mediterranee and the new Hotel Moorea Lagoon. Club Mediterranee is where the kids go. There are two tabus here, formal dress and hard currency. You wear native pareus and you pay with popout beads.

You buy a supply of beads in advance while you still have money, of course, but everything except drinks is included in the package. The Club Mediterranee's tour, which includes air fare from the West Coast and two weeks there, costs about $700. Accommodations are sort of communal.

The other hotels afford more privacy and luxury, although they, too, stress informality. I flew direct to Papeete on UTA for $794, which included a stopover in Honolulu on the way back, and I stayed at the new Moorea Lagoon for $24, including meals. Prices are a little higher now.

Each hotel features a native feast once or twice a week, with a roving band of flaming torch dancers who perform on rotating nights. Although Moorea is still charming and beautiful, it is slowly acquiring a commercial veneer. In a few more years, it will probably have lost the Michael Moody's who give it color now.

THE SERRATED SKYLINE of Moorea provides a dramatic backdrop for visitors to Tahiti. Moorea, with its lazy lagoons, crystal bays and colorful little villages, is the most popular and accessible get-away spot from the Tahitian capital, Papeete.

Jimmie Walker — from the ghetto, with laughter

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

That toothpick of a walking sight gag who is breaking up the country on television's "Good Times" series is Jimmie Walker, the funniest thing to happen to television in years.

Walker plays James Jr., the 17-year-old black ghetto resident who gets more laughs than the rest of the CBS network series cast put together.

A stand-up comedian who canceled three months of bookings to co-star on the show, Walker has as many hilarious moves off-screen as he does on the tube. He's smart, quick and ambitious.

Unlike many another black comic, he appears to hold no animosities toward his white audience. He does, in fact, court white viewers.

"NO SHOW CAN be a success and no performer can get to the top unless he has a large white audience," Walker said on a rare day off.

"Until this show came along I'd only done stand-up stuff, but I wasn't afraid of acting or playing a character. I didn't even think about it. They gave me the script and I ran with it."

Walker says he feels right at home in the poverty setting of the show.

"I come from the Melrose project in the south Bronx," he explained, "which is about the same as the project in the series — only there's not as much merriment in the ghetto as we pretend. My ghetto looks like a scene from World War III.

"I DO A LOT of ghetto and racial satire in my act. But it's something white people can understand. The black cats come out to see me too.

"In cities my audience is about 50-50, black and white. At colleges there aren't as many blacks. But I want to be as universal as possible. I go out to the Dakotas and work all-white campuses. That can be tough. It is easy to do black clubs. They dig me.

"At some of these schools I'm the first black guy they've really had a chance to talk to. So I rap with the kids after the show."

Walker thinks Flip Wilson and Bill Cosby owe their success to a universality of audience, although he doesn't think either is particularly funny.

"My humor is different," he said. "It has its own appeal. I'm not a Cosby fan. He doesn't make me laugh, but I know he's good and does fine things. He makes other people laugh.

"Cosby's in movements and in private life he belongs to a lot of black organizations but he doesn't preach in his act.

"I DON'T WORK for the movement. I work for the Jimmie Walker Fund. I have no causes, I work for no organizations and there isn't any politics or bad language in my act."

Walker gets a laugh simply by walking, loose-jointed, into a scene on "Good Times." His delivery is directly to viewers.

"Blacks and whites both love the show," he said. "But there are no black people in Southern California. It's too easy out here. People raise their kids in the sun, at the beach and in the mountains around here. They lead the good life.

"A black can starve in luxury in California. In New York when we starve, we die.

"Watts is no ghetto. I went out there and saw lawns and trees. There's no such thing as a ghetto with a palm tree. That's why I keep my apartment in the New York ghetto. No palm trees there — or any other kind of tree."

JIMMIE WALKER, laugh-getting co-star on the CBS Friday night comedy series "Good Times," chats with Nancy Wilson during an appearance on KNBC's "The Nancy Wilson Show."

Tired of reruns? Networks open new season Sept. 9

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

All three TV networks will hold "premiere week" — the start of the fall TV season — the week of Sept. 9 amid much ballyhoo and drumbeating.

It'll mark a return to network normalcy, if such ever existed. Last year, a summer writers' strike delayed filming on many shows. It forced the networks to stretch their usual "premiere week" into a month.

Excluding ABC's "NFL Monday Night Football" show, 62 evening programs are in the networks' lineups for the new season. Of this number, 25 are new entries in the ratings race.

CBS has five new shows and NBC and ABC 10 each. According to network spokesmen, only two won't start during "premiere week."

Those shows, both on ABC, are "Nakia," an hour-long action adventure series about a lawman of Navajo heritage, and "The Sonny Comedy Revue," starring Sonny Bono, but not Cher, who has left him. "Nakia" debuts Saturday, Sept. 21, and the Bono show on Sept. 22.

Another ABC series, "That's My Mama," a half-hour situation comedy about a black family in Washington, D.C., is the only new show getting a jump on premiere week. ABC says it'll air Sept. 4, a Wednesday.

Lady cops, whose ranks are swelling on big city police forces, will make a limited dent in this season's law and order gang on TV.

Vivian Vance recalls days as Lucy's sidekick on tube

By RON MILLER
Ridder News Service

APTOS, Calif. — Somehow Vivian Vance is able to convey the strong impression she has just walked away from a sink of dirty dishes and a load of washing on the dry cycle.

That very human 1950-era housewifely aura is, of course, part and parcel of the enormous success Vivian Vance scored in her long stand as Ethel Mertz, Lucille Ball's conspiratorial sidekick in "I Love Lucy," the most popular TV series of all time.

"We always tried to keep our characters human—even though we were a bunch of clowns," says Miss Vance with a fun-loving sort of giggle like somebody's grandmother on her third glass of elderberry wine.

MISS VANCE was interviewed during a recent appearance at the Cabrillo College Summer Theatre in Aptos — one of her rare public appearances since she left the Lucy show five years ago.

Loaded down with majestic turquoise bracelets, toying with some rapidly drying finger sandwiches from a buffet in her honor, Vivian was trying to explain how a relatively sophisticated former night club singer from Cherryville, Kan., was picked off a theater stage in 1951 to play the quintessential frowsy housewife in what is now regarded as the watershed television situation comedy.

"I've never been able to figure it out," she said. "I was on the stage with Mel Ferrer in 'Voice of the Turtle' when Desi Arnaz picked me. I was playing the other woman and I was supposed to be sleeping with Mel Ferrer. I was using long cigarette holders, wearing Hedda Hopper hats—that sort of thing. I was just the opposite from Ethel Mertz."

BUT DESI figured Vivian, for one of the sharpest comedy talents in the business and he put her under a contract that turned her into a star who would never hurt for money again. At first, Lucy was worried because Vivian was hired without her approval but that didn't last long.

Lucy came to love and respect Vivian so much that she broke down and cried when Vivian left the show to become the full-time wife of book publisher John R. Dodds. Earlier this year Lucy praised Miss Vance as "a great, great comedy doctor—a creator" during their years together.

"She's a talented, driving lady," Vivian says of Lucy. "I think one of the reasons Lucille and I remain such close friends is that one balances the other. Lucille had more ambition than I had and made me work harder than I ever wanted to work. She pulled me along and taught me a lot of things I was too lazy to do."

When Vivian arrived on the first "Lucy" set in 1951 the character of Ethel Mertz was sketchy at best. Working with a team of bright young writers, Lucy and Vivian created their own people out of their own experiences and personalities.

"I TOLD the writers that Lucy is so beautiful and lots of beautiful ladies in real life have a lady around them who's not too attractive," she recalled. "I just asked them not to make me too unattractive or it wouldn't be believable."

Ethel Mertz emerged as the adventurous next door neighbor who was as jealous as she was loyal and able to keep a secret about as well as the Senate Watergate Committee. As Lucy once described the relationship, "We were as playful as two kids in a sandbox."

Television situation comedy was in its infancy then and Vivian recalls experimentation was the rule on the "Lucy" set.

"There was no boss on that set," she said. "He would have been trampled by the crowd. Everybody was allowed to have his say at every conference. We rehearsed three days, then sat in a room sometimes until 4 a.m. and fought out every word, every scene."

DESI was the arbiter of taste for the show and often these arguments were settled democratically by a vote of the principal performers.

"Lucille and I always wanted our routines to look like we were doing them for the first time," says Vivian. "But we might have done that routine for 72 hours before we got it right."

Things began to go bad for the "Lucy" company in the 1960s. William Frawley, who played Vivian's husband, died. Lucy and Desi broke up. The show was changed to feature Lucy and Vivian as two middle-aged mothers with kids.

"I was commuting to Stamford, Conn., between shows and it all got to be too much," Vivian recalls wistfully. "It was more important to me to live with John than to go on and become more famous or make more money. I saw lots of ladies in Hollywood with big houses, all alone. I didn't think it was worth it so I decided to quit on top."

IN THE past five years since she left the show, Vivian has associated mainly with writers and people in the book business. She has done a little stock, some television. She has an autobiography coming out next year and would return to TV if a show could be shot in New York, her present home. She doesn't even watch her old shows on their seemingly endless reruns.

"I do what I want to do now," she says. "If I want to put in a new tile floor or get a bunch of drapes, it's easy for me to go out and make the money in a few weeks."

SANDY HILL, Jerry Dunphy and Bill Stout will anchor the new two-hour Channel 2 News premiering on KNXT Monday, Aug. 26, from 5 to 7 p.m. Miss Hill recently came to Channel 2 from KIRO-TV in Seattle.

CRITICS' CORNER

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — The possible misuse of television by a politician is always a danger for the American political process.

WCBS-TV in New York recognized this possibility of compromising its fairness in its election reporting last Monday when it fired ex-Mayor John V. Lindsay, a former presidential candidate, because he endorsed a candidate for governor.

Lindsay was hired to join the WCBS-TV election team for the September primary and November election. His comments might have been informative, especially from someone as colorful as Lindsay.

Certainly, the actual endorsement is not critical to the future of New York politics. He just doesn't have the political clout he once did.

But the question of the possible misuse of television by a charismatic politician such as Lindsay is disturbing, not just for this election, but for future elections on the national level.

Lindsay will be a regular on ABC-TV's upcoming morning show "AM America." And it will give him an incredible and unprecedented forum to reach the American public.

WCBS made the right move after Lindsay disregarded the "no-politics" pledge of his staff to the station. ABC, however, someday may be put in a similar situation.

And before Lindsay makes his first broadcast, ABC might ask its new employee: Why should he be provided with a forum that no other politician will have?

For the ratings? Certainly Lindsay would argue that he is out of politics and is looking for a new career in the medium that helped advance him.

But who's kidding whom?

Lindsay made an unsuccessful bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, and any time a politician gets hit by White House fever, he is smitten for life. And what (Continued Page 19)

Claude Akins moving up in 'Movin' On'

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer

Claude Akins always wanted to do a television series.

He has been in 44 movies and 145 television shows, but "A series can do something for you career-wise that nothing else will do," he explains.

"In one night more people will see a series than in the whole run of a successful movie."

He made nearly a score of pilots for series — "I've probably made more unsold pilots than anybody in the business" — before clicking with "Movin' On," an NBC show this fall. He and Frank Converse play gypsy truckers.

"I THINK IT WILL be fun to be in a show that's part yours," he said. "You get a little tired of going into a show and getting killed. It'll be fun to live from episode to episode."

Akins, 48, 6-foot-2 and 200 pounds, has spent a good part of his film career getting bumped off. He was often the heavy.

"It's easier to be bad than good," he said. "Try smiling for a photograph and you'll get an idea of how hard it is to act the good guy. Then try sneering."

"It's almost impossible to sneer badly."

Even when Akins was a good guy, he often got killed. In a "Police Story" show this past season he played a detective dying of cancer who wanted to get killed in the line of duty.

His voice has a bark to it and his round, slightly jowly face is that of "a good country boy," Akins, born in Nelson, Ga., and raised in Bedford, Ind., believes his face and voice are assets.

IN "MOVIN' ON," he is Sonny Pruett, a rugged, growling driver who owns his own rig and picks up a load wherever and whenever he can. His partner is Will Chandler, played by Converse, a dropout from the legal profession.

What made the pilot movie work was not exciting scenes with the truck, but the relationship between the two men as they maneuvered around their conflicting philosophies to form an edgy bond of friendship.

Akins said, "It's a good relationship. I'm glad it's not a cops and robbers show. We won't be solving hijackings. I think there's a lot of interest and drama in a trucker's life."

"They have as free a life as you can have and still be a part of society."

"Movin' On" represents the television debut of Phil D'Antoni, who produced the Oscar-winning "French Connection." It marks TV's return to the "road shows," such as "Route 66" and "Then Came Bronson."

It will be filmed entirely on location in such places as Astoria and Portland, Ore., Salt Lake City and Moab, Utah, and Las Vegas.

"I hate to leave the family that long," Akins said. "I don't want to miss the interesting times of my kids growing up. But actors are half gypsy anyway. You have to go where the work is."

Akins, wife Theresa and three children — Claude, Wendy and Michelle — live in Northridge, a San Fernando Valley suburb of Los Angeles.

The location schedule also will play havoc with Akins' golf game. He is a self-described golf freak and shoots with an eight handicap. Son Claude, 16, was practically raised on a golf course — "I used to babysit with him on the greens" — and wants to be a professional golfer.

Akins, however, says if golf is his avocation, acting is in his blood.

"I enjoy going to the studio," he said. "The answer to a man's satisfaction is work that he enjoys. If I were given the choice of anything I wanted to do, I'd do this."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Remember the great pay television controversy of the early 1960s?

Pay TV promoters had an appealing pitch — first run movies, uncut, uncensored, uninterrupted by commercials, brought into your home along with a smattering of sports and special programs.

You could see box-office hits on your television set whenever you wished "for only pennies daily," they promised, and no parking or babysitting problem.

But movie theater owners — frightened that pay television would draw off their trade — launched petition drives and scary advertisements that conjured up images of coin boxes on the home tube. Pay television could mean "an end to free TV," it was warned.

CALIFORNIA voters banned pay TV in a state referendum that later was declared unconstitutional. Some congressmen threatened legislation to prohibit pay TV.

The controversy and the cost of installation seemed to doom pay TV. Network television also was showing more recent movies. Why pay?

But today pay TV may be staging a resurgence.

In the past year, more than 28 cable television systems have begun piping movies into the home for a fee. About 60,000 homeowners throughout the country now have pay TV from old and new companies. The majority are in California.

"I THINK we've got quite a future ahead of us," said John W. Atwood, president of Theta Cable Television in Los Angeles, which has about 14,000 subscribers for its two-month-old Z Channel.

Optical Systems Inc. of Los Angeles operates its Channel 100 system for 28,000 subscribers in San Diego and Santa Barbara, Calif.; Toledo, Ohio; Harrisburg and Easton, Pa., and Moline, Ill.

Optical, perhaps the largest pay TV operation in the country now, plans to open systems soon in Concord, Calif., and Flint, Mich.

"We're pleased with the results so far for the most part," says Geoffrey Nathanson, Optical president.

Theta, Optical and other cable operators are counting on pay TV as an attraction to sell cable TV in areas where reception is good.

MOST THEATER owners don't seem to mind now because movie studios are protecting theaters by making films available to pay television only after the theater run.

Commercial television spokesmen say they doubt that even with millions of subscribers pay TV will ever be able to compete with "free" programming.

Cable operators say viewers are continuing to watch regular TV fare, turning to pay TV movies in the off hours.

A big minus for pay television in the 1960s was the hookup cost. Pay TV companies charged up to $100 to install devices to pick up their over-the-air broadcasts.

TWO YEARS AGO the Federal Communications Commission, in a breakthrough decision, authorized pay television over cable systems. The basic installation cost of a cable system usually runs about $15 in a metropolitan area. The monthly fee runs from $7 to $10. About seven million Americans have cable TV.

Theta's Z channel, currently available only in the Los Angeles suburbs of Santa Monica, West Los Angeles and Beverly Hills, offers two movies a week for $6 to $8.45 monthly. This is in addition to the $7 to $10 monthly the homeowner must pay for a cable TV system needed to receive pay TV. The typical pay TV apparatus is a panel of buttons which permits the viewer to call up on his TV screen any of the programs offered by the company.

Recent Z Channel movies included "Scorpio," "Avanti," "The New Centurions," "Lost Horizons" and "Westworld."

CHANNEL 100 offers three movies a week — two new ones and an "en-core" — for $8 a month. During a recent week in San Diego, viewers could see "Oklahoma Crude," "Godspell" and "The French Connection."

The movies, which range up to a "soft" R, are shown uncensored in the home — and that has caused some squawks and cancellations because of the language, sex and violence.

Atwood said the Z Channel has had no adverse reaction in its two months of operation.

NEW SEASON

two of the breed — "Christie Love" on ABC and "Police Woman" on NBC. The shows respectively star Teresa Graves and Angie Dickinson, both as undercover detectives.

Another NBC series "Amy Prentiss," features Jessica Walter as a police lieutenant in charge of male cops. The show replaces the "Hec Ramsey" segment on NBC's "Sunday Mystery Movie" quartet, but NBC says it doesn't know yet if Lt. Prentiss will report for duty Sept. 15.

Only two new shows — CBS' "Rhoda," a spinoff from the "Mary Tyler Moore Show" and NBC's "Born Free" — are on the Monday schedule during television's big week, and no new series will appear Tuesday nights.

The week's real rush of new series starts Wednesday, Sept. 11, with "Sons and Daughters" and "The Manhunter" on CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," "Lucas Tanner" and "Petrocelli" on NBC and "Christie Love" on ABC.

On Thursday, Sept. 12, NBC's "Sierra" and "Movin' On" shows and ABC's "Paper Moon" and "Harry O" series will debut as regular programs.

CBS' new offering for Friday the 13th is "Planet of the Apes." NBC will provide "Chico & the Man," "The Rockford Files" and "Police Woman" as its new show fare that night, while ABC is offering "Kodiak," "Texas Wheelers" and "Kolchak: The Night Stalker."

On Saturday, Sept. 14, the new regular shows kicking off are "The Paul Sand" show on CBS and ABC's "The New Land" series, to be joined a week later by "Nakia."

The only blockbuster movies in the premiere week lineup are the film version of "M-A-S-H," to be aired by CBS Friday night, Sept. 13, and "Klute," starring Jane Fonda as a prostitute and Donald Sutherland as a detective. NBC says it'll show that film Saturday, Sept. 14.

CRITICS' CORNER

does the Howard Samuel endorsement mean? Support Lindsay in a Senate race? Who knows, but his hat is still in the political ring.

WCBS should have been a little more perceptive before Lindsay was hired. But the station had its assurances. Lindsay's media man, David Garth, told the station the former mayor was out of politics and would make no endorsements.

"WE HAD BEEN assured that Lindsay would stay out of the political arena for the near future or at least until after the election," said Ed Joyce, WCBS-TV's news director, after he dropped Lindsay on Monday. "Lindsay was clearly defined as a non-partisan who could not endorse anybody."

Joyce said that Lindsay's endorsement, which was made in Paris Sunday, was a "surprise." "When I heard about the endorsement yesterday, I said to myself ... this blows it!" said Joyce.

Joyce admitted, despite Lindsay's avowed disinterest in politics, he was going to take a hard look at Lindsay before he made his first broadcast for the station. Lindsay would undergo tests in advance and a member of the WCBS-TV broadcast team would report back to Joyce on any partisanship.

"He would have gotten the hook if he showed any favoritism," said Joyce. "He would have been removed."

HOWEVER, ABC said Lindsay's job on "Am America" will be unaffected by the endorsement.

The show's executive producer, Dennis Doty, said Lindsay had been hired to "provide a point of view, insight, and style that is John Lindsay on everything from government, sports, society and the arts."

He said that since the show was scheduled to premiere after the November election, the endorsement had no effect on Lindsay's position.

However, if Lindsay makes an endorsement while in the employ of ABC, he would have to take a leave of absence.

"ABC policy does not permit news correspondents or commentators to make any endorsements at any level unless they take a leave of absence," said Elmer Lower, president ABC News.

Art Linkletter, is a member of the Board of Directors and has a financial interest in the Company.

There are few things that touch us more deeply than when the doctor tells us that someone we love will be hospitalized and needs an operation.

Most of us have had it happen . . . to a child, a wife, a mother or a father. Often it's a friend or neighbor we hold dear.

Yet each time we're shocked again.

Even though we know how common it is, without insurance we're never prepared emotionally . . . and rarely are we ready to handle the terrible cost!

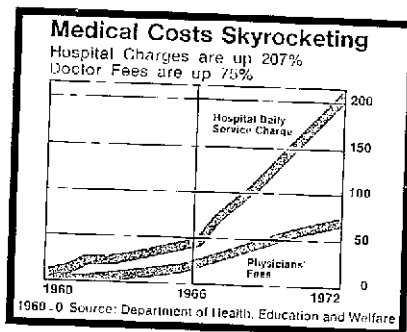

We usually depend on our health insurance to see us through, yet few of us realize until it's too late that basic health insurance doesn't usually cover all the bills for an operation.

As a result some people have to go into debt to meet the high cost of an operation today!

The suffering and heartache we feel when someone we love has surgery is bad enough. We don't need the fear of big bills, too.

That's why you may need this National Home plan that pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for surgery according to the Surgical Schedule in policy . . . regardless of benefits from any other company's insurance you have.

Read on; you'll be glad you did. ►

Surgical bills can be the most expensive part of going to the hospital.

Anyone who's been through surgery lately will probably tell you about the high cost of hospitalization.

It's not surprising!

The cost of all medical care has gone up over 200% in the past ten years, and medical bills alone are up 75%, as the chart above shows.

Think what that means. The medical expenses from an operation that may have cost $500.00 in 1963 would probably cost as much as $1,535.00 today!

Your basic health insurance may not pay the entire surgery bill. But ten years ago you could probably afford to pay what your policy didn't cover. Today, however, it's a totally different story!

Inflation has so increased the cost of medical care that what your plan may not pay is far more expensive than even a few years ago!

Your basic insurance plan may leave you with big bills to pay out of your own pocket!

Have you ever read your basic health plan, cover to cover? Do you know that many plans have a "surgical schedule" that probably doesn't cover the entire cost of an operation?

Not only that, some plans have deductibles of $50.00 to as much as $250.00 that you must pay before any benefits are payable. And even then, you may have to pay 20% of the rest of the bill!

In some cases, when an operation takes place in your physician's office, you may not receive anything.

Surgery costs may force you to dig into your savings. And if that's not bad enough, you may even have to try to borrow money from a relative, a friend, a bank, or any place you can get it.

SURGICARE pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for any covered operation

Benefits are paid based upon the surgical schedule stated in your policy when you or a covered family member has an operation. Benefits are paid for surgery performed in the doctor's office. And, it is all paid regardless of any other company's insurance.

That's right. Unless you request otherwise, benefits are paid directly to you for an operation.

When more than one operation is performed at the same time in different operative fields, we pay for the one that has the highest benefit amount plus 50% of the scheduled benefit for all others.

You may have to depend largely on yourself!

And maybe you haven't considered that the high price of an operation may be only the beginning! As expensive as surgery is, it's just the first step in getting well.

You probably belong to some sort of group plan. Most people do. But if you think such plans pay all medical bills, you're probably in for a surprise.

That's why you need the additional protection of this National Home plan. Because we pay benefits that you can use to help pay any of the expenses an operation can cause.

SURGICARE

helps protect you and your loved ones against...

*Covered operations resulting from accidents like:

Falls	Boat Mishaps	Fractured Hip	Fracture
Burns	Shooting	Cuts	Spinal Injury
Automobile Accidents	Knifing	Choking	Scalds
	Explosions		Wounds

*Additional covered operations like:

Gall Bladder	Kidney Stones	Tumor	Hemorrhoidectomy
Appendicitis	Tracheotomy	Hernia	Transplants
Brain Surgery	Mastoid	Bowel	Skin Grafts
Amputation	Embolism	Biopsy	Abdominal Surgery
Eye Surgery	Lung Removal	Mastectomy	Tonsils

*California law requires that the above conditions be covered.

We've created these examples to show how SURGICARE can help fill the needs of many people.

Suppose an office worker, has a group plan that pays 80% of surgeon's fees, leaving her with 20% to pay. That's why she needs National Home's SURGICARE.

If, for example, she has to go into the hospital to have her gall-bladder removed, SURGICARE pays $300.00. Her company plan pays some benefits, but it's the benefits from SURGICARE that may keep her from having to dig into her savings!

Suppose a man owns his own business. He knows that if someone in his family goes to the hospital he would lose substantial income or even lose a good part of his savings. Sure, he already has a plan, but it may fall short of the protection he needs. If, for instance, his little girl has to go into the hospital for an emergency appendectomy SURGICARE pays $200.00. He will thank the day he enrolls in SURGICARE.

And we pay regardless of Medicare! Here is an example of a retired man who needs extra protection to help pay the bills Medicare doesn't pay. The deductible and 20% of surgeon fees is just too much for him. That's why he needs SURGICARE. If his wife has a hysterectomy we pay $300.00. SURGICARE can help give them the security they need . . . and the peace of mind they are looking for!

Here are examples of what SURGICARE pays regardless of any other company's insurance.

1. Tonsillectomy or removal of adenoids—or both..	$ 70.00
2. Mastectomy (radical removal of breasts) .....	$ 500.00
3. Appendectomy .....	$ 200.00
4. Slipped disc .....	$ 450.00
5. Heart surgery (repair of Myocardial Aneurysm) ..	$1,000.00
6. Hernia .....	$ 180.00
7. Hysterectomy .....	$ 300.00
8. Thigh bone fracture .....	$ 250.00
9. Dislocation of shoulder, elbow, knee or ankle ..	$ 250.00
10. Gall Bladder .....	$ 300.00
11. Thyroid removal—Goiter .....	$ 350.00
12. Fracture of nose .....	$ 30.00
13. Removal of Cataract (Lens Extraction) .....	$ 400.00
14. Cornea transplant .....	$ 500.00
15. Fracture of arm, collar bone or shoulder blade ..	$ 70.00
16. Removal of nasal polyp .....	$ 100.00
17. Removal of kidney stones .....	$ 100.00
18. Fracture of kneecap .....	$ 120.00
19. Lung removal .....	$ 500.00
20. Removal of spleen .....	$ 300.00
21. Removal of stomach .....	$ 500.00
22. Repair of larynx or trachea .....	$ 500.00
23. Excision of hemorrhoids .....	$ 100.00
24. Removal of pilonidal cyst .....	$ 150.00
25. Incision of a tendon .....	$ 100.00
26. Removal of pancreas .....	$ 700.00

These are just a few of the many types of operations listed in your policy. And we pay from $10.00 to $1,000.00 benefits for every covered operation. Even if it is not listed in your policy, we'll pay benefits based on the time and difficulty of the operation as related to the amount specified for a comparable listed operation.

—These are the exclusions—

- Any illness, disease or physical condition originating during the one year period before the policy went into effect. These conditions are any for which medical advice or treatment was given or for which distinct symptoms were evident. (These pre-existing conditions are not covered until the policy has been in force for one year.)
- War injuries or losses sustained through any act of war.
- Pregnancy or miscarriage and during the year following birth, for any complications of pregnancy or miscarriage.
- Any functional nervous disorder; confinement in a nursing or convalescent facility; or loss due to the use of narcotics or intoxication.
- Dental repair or surgery, except where repair is necessary due to injury to natural teeth.

Add this "Optional Hospital Benefit" $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) from the very first day you are hospitalized for any covered accident or illness . . . for as long as you stay

The price of surgery can be shocking. But remember how expensive all the other costs of hospitalization can be! And your basic plan may not cover all the regular bills when you are hospitalized. The part you have to pay could cost you a fortune.

That's why we've offered this "Optional Hospital Benefit"—it entitles you to benefits for every day you're hospitalized for any covered accident or illness. And, unless, of course, you request otherwise, benefits are paid direct to you.

What the "Optional Hospital Benefit" pays—■ $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day)

in hospital benefits when under 65. Coverage starts the very first day of hospitalization for any covered accident or illness and continues for as long as you stay, no matter how long that may be. And remember, there is no reduction in benefits because of age.

■ $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day)

when your child is hospitalized (if you have Coverage for Children); benefits begin the first day for any covered accident or illness and continue for the entire stay.

Today's hospitals are full of people who felt fine just a short time ago. Why gamble on your future when you can make your whole family, and your savings more secure with National Home's "Optional Hospital Benefit."

65 or over? You can also get Hospitalization Benefits. Just check the box above the Enrollment Form. We'll send you free information immediately.

A Company You Can Rely On

World Headquarters for National Liberty Corporation, parent of National Home, in historic Valley Forge, Pennsylvania area.

National Home is one of the leading insurance companies in its field. We have been in business over 50 years, and our plans provide health protection to families in 46 states.

When you have a claim, you can depend on us to give you quick and efficient service. In fact, we are currently paying benefits under various plans at the rate of $30,000,000.00 a year.

See what satisfied California policyowners say about our claim service:

"I was very pleasantly pleased to find that National Home paid this claim of my wife so quickly. It helped us to pay that part of her hospital and medical bills that our Blue Cross plan did not meet. I want to take this opportunity to say a grateful 'Thank You'."

H. F. Crocket, Sr., Broderick, California

"I want to thank you for being so prompt on my two recent claims. I am very pleased. Words cannot express how much I appreciate the way it was handled..."

Mrs. G. A. Canada, Santa Paula, California

"Thank you for your prompt consideration... Your office located in Pennsylvania provided payment within 10 days from the date on which my physician billed here in California. The employees of National Home Life Assurance Co. are to be commended for their excellent service. It has been a pleasure."

Mrs. M. A. Bruno, Burbank, California

Send no money now—we'll bill you later.

To start your coverage for you and your entire family simply fill out and mail the Enrollment Form. When your policy arrives, study it. If you like it, pay the first month's premium of $1. Then, even if you're sick or injured your policy will already be in force. It's as safe and simple as that.

Enroll in SURGICARE

It pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00, according to the surgical schedule in your policy. Your entire family (all ages) ... $1 for the first month.

Age at Issue	Monthly Premium per Adult
16-39	$3.50
40-44	$3.50
45-49	$3.65
50-54	$3.70
55-64	$4.20
65-74	$4.90

$2.10 more per month covers ALL your unmarried dependent children ... from birth through 18 years. Newborn children are covered automatically!

... AND IF YOU WISH ... YOU MAY

Add $900.00 a month ($30.00 a day) Optional Hospitalization Benefit

Age at Issue	Monthly Additional Premium per Adult
16-39	$ 6.30
40-44	$ 7.65
45-49	$ 8.55
50-54	$10.35
55-64	$14.25

HERE'S ALL YOU DO TO ENROLL

Just send in the enrollment form on the back page. Send no money now—we'll bill you later. Your entire family will be covered for the first month for a dollar. Then, you can continue at the renewal rate shown above. If you are 39, for example, you pay $3.50 a month for Surgicare and $6.30 a month for the Hospital Benefits, a total of $9.80 a month ... premiums you can afford.

You can also enroll all your children from birth through 18 years (including new arrivals) in Surgicare for $2.10 a month and add the Hospital Benefits for them for an additional $8.10 a month. All your children can have this fine coverage for $10.20 a month. With these rates, how can you afford to say no?

CONSUMER Renewal and Rate Change Provisions

A renewable for life clause is in each of these plans. It guarantees that as long as you pay your premiums, we cannot cancel your protection for any reason whatsoever.

Once you have enrolled in this plan from National Home Life Assurance Company, your rate can be increased individually only if there is a rate increase on all our policies of this class in your state.

It cannot be increased because of how much or how often you receive benefits from us—or because of your advanced age. We will issue you only one policy of this class.

What's more, the regular monthly renewal premium shown (for age at time of enrollment) does not automatically increase as you pass from one age bracket to the next.

Act Now! Without Obligation!

It's easy to enroll. Just fill in the enrollment form, and be sure to check the box if you want "Optional Hospital Benefits." Mail the enrollment form in the enclosed prepaid envelope. That's all there is to it. Send no money now—we will bill you later.

When you get your policy, look it over carefully. If you like it, pay the first month's premium. If you decide not to send in your dollar you will not have coverage and there is no further obligation.

Act now! To enroll in SURGICARE which pays from $10.00 to $1,000.00 for covered surgery (as per the schedule in the policy) . . .

Wells Report

'It's better to give'

Some years ago Dr. Carl McIntosh, president of Montana State University and former president of Cal-State Long Beach, was asked to give his reaction to the appearance of an entertainer, name of Tiny Tim.

"Perhaps," he ventured, "we should express our regrets for what happened to all that tea, admit it didn't work out the way we planned and petition Her Majesty to take us back."

Subsequent events have made that idea impractical. With the appearance of another entertainer, name of Alice Whazzisname, it is doubtful that Her Majesty would want us back.

Anyway, increasing numbers of people seem to have given up on the human race and taken to hanging out with dogs, cats and canaries.

Politicians can bug each other and the rest of us, rob the public till, authorize burglaries and the electorate just shrugs. But let them start passing laws about dogs and cats and we have mini-revolts.

At least, that is what has been happening in the cities of Orange County. In the latest flare-up in Huntington Beach, an organization called the Pet Owners Coalition is up in arms over a city ordinance tightening the leash law and providing for the licensing of cats. The coalition has threatened to recall six of seven councilmen if the law is not repealed or greatly changed.

Actually, I would rather wallow in Watergate than get involved in the pet controversy. I find Watergate much simpler than the problem of devising a series of regulations that will protect the rights of pet owners whilst protecting others from the pets.

I am the resident house manager for a beagle, a miniature schnauzer, a cat and a couple of mockingbirds who live in free association with the rest of us. Sometimes I yearn wistfully for legislation that would protect me from all of them.

One thing I'll say for the cat. She fights her own battles without getting me involved in them. Sometimes, judging from her appearance afterward, they must be fierce, but she never whimpers nor cries aloud.

The dogs, of course, have cliques, vendettas and blood feuds going with other animals all over the neighborhood, and they try to involve me. They are not speaking to the poodle down the block, they speak too much to the German shepherd next door and they spread nasty rumors about the cat across the street.

A dog on a leash goes by outside with his master, my dogs set up a clatter. They insist they haven't been taken for a walk in a week, maybe a month. They might just have come back from a walk, but they have a selective memory.

The question of dog walking is one that the leash laws have never quite resolved. The problem of dog walking arises not when the dog is walking. It occurs when he stops. I think the law ought to require anyone walking a dog not to have a leash but to have a shovel and small container.

Only dog owners know the true meaning of that old cliché, "It is better to give than receive."

Not only the Orange County suburbs are having pet problems. Dr. David Gray, the administrative vice president at Cal-State Long Beach, finds it necessary to constantly remind students about rules governing dogs on campus. Not that it does much good.

Pets now fill the role of status symbol that was once reserved for the automobile. People struggling along at the near-poverty level find it necessary to bolster their image of themselves by owning a huge purebred dog that eats more than the rest of the family combined.

The very young and the very insecure use dogs to draw attention to themselves that they could not otherwise command. When someone stops to admire an Afghan or redbone hound and says, "My, that's a beautiful dog," the owner interprets it as "My, you're a beautiful person."

I'm not putting it down. Psychologists working with the retarded and the mentally disturbed report that it frequently aids their patients to be given the care of pets that are totally dependent on them. In return, the animal gives them a total love that does not question their "normalcy."

Anyway, it wouldn't surprise me if sometime soon Orange County was reapportioned on the basis of the number of animals in each district rather than the number of people. Stranger things have happened in that county.

Some Straight Answers About Low-Cost Direct Cremation

Q: What exactly is "Direct Cremation"?

A: Direct cremation means that the remains are cremated and usually scattered at sea. There may also be a simple memorial service. This saves the costs of a traditional funeral for those who cannot afford it or feel it is unnecessary.

Q: I've read about "membership societies" offering low-cost cremation and scattering of ashes. What exactly do these societies do?

A: For a pre-paid fee, usually $15 per individual or $25 per couple, one becomes a member of the society. The balance to be paid at the time service is rendered. They attend to the cremation and scattering of ashes. They also may hold a simple memorial service.

Q: I understand the California Funeral Director's Association wants these societies to be licensed under the State Board of Funeral Directors. Why?

A: Funeral Directors and Mortuaries are regulated by strict licensing and legislation primarily designed for health standards and the protection of their clients. If an individual pays a membership fee to an unlicensed society there is no guarantee the society will be in existence when its services are needed. A licensed mortuary, however, is regulated in such a way that should it be sold or go out of business, any pre-payments would be guaranteed under California state controls.

Q: Can a licensed mortuary provide me with this low-cost direct cremation?

A: Yes. Brothers Mortuary offers reasonably priced direct cremation to those who prefer this method of final disposition. We can also arrange collection of Veterans and Social Security Burial Allowances. In addition there are many financial advantages to be gained by pre-payment for either direct cremation or traditional funerals. We make it our business to keep fully informed and up to date in all areas that may benefit you.

Q: I heard that Dr. David Reuben disagrees with the findings of an earlier authority on sex, Dr. Alfred Kinsey. What about? — Cheryl Dinsmore, Chicago.

A: "What Dr. Kinsey did was kind of naive, bashful and awkward," Dr. Reuben candidly told us. "He was a biologist and sociologist, one of the world's leading experts on wasps and other insects — but not a medical doctor. He and his assistants would ask people about their sexual experiences and believed most of what they heard. A lot of stuff just doesn't hold together. For instance, the Kinsey Report concluded that about 10 per cent of American men are homosexuals. That just isn't so, then or now. Many other things which he said in good faith didn't hold up either. In the 1920s Dr. Dickenson did the same sort of thing as Kinsey. Including an atlas of human sexuality, much of it based on laboratory sexual research, things that Masters and Johnson later repeated and presented as something brand new. Many ideas that are considered earthshaking these days," insists Dr. Reuben, "have been done before and before and before."

Q: How long was Henry Kissinger married his first time? — Mrs. Thelma Moonbeam, Richmond, Va.

A: For some 15 years. He remained unmarried for a decade before making Nancy Maginnes Mrs. Kissinger.

Q: Did comedian Fred Allen, whose biting remarks rankled radio and network TV vice presidents, think much of the Hollywood hierarchy? And how many movies did he make? — Cyril Compton, San Jose, Cal.

A: Allen permitted himself to be "shanghaied" to the film studios only half a dozen times. Once, lunching at the Fox commissary with him and another famous tart-tongued talent, Oscar Levant, I heard Fred say, in his nasal voice, "You can stuff all the integrity in Hollywood into a gnat's navel — and still have room left for the heart of an agent!"

Q: What famous actress once observed: "They used to photograph Shirley Temple through gauze. They should photograph me through linoleum"? — Mrs. Wendy Morrison, Long Island City, N.Y.

A: The late Tallulah Bankhead.

Q: What is the safety device Evel Knievel has built into his motorcycle in case it fails to make the upcoming Snake River, Idaho, canyon jump? — Norman Rhodes, Indianapolis.

A: An ejector seat has been built to release rider and parachute. That's the good news. The bad news is that Knievel would have only a split second to decide to use the "escape hatch." Since the entire flight lasts only 60 seconds. Relying closely on a NASA engineering genius named Truax, Evel evaluates his chances for survival this way: "If they can get those guys over the moon, they can certainly get me a quarter of a mile over this canyon!" □

'I'm an ornery cuss'

The real Craig Hosmer

Retiring U.S. Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, has been perhaps best known in his home district for his sponsorship of a year-round daylight savings bill, finally passed in the heat of the energy crisis, and his defense of vitamins. Yet in his congressional career he has been an international force in the debates over atomic energy and weapons. And on the House Interior Committee, he is the ranking Republican with a powerful effect on such legislation as strip mining and land use. In this article, I-PT Washington correspondent Gil Bailey examines the real Craig Hosmer, the forces that made him a congressman, his battles, his enemies, his humor and his thoughts on the passing Washington scene, including the Watergate scandals.

By GIL BAILEY

A standard and rather battered typewriter sits beside a congressional desk, a little out of place among the flags, the plaques, the awards and the citations that fill an office of a member of Congress. On the desk is a tablet of yellow writing paper, also in constant use.

Almost every day this spring and summer retiring Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, has been using that typewriter and tablet to produce a message in one of his last battles of his 22-year congressional career. The message will appear in the Congressional Record and then reappear on brightly colored pieces of paper sent to all members of Congress, ending with a familiar tag line, "H. R. (House Resolution) 11500 makes about as much sense as trying to grow bananas on Pike's Peak."

This fight, as Hosmer, the senior Republican on the House Interior Committee, leads the war against a Democratic-sponsored anti-strip mining bill, may be typical of his career. This career, on occasions, has been a stormy one, or as Hosmer himself puts it in a slightly different context, "I'm an ornery cuss."

It may have been the orneriness which led to Hosmer's suggestion during the Vietnam War that American planes start dropping the ace of spades over North Vietnam to terrorize hostile troops because, Hosmer said, they were superstitious concerning that playing card.

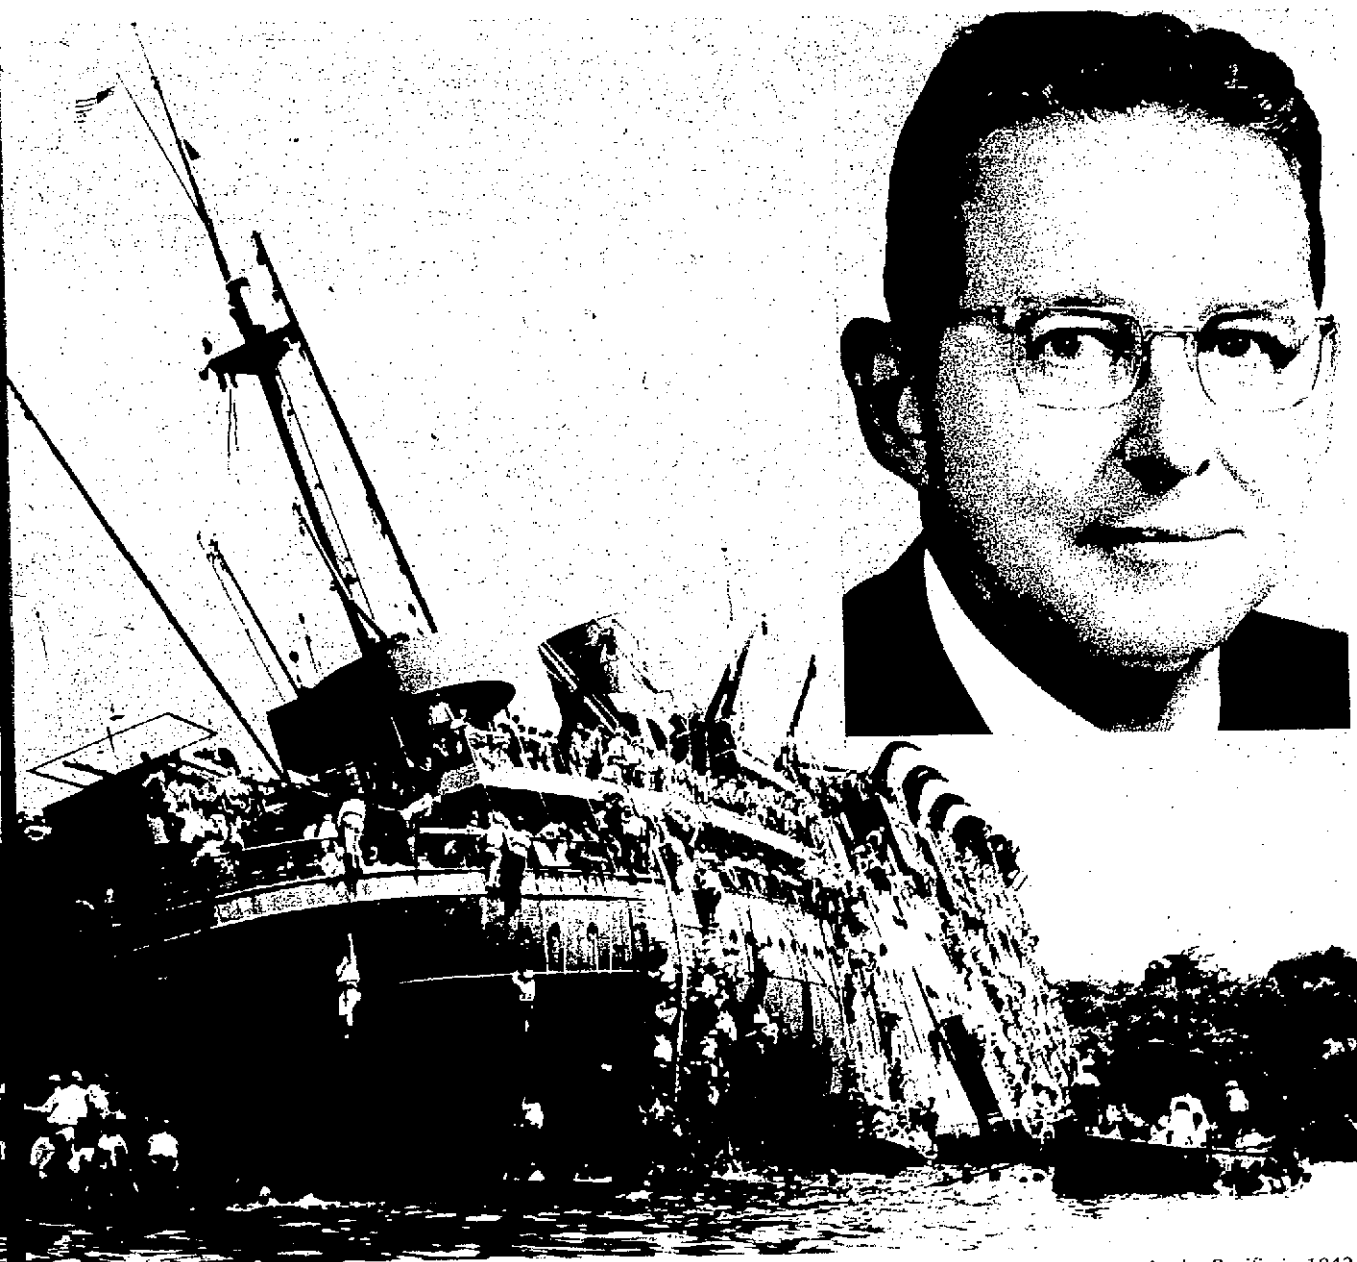

Hosmer's style of fighting, including his use of the words "makes about as much sense as trying to grow bananas on Pike's Peak," first used more than a decade ago during a brawl over Colorado River waters, has been sharp and tough. He certainly has bruised a number of conservationists with his comments about "eco-freaks."

And Hosmer's stands have been controversial too. While in Long Beach, his public record may have emphasized his support of the Navy shipyard and year-round daylight savings, nationally he has been the unashamed advocate of a massive build-up of nuclear power plants and of a strong nuclear weapons system. Hosmer is one of the "atomic twins" in the House, where he and Rep. Chet Holifield have dominated the Joint House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, verbally tarring and feathering those who attacked the nuclear power industry.

In his last year in Congress, Hosmer is still a fighting man as he determines and directs the Republican battle against anti-strip mining and land use legislation. Hosmer's unabashed answer to the energy crisis is the development of coal resources and of lots and lots of nuclear plants.

Over the years some of the battles have been that of personality as when he and Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Antioch, Calif., clashed over the peripheral canal, a key part of the California Water Project. Waldie was against and Hosmer for and, at one point, they had their picture taken together with Hosmer readying a dart for a dart board covered with a photograph of Waldie.

The veteran congressman obviously intends to end his career with a bang with victories over environmentally sponsored anti-strip mining legislation and a land use bill, but then in some respects his career began with a couple of bangs.

It may have started at the moment the USS Coolidge hit a mine in the Pacific in 1942 or at the moment when Hosmer jumped into the waters of the Pacific as the ship turned turtle.

In an anteroom to his office, Hosmer keeps a picture of the sinking ship, with various slogans pasted underneath, including, "A ship collision can spoil your whole day."

"It was just about then that I was jumping into the water," he said of the picture.

Hosmer's Navy career convinced him of an inevitable end, sooner or later.

"We ran aviation gasoline through the Nazi blockade in 1942," said Hosmer. Then came the Pacific and service off Iwo Jima and the preparations for the invasion of Japan.

"I was convinced that I wouldn't make it," he said, as outlined the days of preparation for that invasion.

His ship was loaded with combat-ready troops in preparation for what might have been one of the most costly battles of World War II when the word of the explosion of the atom bomb came.

"I figured that bomb saved my life," Hosmer said. "It was as simple as that."

As his ship sailed, now peacefully, towards Japan and its safe occupation, Hosmer began a life-long fascination with atomic energy, a fascination which did take him to Congress.

By V-J Day Hosmer was in Tokyo Bay.

"I think we fired the last shot of the war," he said. "We were landing people when an ensign dropped his pistol and it went off. The Japanese harbor pilot hit the deck as if it were his last second and I put the ensign in back for a week," Hosmer said.

As Hosmer headed home alive, he continued his study of atomic energy and on his arrival in Long Beach, he decided to join the Atomic Energy Commission at Los Alamos as an attorney. It was there his thinking crystallized.

"One day a congressional committee came through. Rep. Hollifield (a California Democrat, now chairman of the Joint House-Senate Committee on Atomic Energy,) who is also retiring, was along," explained Hosmer.

"I saw how they laid rose petals at their feet and I thought, now if you want to have something to say about atomic energy, Congress is the place to say it," he added.

Congressman Hosmer confers with the late President Dwight Eisenhower in 1956.

Hosmer returned to Long Beach and ran for Congress, losing in 1950 against an incumbent and winning in 1952 in a new district, resulting from the 1950 census.

"I had a hell of a time being nominated," Hosmer said, but from then on the races were easier and easier.

There was, however, a final campaign, one to win a seat on the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Hosmer's campaign was a carefully calculated one as he lobbied party leaders and individual members, gaining the support of then Republican House leader Joe Martin by stressing his experience as an employee of the AEC.

"Finally, one of the members of the committee died, God bless him," said Hosmer, who joined the committee over the heads of several senior Republicans.

Since that appointment Hosmer has been, along with Holifield, one of the two acknowledged experts on atomic energy in the House. With his and Holifield's retirement both the joint committee and the AEC will probably undergo a complete reorganization.

Hosmer explained how he became an expert on atomic energy.

"I caught a law professor once on a highly technical point of law," he said. "Some months later I read in a law journal a very learned article on the subject by the same professor and I asked him about it. He said, 'When you don't know something about a subject, write an article on it and then you will know that subject.'"

"That's what I've always done," Hosmer concluded.

Thus, the yellow tablet and the typewriter have been Hosmer's constant companions during his years in office and the articles have poured out. Many of them have been on atomic energy, but not all. All of them, however, have carried Hosmer's unique trademark of sharp humor and none of them has shown the more unusual congressional trademark of a highly paid and glib speech writer.

One of his articles on Navy affairs was a highly treasured prize but some of his letters too could win prizes of a different sort.

Hosmer has a set reply for highly critical letters.

"I hope writing that letter has made you feel better and additional therapy isn't needed," he replies, adding a "sincerely" and his signature.

Over the years Hosmer has been in the center of his share of fights and he remembers them with some relish. For example, he relates with considerable pleasure a knockdown drag-out argument he had with then Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov at an atomic energy conference in Vienna as Molotov headed the Russian delegation and Hosmer the American.

"It was at dinner and we argued through interpreters over the quality of American and Russian watches, Russian and American wines and the two languages. Molotov attacked me because I couldn't speak French or German and I attacked him because he couldn't understand my Spanish. It went on all through the courses, the wines and the after dinner drinks," Hosmer said.

"Molotov ended up his career running an electric power station in Siberia," the congressman concluded with satisfaction.

There were many other fights, most of them in Congress, and many of them concerned Hosmer's role as congressional spokesman for the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California and for the State of California

Craig Hosmer

during the fights over the use of Colorado River waters. He is reflective about that role.

"The Colorado River fight was not a particularly pleasant one. My job was to forestall for as long as possible a settlement because Southern California is downstream on the Colorado and the people upstream did have some rights to the water," he said. "Eventually, the United States Supreme Court ruled in favor of the people higher on the Colorado, but only after a lot of water flowed into Southern California."

It was during this fight that Hosmer first used the words "makes about as much sense as trying to grow bananas on Pike's Peak." Today he ties the words to such comments as "Mr. Speaker, Under Secretary of the Interior John C. Whitaker says enactment of H.R. 11500 would result in serious losses in coal supplies. You can bet your bottom dollar that Whitaker knows what he is talking about ... We do not need an environmental straight jacket like H.R. 11500. We need a surface mining bill which regulates a respect for the environment equally with other values, not exclusive of them."

"Why in the face of the current fuel shortages, moving to incur serious losses in coal supplies, H.R. 11500 makes about as much sense as trying to grow bananas on Pike's Peak."

Hosmer has introduced his own strip mining legislation, legislation which has been poorly reported in the Washington papers. It is, he says, an effort to compromise environmental concerns with the need to produce more coal. The arguments are technical and the Hosmer legislation has been attacked as too restrictive by the White House and the coal industry even while the environmentalists attacked it as a sellout to the industry.

Hosmer flatly predicts that unless his bill is passed there will be no federal regulation of strip mining this year.

Over the years Hosmer has made enemies among the environmentalists, not only because of his pro-nuclear power stance, his opposition to liberal land use planning legislation and his representation of California's water interests. In 1972 the environmental founders of the "dirty dozen list," a list of congressmen they feel should be defeated, considered Hosmer. With a batting average of .500, the group asked a Washington-based Long Beach reporter whether there was any chance to defeat Hosmer. "Forget it," was the reply and they did. And there was no real opposition developing in 1974 when Hosmer suddenly announced his retirement.

Some of the environmentalists' ire was softened by Hosmer in a successful effort, which, while it may not rank high on Hosmer's own list of accomplishments, should have far-reaching effect on the congressional district he represents. For years the California Division of Highways has planned a freeway down the Pacific Coast and through one of Southern California's last remaining marsh and tidal pool areas called Anaheim Bay. The

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought to you by Hal Freebern

Here's a true story about what happened one day to the great golfer Bobby Jones — and, this is a story that illustrates the real meaning of the word "sportsmanship" . . . Jones was playing in the National Open of 1925 at Worcester . . . His ball went into the rough, and then accidentally moved very slightly when Jones' club touched a nearby blade of grass . . . Reporters later said that NOBODY saw the ball move . . . Jones, however, asked that he be penalized a stroke . . . Everyone tried to talk him out of taking the penalty because no one saw the ball move . . . But Jones insisted and as it turned out, that stroke cost him the title that year . . . Someone later asked Jones why he'd done it . . . He said, "That's the only way to play the game" . . . Is there a better definition of sportsmanship than that?

What was the longest fight on record? . . . Most boxing records show that the longest glove fight ever was between Andy Bowen and Jack Burke in New Orleans in 1893 . . . Their bout lasted 110 rounds, or 7 hours and 19 minutes! . . . It ended as a draw when neither man could continue.

I bet you didn't know . . . You're on the right road to DOUBLE MILEAGE with BANDAG cold process retreads, their tireless tread can cut your life cost. WE GUARANTEE IT.

freeway came under fire from coast residents and environmentalists alike. They had an ally in the U.S. Navy, which operates the Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station there in an area where atomic weapons and bird and marine life share the same salt marsh.

At the request of local groups, Hosmer introduced — and using his powerful seniority on the House Interior Committee, saw approved in record time — legislation creating the Seal Beach National Wildlife Refuge, protecting the Navy's interests and the wildlife from the State Division of Highways.

Briefly, Hosmer was an environmental hero too. And, of course, a Navy one too.

There are only a few clues as to why Hosmer is retiring and Hosmer is relatively quiet on that subject.

He pointedly tells a reporter doing a story on congressional retirements, "Did you mention that the Republicans have little chance to become committee chairmen because there is little chance the Republican Party can gain control of Congress?"

If Hosmer remained in Congress and if the Republicans gained control, he would become chairman of the House Interior Committee and be in line for chairmanship of his beloved Joint Committee on Atomic Energy.

Although Hosmer discounts them, he has suffered two heart attacks which may be an added reason he is stepping down. As to future plans, Hosmer has not announced them, although probably he and his wife Marian will remain in the Washington, D.C., area rather than return to Long Beach.

The Watergate and related scandals have affected Hosmer, although he has remained firm in his support of President Nixon. He says of the scandals:

"I think the political community is intended to reflect the total society. There are the same number of good, bad, crooked and honest men in the political society as in the whole society . . .

"Watergate has seen the doctrine of presidential infallibility repealed . . .

"In extracting the punishment, we may be foregoing the leadership need on the international scene . . .

"Politicians are subject to constant scrutiny. They are more likely to be shown up as crooks because they are constantly under the spotlight."

As to unethical or illegal approaches in his own political career, Hosmer said they have been few and far between because people quickly learned, "I am an ornery cuss."

And, in fact, the complaints against Hosmer have never been about his honesty or his honor but instead were based on opposition to his stands.

Craig Hosmer, the Honorable Gentleman from California," as House members are referred to on the House floor, rear admiral retired, United States Naval Reserve, and an internationally recognized expert on atomic energy, will leave the Congress at the end of this year. His typewriter and his yellow tablet will go with him, and while putting his congressional duties aside, he does not plan to put those faithful tools into retirement.

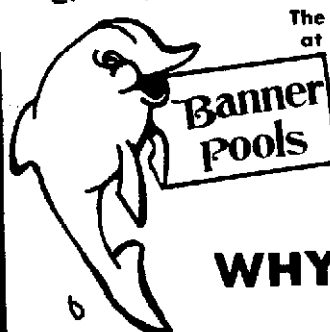

"I'm an ornery cuss," Hosmer repeated. □

The Getty Museum

BY JOANNE NORRIS

When the J. Paul Getty Museum opened in Malibu last winter, critics were less than kind.

The barb which comes most readily to the mind of museum deputy director Stephen Garrett is the cry "Disneyland." Indeed, for some writers of the arts on seeing the replica of a Roman villa which houses one of the Getty's multimillion-dollar collection of antiquities, paintings and decorative arts.

"Disneyland!" bleats Garrett, his blue arms and blonde eyebrows lifting almost scandalously. "What kind of criticism is that?"

Garrett says the critics not only were "snide," they "rather made fools of themselves." Not, he adds, that one could make some serious complaints about their attack on the petty stuff, bah!

Serious criticism, said Garrett, could be made along these lines: If you are going to recreate a Roman villa, do it, and don't have air conditioning and elevators and electric lights. The degree of accuracy is the heart of the issue.

A critic could also say that if a person wants to look at art, anything but a perfectly pure rooming gets in the way.

The building at 17985 Pacific Coast Highway is certainly not "pure," in the sense that it's not plain. It's elaborate and it's imposing and it's proving to be tremendously popular with the public: 4,000 to 5,500 visitors daily at present, not with the critics.

True, there is air conditioning. But you don't notice it, says Garrett, and there is no electric light, we do have air conditioning, an elevator and there are electric lights galore. Los Angeles County has designated architects and builders into other categories to modern-day safety and building codes. In their attempts to reconstruct the Villa of the Papyri, the home of an affluent patrician family in Herculaneum. The original was buried under the ashes of Vesuvius at the same time as Pompeii, has never been uncovered but underground explorations begun in the 18th century have led to an accurate plan made by Swiss engineer Karl Weber.)

But when Los Angeles architects Langdon and Wilson drew up plans and the Dinwiddie Construction Co. launched the building, they found, for example, that pillars had to be a little higher and pools a little shallower (or a 12-foot fence would have marred the beauty of the main court.) Be that as it may, the finished product is almost an exact replica of the ancient villa—with modern comforts.

Dr. Norman Neuerburg, a professor of art at California State College, Dominguez Hills, and an expert on Greek and Roman art history, was the guiding hand. Garrett, a London architect, was in on the act too.

First acquainted with Getty nine years ago when he provided help with a home Getty was building in Italy, Garrett made 16 trips to Los Angeles as Getty's courier during the design and construction of the museum.

"I was the papal legate between the Pope and the worker priests," says Garrett, who has been at the museum permanently since last September except for the three trips back to England he's made to confer with Getty at Getty's home, Sutton Place in Woking, Surrey. Getty has the title museum director although he's never seen the place.

For a man who's invested some $17 million (not counting the other many millions that went into the contents), Getty seems surprisingly reluctant to visit. He hasn't been in this country since 1951, not even when two sons died in intervening years. Needless to say, he did not attend the museum's opening last Jan. 18.

But indifferent he's not, claims Garrett. Indeed, he follows everything and plays a major role in all decisions. Garrett calls him up at least once a week and writes him a note "three times a day."

"Right now he's the one who will decide about increasing the parking. We are working that out at the moment," said Garrett.

Parking has been a thorn in the museum's marble right along. Perched near Pacific Coast Highway on 65 acres Getty owns, the place is accessible only from the highway and, as Garrett says, the highway is a "real mess."

"On the second Sunday after we opened, cars were backed up to the Santa Monica tunnel—of course, not all of them were coming here." But the problem of traffic snarls became so acute, the museum voluntarily closed on the weekends and holidays and is open now only Mondays through Fridays from 10 to 5 and some additional evening hours for lectures.

It's hoped that with the end of the summer tourist season, the museum can be open again on weekends, but right now the staff feels that's not possible. And reservations are advisable because only those who can fit their cars into the 200-car garage are permitted into the museum. The only exceptions are persons who arrive by taxi or bicycle. Foot traffic is turned away on grounds the strollers may have parked down the highway, something that is absolutely verboten.

Even though more parking obviously is desirable, the garage seems commodious, especially if you happen to enter before it's jammed with automobiles. As garages go, it's pretty nifty — clean, neat and it has windows. An "unauthentic" elevator leads to the ground floor and there, sweeping off toward the ocean, is some 300 feet of colonnaded peristyle garden.

Around the colonnades and the lengthy pool are boxwood and blue pansies sitting in well-tended rows. Children can't resist dipping fingers in the crystal-clear pool and tired bodies rest on the benches along the way.

The main floor, built around an inner court with another pool, holds Getty's antiquities collection. On either side of the pool are five bronze Napoli maidens, their bronze so dark it's ebony. From their dark faces stare pairs of arresting eyes, the jet black irises set off by chalk-white eyeballs.

Collecting ancient sculpture has been Getty's primary interest since he began acquiring art in the 30s. And the rooms of the museum's main floor are full of busts, statues, vases, wall panels and complete mosaic tile floors.

Some say Getty's favorite piece is the Lansdowne Herakles, which he acquired from the collection of the Marquess of Lansdowne. It reportedly was once owned by the Emperor Hadrian and is housed at the Getty Museum in its own private arena, shared with some smaller figures of Herakles. Almost as intriguing as the statue itself is the floor of the temple where it stands. It is composed of 20 concentric circles of different colored marble with about 4,000 individual pieces.

The Herakles may have been the victim as were other statues in the collection—of deliberate disfigurement. An unofficial history has it that Lansdowne's wife, in an outburst of prudery, had the private parts chopped off the male statues in the collection. The legend continues that when Getty purchased the collection, a butler handed him the missing parts in a paper bag. Art experts, however, were unable to match them up and the statues remain less than whole, Herakles not withstanding.

The most brilliant room in this section — as its name implies—is the Room of the Colored Marbles. More than a dozen different varieties of ancient marble in many hues have been arranged as a setting for Roman portrait heads.

On the museum's second floor are the Getty collection of paintings and decorative arts. The authenticity of some of the paintings has been questioned and placards beside several of them carefully explain there are copies elsewhere. But Rubens' "Diana and Her Nymphs" was authenticated by the Metropolitan Museum of Art after a copy showed up the Cleveland Museum.

There are other Rubens—"Four Studies of a Negro's Head" and "David Meeting Abigail." There's a Rembrandt, "St. Bartholomew," purchased in 1962 by Getty for a reported $532,000. There are works by Raphael, Titian, Tintoretto, Veronese, Gainsborough, Monet, Degas and Bonnard, spanning eight centuries and several schools with the greatest emphasis on Renaissance and Baroque.

According to the museum's guidebook, Getty's first interest was in 16th century Italian and 17th century Dutch and Flemish paintings, but because these were not easy to come by, his collecting shifted to Baroque.

The museum's collection of "decorative arts," also on the second floor, is almost entirely French from about 1670 to 1790, the early reign of Louis IV to the French Revolution.

The ornate furniture, clocks, chandeliers, carpets, tapestries and objets d'art were made for French royalty and nobility. Not for people who like clean, modern lines, the pieces speak of a taste for gilt and scrollwork and elaborate veneers. Somewhat overwhelming in a museum setting, the pieces confronted one-by-one can be intriguingly lovely.

"It's like being back at Versailles," confided a woman visitor breathlessly to a friend.

One gallery is devoted to French tapestries, some of which hung in the Palace of Pavlosk near St. Petersburg. A nearby gallery has a collection of Oriental carpets, most dating from the first half of the 17th century.

Surfeited with viewing and absorbing, museum visitors can relax in the gardens. The main one is planned for seasonal events so people may see different things in bloom if they visit at different times of the year.

West of the main garden is another garden with geometric plantings of apple, fig, citrus and pear trees. On a hill are olive trees and Italian cypress, arbutus, plane trees and stone piners are planted around the museum on the 10 acres of the property it occupies.

Still standing on the hill above the museum is the Getty home, which, until the museum opened last January, housed the collection. The galleries stand empty now, but the home itself is ready should Getty decide to visit. Whether he will is anybody's guess. "He is very busy," says Garrett. He's still active in the oil business which has made him his millions, and he has some concern about security. A grandson, J. P. Getty III, was kidnaped in Italy in July 1973 and returned in December after losing an ear and after his father had paid $2.9 million ransom. Getty himself refused to pay, saying such an action would endanger the lives of his 13 other grandchildren.

At 81, Getty is alone except for staff and servants. Married five times, he was divorced from his last wife in 1961. One of his three remaining sons lives in Europe. Another is a Los Angeles resident and the third lives in San Francisco. His eldest son, George F. Getty II, died of an overdose of barbiturates combined with alcohol in June 1973. The death was ruled a probable suicide.

His youngest son, Timothy, died in 1958 when he was 12 of post-operative complications. He had had brain surgery earlier and the second operation was to remove scars of the first surgery.

Getty gives few interviews, but apparently remains fairly active socially, giving dinners and parties from time to time.

Several years ago, he installed a pay telephone in the foyer of his Surrey estate. Visitors, he claimed, were using his phone too freely for long-distance calls.

A Los Angeles writer reported a few years back that a taxi driver, who took him to the Getty home, reported he had recently driven Getty and a friend there and Getty allowed his companion to pay the fare.

Frugal though he may be, Getty charges no admission to his museum or for parking. They are absolutely free.

In addition to the museum, the facility includes a library with 15,000 volumes which is opened Wednesday through Friday—also at no charge— from 10 to 2 by appointment. Researchers may delve into materials related to the Getty collection if they call 459-2306. There are photo archives with more than 100,000 photographs of art from all periods. And the conservation laboratory, designed to serve the museum's needs, can also accommodate other institutions and private collectors.

There is a lecture theater which seats 250. A small restaurant, operated by the Manning chain, offers homemade soups, tiny sandwiches, tasty carrot cake and other sweets to visitors. The lines get rather long as the seating capacity is small and there are only three tables outdoors. But if you are lucky enough to get one, the dining atmosphere is extremely pleasant.

In fact, it's the atmosphere of the entire place which most visitors seem to enjoy most.

Standing on the second-floor balcony and gazing toward the Pacific, one woman commented, "It's just like being in Italy and looking at the Mediterranean."

"It's the ambience that attracts people," says Garrett. "Most people find museums forbidding in prospect and in reality. They like being in this building. And if they are having a nice time, they are more apt to appreciate the exhibits, at least their appreciation is enhanced."

Garrett said that in creating the museum Getty tried to walk the line between a "scholarly, monastic, intellectual enclave" and something that would be appealing to the public. He strove to combine the scholarly with the practical.

It's Getty's belief, Garrett said, that if there is a relationship between an antiquities collection and the building that holds it, this is tremendously helpful. In other words, Getty doesn't agree with critics that a museum should be plain.

Apparently something has been done right at the Getty Museum. Since January, upwards of 200,000 people have trooped through.

"People are so surprised," Garrett said, "that right here, across the street from Ted's Rancho Restaurant, just a quarter of a mile from Sunset Boulevard in a little canyon, is this fabulous collection."

As for the criticism: "It's been a huge bonus for us," he continued. "Because of it, people have responded with calls and little notes. They never would have bothered otherwise."

"And," he added, "we much prefer to be hated than for people to be indifferent." □

Sugar Ray's motto is "kids are everybody's cause."

In his fighting days, Sugar Ray battled Randy Turpin to regain his world's middleweight crown in 1951.

End of fight

modest houses in a predominantly black neighborhood. He drives an olive green Pinto station wagon and wears unassuming sports shirts.

All that remains from the old days are the memories and the charisma of Sugar Ray Robinson. He still attracts stares and handshakes wherever he goes — not only from fans who remember his battles against the Grazianos and Basiliros but also from youngsters who were born after he retired.

"I love people and people seem to like me too," says Ray. "It's great to have them come up and say 'Hi, champ.'"

Although Sugar Ray does not live as chicly as he once did, he is still more fortunate than most other ex-boxers, since he doesn't have to live only in the past. Despite the mantle in his living room filled with photos, plaques and trophies dating back to that era, there are other more pressing events in his life today.

"Back in 1969, I saw and read about all the youngsters who are going down the wrong road and are getting into a lot of trouble," recalls Ray. "I just felt that if there was something I could do to help give them direction, then that's what I wanted to spend the rest of my life doing."

After a brief gestation period, Sugar Ray's Youth Foundation was established. It began as a summer program with limited funding. Today, 4,300 youngsters in Los Angeles County are participating in the foundation's expanded activities.

"We're just trying to do whatever we can to divert kids away from juvenile delinquency," says Robinson. "We want to bring them into the mainstream of good citizenship."

The foundation has attracted both boys and girls to its fold through a wide program of athletics, crafts and cultural enrichment. The children, most of whom live in disadvantaged communities, participate in basketball, soccer, volleyball and football games. There are also arts and crafts classes, beauty development workshops, drama classes and music lessons. Not to mention field trips to parks, plays, the Los Angeles Zoo and Dodger and Laker games.

The youngsters, who range in age from 8 to 16, are often referred to the foundation by their school principal, who may consider them to be on the brink of delinquency.

"Without an organization like ours, a principal only has two alternatives of how to treat a troublemaking kid," says Ray. "He can suspend the kid or expel him. Both of these are negative actions."

"But the Sugar Ray Foundation takes a positive approach to the problem. We get the kids interested in doing things they want to do and give them a basis on which to build a good self-image."

The foundation uses school facilities three days a week (including Saturday) to implement its programs. Forty-three schools are now participating, with an average of about 100 youngsters taking part at each school.

Mel Zolkover, the administrative director of the foundation, explains, "All of our kids get Sugar Ray T-shirts to wear. And at our events like the Junior Olympics, every participant wins something. There are no losers. Everyone gets a certificate or a trophy."

Although the foundation receives some private contributions to finance its programs, most of the money comes from government agencies. Last year the California Youth Authority awarded a $300,000 grant to the foundation. The state also established a study group to monitor the effectiveness of the methods being used by the organization.

Yet, with all the other agencies designed to help youngsters, is Sugar Ray's foundation unique?

"I think through healthy sports competition, you can give kids incentive to try for a better life," says Robinson. "I get a lot of athletes out here, like Willie Crawford of the Dodgers, and they talk to the kids and give them an incentive to rearrange their values. The trouble with the YMCA and some other groups is that they provide the facilities but not the incentive for choosing one road over the other."

Certainly a lot of the youngsters identify with Sugar Ray. On a typical Saturday afternoon, he will visit one or more schools where foundation activities are underway. Invariably, the kids will crowd around Ray, throw him a basketball or a football and involve him in the game they're playing. It's an instant bridging of the generation gap.

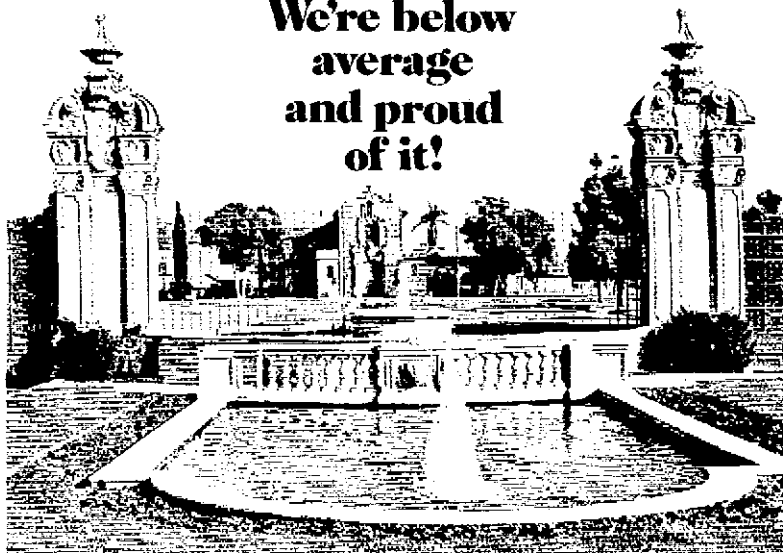

"Ray has a background that these youngsters can recognize," says Zolkover. "He's a self-educated man who grew up in poverty. He doesn't smoke and he doesn't drink. He's a diamond in the rough."

Robinson was born in Detroit 54 years ago and he recalls well the temptations he faced as a youth.

"When you're a kid, you do what the other kids on the block do," he says. "I remember the guys I hung out with. For 'fun,' they would go out and snatch purses from ladies. But I just couldn't do it because I always realized that it could just as easily be my own item that they were stealing from."

When Ray was nine, he lived down the street from Joe Louis, seven years before Louis was to become the heavyweight champion Sunnyside Memorial Gardens has long been noted for its superior service and facilities. But today we find we are well below average in one area—that of funeral costs.

Nationally the average adult complete funeral costs over $1,023.00 while Sunnyside provides the same complete service for an average of only $725.47. If you have to be below average, we believe funeral costs is the place to do it.

So, for above average service with below average prices investigate Sunnyside, the only complete mortuary and cemetery facility in Long Beach.

of the world. Ray would carry Louis' bag to the Brewster Center Gymnasium for his daily workouts. That was the youngster's first introduction to boxing.

Ray's parents soon separated and he moved with his mother to New York, where he tried to add to the family income by shining shoes and dancing on sidewalks for pennies. He finally left high school before graduating and began devoting all his energies to boxing.

Ray won all of his 88 amateur bouts and made his professional debut in 1940. Six years later, he won the welterweight title in a fight with Tommy Bell at Madison Square Garden. Then in 1951, he decked Jake LaMotta for the world middleweight championship, whereupon some sports writers labeled him as the best fighter pound-for-pound in boxing history.

All during his reign as boxing's king, while Ray was living his ostentatious lifestyle, the first signs of his philanthropy were surfacing. In his fifth successful defense of his welterweight title, in a bout with Charlie Fusari, he donated his entire purse to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. When Jimmy Doyle, an opponent in another title defense, died from injuries the day after his fight with Ray, the champion sent 80 per cent of his $5,000 purse to Doyle's family. He later contributed $21,000 to the Hearst Veterans Fund, $25,000 to the Cancer Society of France, as well as money to the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and the B'nai B'rith.

Maybe then it was only natural for Sugar Ray to become as involved with helping children as he has today. When he first became interested in establishing his foundation, he contacted Wright Fillmore, an old family friend, who had worked with the Los Angeles Council of Churches for a long time. They jointly set up the organization's first office in Ray's kitchen. A few months later, their expanded operations moved into a room at the Holman Methodist Church on Adams Boulevard.

Sugar Ray's Youth Foundation is now located on 10th Avenue in Los Angeles, where it shares a shopping center with a barbershop, a record store and a Ralph's Market.

Sugar Ray's desk is in the foundation's front office, where he can glimpse out to the street to watch the passersby. On a recent morning, his tabletop was cluttered with a variety of letters and documents, including the morning's sports page which headlined another Dodger victory. He was sipping on a half-filled cup of black coffee and intermittently played with his horn-rimmed glasses that he slipped on occasionally to correct his far-sightedness. To his right and near the front entrance was a shelf of community awards and trophies that he's acquired since the foundation was created.

"What I'm doing now is a lot more gratifying than boxing ever was," says Ray. "Boxing was a business. I made a lot of money and got a lot of recognition. But it was never any fun. No one likes to fight. But I love this."

Sugar Ray (Continued from page 21)

Robinson is particularly proud that the youngsters who participate in the foundation's activities are not required to pay any membership fee. He recalls wanting to join the YMCA when he was growing up in New York, but he couldn't because the 25 cents-a-month fee was more than his mother could afford.

"It seems like all these kids today have one thing in common," he explains. "They just seem to want somebody to care. So many of them come from broken homes and they're not growing up with the love and the attention that they need and deserve."

"I believe in God and I think I was blessed with a talent so I could be right here now helping these kids. I'm dedicated to this cause for the rest of my life."

Of course, the foundation has had its problems. Until the state grant was awarded, there was always the problem of raising money. But the government funds have now provided for the expansion of the organization's activities, allowing more kids to participate and providing for the hiring of 190 employees, many of whom are wards of the California Youth Authority themselves.

Still the foundation has to depend on volunteers for a sizeable portion of its manpower. Some parents and other concerned citizens work long hours several days a week to help implement the program.

According to one parent, "I just want to see a better tomorrow for these kids. If we can just keep them active and busy, they won't have time to get into trouble."

Wright Fillmore, who at 75 has more vitality than many men 30 years younger, points with pride at the kids whom Sugar Ray's Foundation helped. He tells of the reduction of vandalism at several schools in which the program is operating.

Fillmore can recall many individual success stories, like Mike, who was a gang member when he joined the foundation at 15. Now, three years later, he is attending night school as well as working fulltime in a shoe store.

Then there's Brenda, who was encouraged by the foundation to continue her education in nursing school. She now works at the County-USC Medical Center.

"We realize we won't be able to win all the kids over to believe that kindness, friendship and respect are important things in life," says Fillmore. "But we think they all should have a chance to become good citizens."

The City of Los Angeles Social Service Department has noted that Sugar Ray's foundation spends far less on salaries and overhead than other agencies like it, with 90 per cent of all its funds going directly into the organization's programs. Ray himself does not take a single penny in salary for his work with the foundation. Instead he depends on occasional work in movies and TV, as well as some income property, to support himself.

The ex-champ also still keeps in excellent shape. He works out at the Main Street gym every day, jabbing at bags and even sparring in the ring for a round or two. Although his punches are still lightning quick, he admits that his legs have slowed down considerably. He maintains his weight at only slightly above the 160 pounds he used to carry into championship bouts.

Ray even returned to the Olympic Auditorium ring two years ago for a three-round exhibition bout, with proceeds going to his foundation. Fans paid a top - ticket of $7.50 to see one of boxing's legends joust with a 25-year-old fighter from Little Rock named Jimmy Richards.

"It was really something getting back into the ring," recalls Ray. "It felt so good hearing all those cheers from the crowd. It took me back a lot of years."

"Back then, I lived the life that I loved. I did a lot of things, met a lot of great people and went through a whole lot of money. But I think what I'm doing now is even better, 'cause I get the chance to really help make a difference in kids' lives."

And if maybe there's a moment now and then when Sugar Ray day-dreams about the old days — with all the money, the championship belts and the playboy image — he is brought back to reality rather quickly and pleasantly by a poster-sized letter he received a few months ago that now hangs in his office. It states:

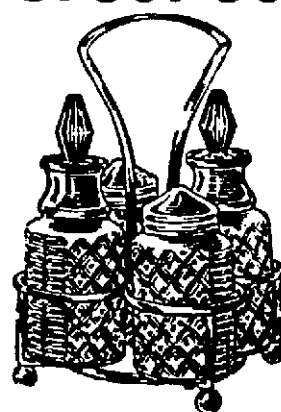

Dear Sugar Robinson:
Thank you for organizing the Sugar Ray Youth Foundation for us. We also want to thank you for the wonderful T-shirts you gave us. We appreciate all the care and the time you have given to the students of Saint Agnes School. And we wish that God has you in his prayers. And we have you in ours.

Sincerely yours,
The Student Body of St. Agnes School. □

GOURMET

By JACK O. BALDWIN

It has been said there is no substitute for experience. And Love's certainly has that experience. It has been wood barbecuing beef, ribs, chicken and ham for more than 25 years.

We dined at the Lakewood restaurant for the first time the other evening and since it was our first experience we ordered the Sampler, $3.95. We were served an ample quantity of sliced tender beef, meaty ribs, thinly sliced ham, and chicken, all of which was drenched in Love's own special sauce. It all tasted as though the meats had been cooked over a grill on a campfire in the mountains. As we had walked across the parking lot to the restaurant's entrance, we could smell the delightful aroma of smoke from the wood coals in the restaurant's three large barbecuing pits.

With our dinners we had a cup of Love's famous (and they are) barbecued baked beans, plus French fries and toasted French bread. I first was served a cup of hot delicious Navy bean soup, which happened to be the soup of the day. My wife elected to have a tossed green salad with Roquefort dressing.

Many patrons don't know that if they wish they may dine in the quiet, intimate and nicely appointed cocktail lounge.

Love's loves children. There were many of them there when we dined about 6 p.m. There are several highchairs for the really wee ones. Children's dinners for those under 12, range in price from $1.55 to $2.65. Hamburger and fries or a giant frankfurter are $1.25.

Other menu items include salads, soups, dinner sandwiches, and a la carte meat.

Love's, which can seat 136 in the dining room and 36 in the lounge, is open Monday through Thursday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday to midnight. This fine eating house is located on Lakewood Boulevard at Candlewood Street.

We recommend it highly.

GUIDE

When my wife and I dine out, we carry small one-cell flashlights so we can read the mini-sized type on menus in restaurants which are dimly lighted or use candleholders for a light source. But when we dined recently at the newly redecorated Tenderloin Restaurant, a long-time Long Beach luncheon and dinner house, we did not need our small flashlights.

Pretty, blond Madelon A. Teel, the Tenderloin's new owner, had installed new chandeliers

MADELON A. TEEL
Repainted Tenderloin

that brightened the dining room and the new menus are printed in readable-sized type. The lighting is soft but not glaring.

She has decorated the walls with many, attractive oil paintings.

For dinner, my wife selected the New York steak, ($5.95) which she labeled as excellent. It was served with deep fried onion rings and a fire engine red crabapple. She chose the whipped potatoes, a choice over baked, French fries or rice. The vegetable was a serving of fresh string beans, freshly cooked. She had a crisp tossed green salad drenched in delicious Roquefort dressing, which I tasted.

I ordered soup, a chicken broth with wide tender noodles. My entree selection was the house specialty, prime rib and mini lobster combination. ($6.95) Actually the lobster was two, both perched on the back of the tails from which they had been taken. Dipped in hot butter, they were delicious. As for the "mini" bit, I have had some lobster tails about the same size described as "giant size." My baked potato was baked bare (without foil) which I prefer and heaped with a huge topping of cheese dressing. The prime rib, about the size of a saucer, was dripping in juice and easily cut with a fork.

The Tenderloin, which seats 100 in the dining room and 50 in the cocktail lounge, is open every day except Monday. It is located at 4363 Atlantic Ave.

Visit the Tenderloin. You'll enjoy both the food and attractive decor.

FOR FAMILY BUSINESS

By STEVE ELLINGSON

It takes good management to run a business efficiently and economically and it takes the same good management to run a home. For that reason, most families today have arranged for a business center equipped with essential office supplies which will invite one to conduct household business in an organized way. This business center should be designed to provide storage space for family documents — from back statements to tax records — and it should include a writing area of ample size where papers and a telephone may be spread out comfortably for work.

The handsome trestle desk shown here takes up a minimum of floor space, but still offers plenty of writing surface, plus eight drawers for files and supplies. Here is something that Dad will appreciate when he brings paper work home from the office. And, of course, report cards get a helping hand when the student in your family has his very own desk.

The pattern for building this desk is full-sized. You need only trace the pattern parts on plywood, saw them out and assemble. A series of pictures showing the various stages of construction is included along with a list of needed materials. It's an inexpensive project and something any amateur can undertake with success.

To obtain the trestle desk pattern No. 435, send $1 (add 25 cents per pattern for airmail delivery) by cash, check or money order to:

Q. Who is this kid, Jon Peters, who is living with Barbra Streisand? I hear he is a regular Romeo. What's he got?—Louis Di Angelis, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Jon Peters, 29, is a hairdresser who, with his uncle, Adolf Pagano, and a partner, Paul Cantor, runs three beauty salons in the Los Angeles area. He is from all reports "a regular move-in and take-over guy." Seven years ago, Peters courted and swept off her feet a young actress of tremendous potential, Lesley Ann Warren. He married her in Las Vegas, changed her hair and life-style. Today Miss Warren's career has faded and she and Jon are divorcing. No doubt Miss Warren will obtain custody of their son. A year ago Peters met Barbra Streisand when he styled one of her wigs. Love bloomed, and the two have been together ever since. Miss Streisand, 32, insisted that Peters produce her record album, "Butterflies," and refused to act in the forthcoming remake of A Star Is Born, unless Jon, who has never produced a movie, is made the film's producer. She will, of course, get her way. A Star Is Born was first filmed in 1937 with Janet Gaynor and Fredric March and then again in 1955 with Judy Garland and James Mason. Most probably Jon Peters will marry Barbra Streisand, not only manage her hair but her career as well. She is ripe for a take-over.

HEAD MAN JON PETERS WITH BARBRA STREISAND AND (BELOW) WITH LESLEY ANN WARREN

MAUD ADAMS: SHE USED TO DATE KISSINGER

Q. Has Henry Kissinger ever told anyone about his hiatus hernia, and his romance with Swedish model Maud Adams?—Henrietta Sparling, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Kissinger's hiatus hernia has nothing to do with Maud Adams. She is a Swedish-born model who used to date Kissinger occasionally in New York. Recently she was given a small part in the latest James Bond film. Kissinger's hiatus hernia, the pain from which frequently makes him feel as if he's suffering a heart attack, is an affliction of long standing. The Secretary of State is compulsively secretive but not about his hiatus hernia.

Q. When Sen. George McGovern (D., S. Dak.) ran for the Presidency, he recommended that "when the war ends, amnesty be granted to those who, on the grounds of conscience, have refused to participate in the Vietnam tragedy." Some weeks ago at a VFW convention he said his view on amnesty was settled because of Presidential opposition. Why has McGovern turned chicken on amnesty?—C.R., Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

A. Incumbent McGovern is running for reelection in South Dakota against a former Vietnam POW, says now, "Amnesty is not within the responsibilities of a United States Senator." Practically all politicians have been known to waffle.

Q. I cannot believe that President Nixon's reelection campaign committee has agreed to pay millions of dollars in legal fees for the defense of such people as John Mitchell, Maurice Stans, Edward Nixon and others. When people contribute to a political campaign do they realize their money can be used for such purposes?—Richard Cox, Scarsdale, N.Y.

A. It may well be that most people who contribute to campaign funds haven't the slightest idea of what happens to their contributions. As of this past June, the trustees of the Committee to Re-Elect the President had disbursed $1.4 million to more than 25 different law firms for servicing almost 30 former campaign employees. Even so the committee still had a surplus of $3.37 million in interest-earning cash, easily enough to cover all the legal expenses of all former workers involved in the Watergate and political dirty-tricks affairs.

Q. Why are they keeping secret the name of the publisher's daughter for whom the Soviet ballet star Mikhail Barishnikov recently defected to Canada?—Claire Jordan, Greenwich, Conn.

A. It is no secret that Barishnikov is more than fond of Christina Berlin whose father, Richard, was at one time chief executive of the Hearst publications. Christina Berlin met Mikhail Barishnikov in 1971 when she was working in London as an assistant to Dame Margot Fonteyn, and he was touring with the Kirov Ballet. Barishnikov, 26, has been given official permission to remain in Canada for six months. At the end or during that period if he should marry Christina Berlin, it would surprise no one.

EAST-WEST ROMANCE: MIKHAIL AND CHRISTINA

Q. During the 1960's the Kennedy Administration conducted a crash program to beat the Russians in putting a man on the moon. Now we've learned that the Russians never even came close technologically to putting a man on the moon. Who goofed and wasted all that money?—I.S.F., Huntsville, Ala.

A. Whether putting an American on the moon was a waste of money is of course arguable. That our intelligence of the Soviet space technology was faulty is not. The blame, if there is any, belongs to our intelligence community.

REDUCING THE SEX URGE

A new drug, Androcure, which lowers the male sex drive, is now available in England on the National Health Service.

It is chemically related to the male sex hormone testosterone, and blocks the function of that hormone.

The drug, generically known as cyproterone acetate, was developed by the Schering Chemical Company of West Germany and is already sold there as well as in Denmark, Switzerland and Holland.

Primarily used in the treatment of rapists and sexual criminals in various European countries, the drug can also be used for couples who are sexually incompatible. A Schering researcher, Dr. A.W. Hircus, says, "There's no reason why a very small dosage of the drug could not be given to a hypersexual husband. It would reduce him into a 'once-a-week' man if in fact that is what his wife wants."

Clinical trials of the drug began in Europe in 1963, and after six years of trials in Great Britain, in which more than 120 patients were treated, the drug was OK'd by the Committee on Safety in Medicines this past January.

Whether the drug will be marketed in the United States has not yet been determined by Schering officials. They say, however, that it opens up the possibility of early release of sex criminals from prisons throughout the world providing such prisoners regularly take the drug and are periodically checked by the authorities.

SEPARATION SUIT

Martha Mitchell, the irrepresible, wants no divorce from her second husband, former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell. All she wants is a separation. Mrs. Mitchell is represented by a law firm headed by the colorful attorney Melvin Belli, well-known for the large amounts he has won in damage suits.

Mitchell is represented by attorney Marvin Segal, who says, "There is no rancor between the parties, no ill feeling on either side. Their differences may very well be settled without having to go to court."

Martha says John was a delightful and model husband until he entered politics. Now that John has removed himself from the political front it may well be that a reconciliation is possible, unless of course, Martha strikes it big as a TV commentator for which occupation she has displayed considerable talent. Matter of fact a John and Martha TV program might not prove a bad idea at all.

MARTHA MITCHELL ON TV

MORE OR ELSE Ever since the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) threatened to bring the economy of the Western world to a gradual halt by reducing their production of oil, other countries have begun to try the same gimmick.

Seven Central and South American countries which export 110 million boxes of bananas to North America each year have threatened to stop selling bananas unless they are paid a bonus or tax of $1 per box.

The countries are Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Honduras, Panama, Colombia, Guatemala and Ecuador. Some of these same countries also want to suspend coffee exports to world markets unless they are paid a minimum of $73 per 100-pound sack. At this writing the price is $65 a sack.

Jamaica also threatens to prevent shipment of bauxite, a necessary ingredient in the manufacture of aluminum, unless it gets higher prices.

The oil-rich Arabs really started something with their oil embargo and their price rise. They have stimulated cartel forces everywhere.

NAKED NEGOTIATIONS

Do you have a major decision or a big business deal to make? Try doing it in a sauna bath. Physiologists from Helsinki believe the Finnish sauna bath lowers a man's aggressiveness, which is probably why more and more Finnish executives are taking saunas together during complicated negotiations. Finland's President Urho Kekkonen regularly takes a steam bath but has yet to convene a cabinet meeting in his sauna.

SWINGING ALONG IN TOKYO

EVERYTHING FOR MY LADY

In Japan, female golfers in search of a male partner, can now hire one from an agency in Tokyo at $17 a day, a mere trifle when one considers that the greens fees at the Koganei or Kasumigaseki country clubs have reached $80 a day.

The Tokyo agency, aptly named the Japan Golf Produce Company, which supplies male golfers to lonely female sportswomen, achieved its first success by providing female companions to lonely male golfers.

In order to recruit men to keep members of the opposite sex happy on the fairways, the agency advertised for golfing escorts with the following qualifications -- under 30, personable, with an official handicap of 18 or under.

Of the 300 men who answered the ad, 90% were office workers. Of the 20 chosen, one is an actor, another is a former professional baseball player, a third is a professional male escort, formerly employed at a Ginza bar which hires men to talk, dance, and drink with women patrons. Such bars are commonplace in Tokyo and have become increasingly more popular with lonely housewives.

CHANGING OF THE GUARD

In another few years the domination of key U.S. Senate committees by Southern Democrats will become a page in history, providing the Senate retains its Democratic majority.

Southern Democrats still retain eight of 17 Senate committee chairmanships, including such major ones as Appropriations, Armed Services, Foreign Relations, and Finance. But those days are ending.

In 1976 Sen. John Stennis (D., Miss.) will reach 75, at which time he may well choose retirement instead of seeking reelection. If so, Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson (D., Wash.) will take over the Armed Services Committee.

In 1978, as Spencer Rich recently pointed out in The Washington Post, three more key Senate terms will expire. By then Sen. John Sparkman (D., Ala.) will be 79. Sen. John McClellan (D., Ark.) will be 82. Sen. James Eastland (D., Miss.) will be 74.

It may well be that Sen. Frank Church (D., Idaho) will succeed Sparkman as chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, that Sen. Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.) or Sen. John Pastore (D., R.I.) will take charge of the Appropriations Committee and that Sen. Edward Kennedy (D., Mass.) or Phil Hart (D., Mich.) will helm the Senate Judiciary Committee.

By 1978 Southern Democrats may control only two committee chairmanships -- Russell Long (D., La.) heading Finance, and Herman Talmadge (D., Ga.) chairing Agriculture.

In 1959 Southern Democrats chaired 10 of the 16 U.S. Senate Committees.

Next year Sen. Sam Ervin's Government Operations Committee will be headed either by Sen. Edmund Muskie (D., Maine) or Sen. Abe Ribicoff (D., Conn.). The Banking Committee will be headed by Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.) who replaces Sparkman of Alabama.

THE FRENCH CUT

One of the most popular films in London and Paris this summer is a documentary on the dictator of Uganda, Gen. Idi Amin Dada.

Like most politicians, Amin resents bad publicity. Hence he recently threatened to jail the 150 French residents of Kampala, Uganda's capital, unless the documentary was "edited."

Fearing the worst for his compatriots, French director Barbet Schroeder agreed. Hence the Paris version of the film no longer includes a public execution and references to the thousands of Ugandans who have mysteriously disappeared since Amin became President. In London, however, the film is being shown without cuts.

FOREIGN INDUSTRIAL GIANTS

Of the world's 20 largest non-American industrial giants recently listed by Business Week, nine are in West Germany, which will show you where a large share of the money's at.

In its latest survey,

Business Week listed 450 corporations from 25 countries. One hundred each were located in Canada and Japan.

The ten largest, however, in 1973 were:

1. Royal Dutch-Shell Group, Netherlands-Britain, with profits of $1.695 billion (oil).
2. Unilever, Britain-Netherlands (soap), profits $400 million.
3. Philips, Netherlands (electric products), $342 million in profits.
4. British Petroleum, $760 million in profits.
5. Nippon Steel, Japan, $184 million in profits.
6. Siemens, Germany, $165.5 million in profits (electrical products).
7. Volkswagen, Germany, $78.1 million in profits.
8. Hoechst, Germany (chemicals), $192.5 million in profits.
9. Daimler-Benz, Germany (autos), $102.6 million in profits.
10. Bayer, Germany (chemicals), $209 million in profits.

THE BIKINI YES, NUDITY NO!

MEN AND NUDITY

The French male is a self-admitted expert on female beauty, but he wants nude women kept off his beaches.

A poll published a few weeks ago by France Soir shows

56 percent of Frenchmen opposed to nude sunbathers on the beach. Only 7 percent favor total nudity on all beaches. Women bathers currently go topless on French beaches and in some municipal swimming pools.

One of Sister Theo's pupils demonstrates what she has learned: she delivers a hard kick at knee-level that is potentially effective against a would-be assailant.

The Nun Who Teaches Self-Defense

by John G. Rogers

ELM GROVE, WIS.

Forty-seven-year-old Sister Mary Theophane, a Roman Catholic nun, is a jolly and gentle person, laughs readily, is good company and makes interesting conversation. But this charming and witty woman has another aspect—she can be a tough cookie who teaches other women how to knock a molesting man unconscious.

Sister Theo, as her friends call her, is head of the Notre Dame Health Care Center in this Milwaukee suburb. She's a physical therapist with a strong, supple body and when recently a Marquette University girl student was assaulted and nearly raped, Sister Theo decided to start a program to teach women how to defend themselves.

"You might think this an odd business for a nun to be involved in," she says, "but I have to emphasize that we make no effort to be vicious. In my classes attended by other nuns, nurses, housewives and even little girls, I stress that if you're accosted, first you try to talk the man out of his intentions or you scream or you run. The molester is usually a sick and confused man, and if you can knock him off balance mentally, you frequently win the battle without violence.

Element of surprise

"But I also teach how to knock him off balance physically if the running and screaming don't get a woman out of trouble. It's not exactly karate or judo, but certain hand chops and kicks and jabs with fingers or pencils will surprise an aggressor. Even a small woman can frequently handle a large man if she keeps her cool and uses skills she has learned.

"But what I want to keep repeating is that we have no motive of seriously hurting the man. Violence is a last resort. We just want to save the woman or girl from harm or injury."

One of Sister Theo's pupils, also a nun, observes, "It's a sad commentary on our times when women of all ages, even those dedicated to the ideals of religion and good deeds, find that it's necessary to learn how to defend themselves against violence."

In attempting to teach her students that none of her systems is based on strength, Sister Theo points out that the element of balance is one of the defense fundamentals. Says she:

"You can pull the man toward you and then put the heel of your hand hard against his nose. That's a pretty good deterrent. A kick into his knee can be mighty useful. Remember that your legs are stronger than your arms. And if you don't get the chance to run away, it's very important that you don't just stand there and act helpless and scared. Most molesters don't expect any resistance. So if you take the initiative, you have used the element of surprise in your favor."

"And don't forget that your purse is an arsenal. While you're pretending to get out some money or a cigarette you can snatch out a defensive weapon—a pen, a comb, anything that can jab or be used to scrape a face. It's also a good idea to carry a whistle. If there's anything an accoster can't stand, it's noise and attention."

Cause and effect

As a religious person Sister Theo concerns herself not only with the right of self-defense but also with the risk of seriously hurting the molester. She warns that while a chop on the temple most likely will result only in a temporary stunning, a chop in the hollow of the throat could cause severe injury or even death.

One of Sister Theo's most recent classes consisted of 20 girls, aged 12. All were sent to the class by their mothers, some of whom had been victimized and wanted their daughters to have the best possible odds in case of attack. Sample quotes from the girls:

Kim—"I haven't personally had any trouble yet, but I know the possibility is always there, and I want to be as ready as I can for it. I do know a girl who hollered and screamed and saved her money from a purse snatcher."

Anne—"My mother wants me to know basic self-defense. Sometimes crooks are smart guys. They make their plans in advance so why shouldn't we do the same."

Joan—"I'm not going to be easy game for some guy with an idea. If it ever happens, he's going to know he's got a fight on his hands, and I believe we all appreciate what Sister Theo is doing for us."

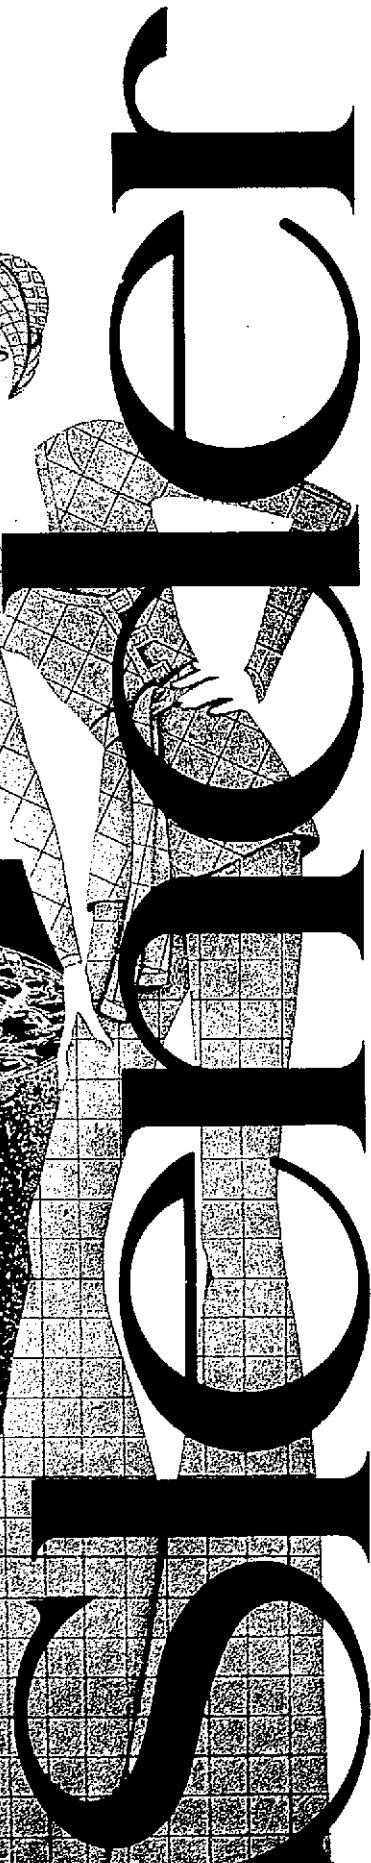

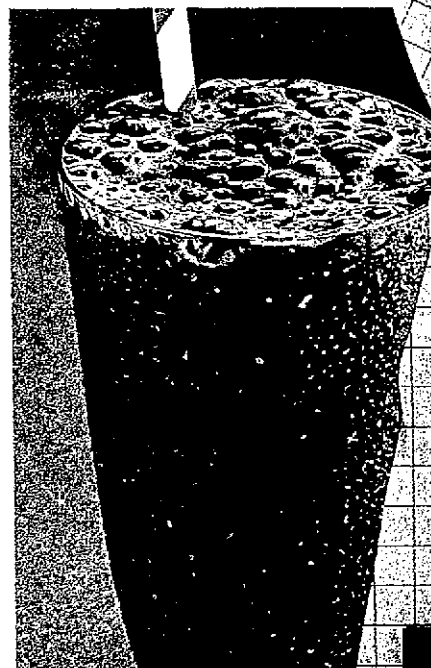

And Sister Theo sums it all up: "I don't want to be an alarmist and spread the notion that there's a rapist hiding behind every tree, but we've all heard or read about these incidents so let's just do what we can to deter them."

The sister packs a wallop: she tells her students of all ages that if a woman takes the initiative, she can surprise an attacker, who does not expect resistance.

How Well Do Lawyers Serve The Cause of Justice?

by Donald Robinson

There have been so many scandals lately involving lawyers and the courts that many people have lost confidence in the legal profession and the administration of justice in the United States. As a result, the leaders of the American Bar Association have been doing some intensive soul-searching to find ways to reinforce public confidence in lawyers and the law.

PARADE asked officials of the ABA to select 10 questions which concern the American people about lawyers today. The questions were submitted to 10 of the most important lawyers in the nation for their candid comments:

1. Some authorities claim that three out of four general trial lawyers are so incompetent they shouldn't be in a courtroom. Is that so?

Clark Clifford was Special Counsel to President Truman, an adviser to President Kennedy, and Secretary of Defense under President Johnson. Now he is probably the most influential of all Washington lawyers.

"It's only too true.

"The British are much wiser than we. They divide their bar into two parts. They have solicitors who are the office lawyers, and specially trained barristers to do their trial work. We let any lawyer conduct a court case, and the results can be calamitous.

"The situation is no different in the appellate courts. A Supreme Court Justice once told me that 10 percent of the legal arguments made before the high court were worth listening to, and another 20 percent gave the court some help. The remaining 70 percent wasted the court's time, he said.

"It's essential that the American bar set strict requirements for lawyers who wish to practice trial and appellate court law. If you were critically ill and needed complicated surgery, you wouldn't let a general practitioner operate on you. You'd get an experienced surgeon. It's the same with a court case."

2. Is a lawyer obligated to defend a Mafia killer or a corrupt politician?

Edward Bennett Williams is, unquestionably, the United States' top defense lawyer in criminal cases. His clients have included Jimmy Hoffa, Frank Costello, Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy and Adam Clayton Powell.

"When the Founding Fathers wrote the Bill of Rights, they said that every accused person has the right to counsel. They didn't say every accused person except an accused Mafia killer. They didn't say every accused person except an allegedly corrupt politician. They said every accused person, no matter how obnoxious he may be in the public image. No matter how strongly the finger of guilt may point at him.

"Now, there can be no rights without correlative duties. If somebody has the right to counsel, then lawyers have a duty to respect that right. I construe this to mean that lawyers are obligated to give help to all those who seek it.

"Someone recently asked me, 'Is there any crime so horrible, so offensive, that you wouldn't take the client?' I told him, 'No.' Simply because a person is accused does not mean that he is guilty. When we lawyers talk about guilt, we talk about legal guilt. We don't get into the area of moral guilt. Moral guilt we reserve to God."

3. Is the bar able to police itself? And willing to?

Tom C. Clark of Washington, D.C., served as an Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court for 18 years, retiring in 1967. He still sits on important Circuit Court of Appeals cases. He was Attorney General of the United States under President Truman.

"Some years ago, I was asked to head an inquiry into the effectiveness of efforts by lawyers to discipline themselves. After a thorough investigation, our committee reported that the situation was 'a national scandal.' It still is. With few exceptions, the prevailing attitude of lawyers toward disciplinary procedures still ranges from apathy to outright hostility.

"Many lawyers won't even accept a lawsuit against another lawyer. Just the other day, I received a poignant letter from an elderly lady with a serious grievance against a local attorney. Not one lawyer in her town would take her case. I had to get her a lawyer from another city.

"One major reform is necessary. Laymen should be included on every grievance committee that is set up to investigate a complaint against a lawyer. It will give the public confidence that the inquiry is not a whitewash."

4. Why don't more lawyers try to achieve a reconciliation between the husband and wife in a divorce case?

Harriet F. Pilpel of New York City is outstanding among divorce lawyers. She was a consultant on marriage and divorce to the Commission on Uniform State Laws.

"There is no denying that some divorce lawyers don't see their assignments in human terms. They pay too much attention to legal technicalities without considering the human values involved in their cases.

"Lawyers like these are a minority, though. Most good, responsible divorce lawyers try to hold a marriage together if any possibility exists of a reconciliation. They may attempt to effect a reconciliation themselves, or they will refer the parties to a marriage counselor or a psychotherapist.

"Some people think that divorce lawyers tend to be money-minded. They have a strange misconception that divorce lawyers make vast fortunes for themselves out of the marital misfortunes of their unhappy clients. The truth is that divorce law, usually, is not very profitable unless you happen to represent a multimillionaire. You almost never can charge a client enough to cover the time that goes into the case.

"A good divorce lawyer is more interested in people's problems than in their fees. He realizes that a counselor-at-law is an adviser to human beings with human problems."

5. Why do so many lawyers pressure clients to plead guilty in criminal cases?

Whitney North Seymour Jr. won a nationwide reputation for effectiveness and independence from political pressure as U.S. Attorney in New York City from 1970 to 1973. Now in private practice, he was recently elected president of the New York State Bar Association.

"I don't blink at the fact that some lawyers wrongly lean on their clients to take guilty pleas. There are some courthouse-hangers-on type of lawyers who get small fees, $100 to $200 apiece, for handling criminal cases, and they de-

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes.

But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage. Except Vantage.

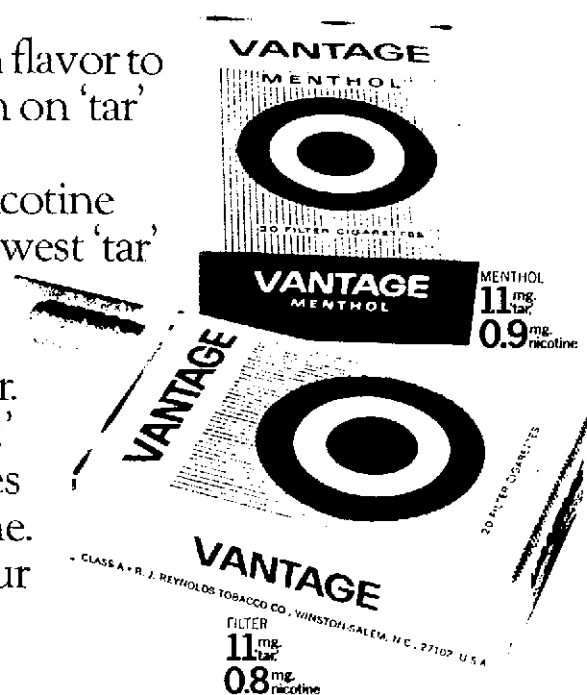

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar'.

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

"Sometimes, a defendant has to sit in jail for many months waiting for his trial because of delays in the criminal justice process. After a while, the D.A. says to the lawyer, 'If your client will plead guilty, we'll let him go.' The defendant is faced with the proposition that he can walk out the door if he pleads guilty, but that he must stay in jail for another six months if he wants a trial to prove his innocence. Desperate for freedom, many defendants accept the offer. It isn't the lawyer who's putting the pressure on the defendant here, though. It's the system. It's dreadful. Our whole concept of justice is destroyed.

"Still, I must say this. In many instances, it's perfectly legitimate for a lawyer to put pressure on his client to take a plea. Suppose a lawyer objectively decides that the evidence is overwhelming against his client. He's obligated to say to him, 'You're foolish to go to trial, you're sure to be convicted. If you insist on putting the government to the expense of a trial, the judge is going to throw the book at you. You can help yourself by telling the judge that you're guilty, you're sorry, and you won't do it again.' The lawyer is actually trying to get a better break for his client."

CHESTERFIELD H. SMITH

6. How can you have confidence anymore in the integrity of the legal profession when more than half of the men convicted or indicted in the Watergate affair are lawyers?

Chesterfield H. Smith made a national reputation for himself through his courage, his frankness and his progressivism as president of the American Bar Association during the past year.

"Despite Watergate, I think that people can have faith in the legal profession. Lawyers have stood up well in this sordid mess. There have been many more heroes than villains.

"I'm proud of lawyers like Elliot L. Richardson and William D. Ruckelshaus who put their professional standards and honor above what might have been best for them politically. I'm proud of Sen. Sam Ervin and his colleagues on the Senate Judiciary Committee who employed their legal skills so well in their investigations of the Watergate horrors. I'm very pleased with the way John Doar and Albert E. Jenner assembled the evidence for the House impeachment hearings. I'm proud of Archie Cox. I'm especially proud of Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski. He seems to me to be a man of high principles and dedication. Most of all, I'm proud of the courage and integrity of Judges John J. Sirica and Gerhard Gesell.

"I'm not denying that several lawyers at the White House forgot their responsibilities to the Constitution and laws of the United States. I can assure you that we're going to take action against them. We've already disbarred some former White House aides, and there will be more."

PROF. JOSEPH W. BISHOP JR.

7. Lawyers' fees are so high that only the rich or the near rich can afford justice. What can the rest of us do?

Prof. Joseph W. Bishop Jr. has been on the faculty of the Yale Law School in New Haven, Conn., since 1957. Before that he was a noted Wall Street lawyer, and Acting General Counsel of the Department of the Army.

"Lawyers' fees are getting so high today that even the rich sometimes squeal. Rumor has it that one eminent lawyer charged a famous newspaper $50,000 just for a couple of lunches at which he discussed the Pentagon Papers case. The rumors don't say who paid for the lunch.

"At least, the poor are better off than they used to be. Public defenders and court-appointed counsel generally do a pretty good job of defending them against criminal charges. Poor people still have a hard time obtaining legal assistance for their civil problems—divorce, consumer fraud, and the like—but a number of public and private agencies are tackling this problem.

"It is the two-thirds of the population in the middle that have the most trouble. If they are sued, they cannot defend themselves. They can't afford a lawyer. If they get involved in a criminal case, it can mean bankruptcy.

"The solution is inevitable. People are going to find justice without lawyers. Many jobs that lawyers now do can be done as well and more cheaply by other people. Real estate brokers can handle title searches and routine real estate conveyances. Bank trust departments can take care of most probate matters. Accountants are just as good as lawyers at preparing most income tax returns. And no-fault legislation will allow most automobile accident victims to be compensated without the need of lawyers. It's about time the trial bar stopped battling it. For the rest, some sort of insurance plan, like Blue Cross, can safeguard people against a legal catastrophe. I'm all for that."

WILLIAM T. COLEMAN

8. Why don't more lawyers practice public service law? Are lawyers interested only in getting rich?

William T. Coleman of Philadelphia is one of the most successful corporation lawyers in the United States. He is also president of the Legal Defense Fund of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. He donates at least one-third of his time to unpaid public service causes.

"One of the tragedies in the development of our system of law has been the growth of our big law firms, representing the great corporate interests. For some reason, many of them feel that they cannot get involved in the problems of the day. I think a good lawyer ought to be able to represent a major corporation one day, a labor union the next day, and some poor people on the day after that. The idea that you can only be on one side bothers the hell out of me. Abraham Lincoln, who was a pretty good lawyer, represented the Illinois Central Railroad in many cases, and the next morning he was apt to be in court defending some poor woman charged with murder. He'd have a two-week trial for her, and all he'd get paid for it would be a few dollars.

"A lawyer is really a public servant. He has a duty to be involved in all types of issues."

JAMES R. THOMPSON

9. You often hear about a lawyer getting a defendant off on a technicality.

Does that serve the cause of justice?

James R. Thompson is the U.S. Attorney who has convicted slews of corrupt politicians and gangsters in Chicago. He is only 38 years old.

"Every time I hear a report like that, I look to see what the technicality was. Usually, it was that some police officers violated the Constitution in gathering evidence. Then the defense lawyer quite properly filed a motion to suppress this evidence and the judge upheld it. Nothing was left to support the case, so the defendant had to be ruled not guilty.

"I don't think that man was freed on a technicality. He got off because his constitutional rights were violated.

"It's true that our legal system sometimes goes awry and a defendant escapes his just desserts because of a true technicality. A misspelled word in an indictment, say. But, if everything is on the up-and-up, a prosecutor has his remedies. He can appeal, or he can bring a new indictment. The chances of somebody escaping justice on a genuine technicality are mighty slim. If you check into it, you'll probably find that it's either a substantial constitutional question, or one of those rare cases where some judge has been reached and is using the cover of a technicality to hide the fact that he's been bribed."

ELLIOT L. RICHARDSON

10. We've heard so much lately of lawyers convicted of serious crimes who've received very light sentences. Are there two kinds of justice in this country—one for lawyers and one for other people?

Elliot L. Richardson was Attorney General of the United States until last October when he resigned over President Nixon's firing of Watergate Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

"I certainly hope not, although there have been some recent situations that understandably have given rise to this question in the minds of many people. Actually, it is fair to say that the problem of sentencing in the United States generally is a scandal. There is wide disparity from judge to judge.

"I think one of the most corrosive factors in destroying public confidence on the integrity of the administration of justice today is this problem of disparity in sentencing, not simply as between lawyers and other defendants, but as between all sorts of defendants who happen to come before different judges."

Actress Vivian Blaine serves one of her favorite desserts—freshly sliced peaches and blueberries topped with a whipped kirsch, brandy and cream mixture.

FRESH FRUIT TREAT

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

"Constantly on the go" appropriately describes actress Vivian Blaine. Currently the star of the touring company "Twigs," she is best known for her portrayal of Adelaide in both the Broadway and screen version of "Guys and Dolls." Being so active she realizes the importance of a balanced diet in maintaining a trim figure and having the stamina for such a demanding schedule.

In the summertime she particularly enjoys fresh fruit dishes—one of her favorites is peaches and cream. Freshly sliced peaches and blueberries, tossed in lemon juice and kirsch and blended in cream and brandy, makes a cool and refreshing dessert idea.

PEACHES AND CREAM

6 to 8 fresh peaches	1 cup whipping cream
¼ cup lemon juice	1½ teaspoons (½ envelope)
¼ cup kirsch	unflavored gelatin
¼ cup sugar	¼ cup cold water
2 cups fresh blueberries	1 cup dairy sour cream
	2 tablespoons brandy

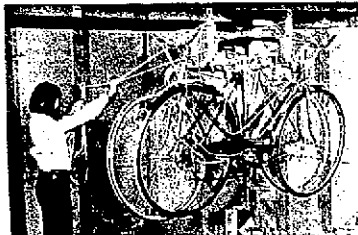

Peel and slice peaches; toss with lemon juice; add kirsch. Sprinkle with ½ cup of sugar. Wash blueberries in ice water; add to peaches; toss gently; chill. Heat cream until bubbles form around rim (do not let it boil). Soften gelatin in cold water; add to cream; stir until dissolved. Blend in sour cream and brandy; whisk thoroughly; chill three to four hours. When ready to serve, whisk vigorously until mixture attains consistency of thick sour cream. Garnish with mint if available and serve cream mixture separately. Makes six to eight servings.

Peter Kapitza, Russia's foremost atomic scientist, has become a legend in his own time. At 80, he continues to speak his mind and has somehow managed to survive in the Soviet Union, which is testimony to his fearlessness and his scientific genius.

The Captive Scientist

by Lloyd Shearer

LAST month on July 9th, Piotr (Peter) Leonidovich Kapitza celebrated his 80th birthday. The previous week when scads of U.S. journalists were scurrying over this city covering Nixon and Brezhnev at their summit, only a handful of American correspondents called on or contacted Kapitza. He is the dean and probably the most famous of all Russian physicists; the one scientist who fearlessly and continuously defied dictator Josef Stalin by refusing to work on the development of Russia's atom bomb.

A venerable, legendary, white-haired atomic scientist with a fascinating history, Kapitza (pronounced KAH-PEE-TSAH) is the son of a Czarist general. He was born in Kronstadt, near Leningrad in 1894, educated at the Leningrad Polytechnic Institute. On graduating he was appointed a lecturer in theoretical physics at that same institute where he soon earned a reputation as a brilliant and profound young instructor.

In 1919 when famine and civil strife broke out in Leningrad (then Petrograd), Kapitza's wife and child died of undernourishment.

At age 27 Kapitza made his way to England where he joined the illustrious Ernest Rutherford in his Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge University.

Nobel Laureate Rutherford, originally from New Zealand, had succeeded in the transmutation of matter. In a series of epic experiments he had bombarded the element of nitrogen with tiny alpha particles, thereby transforming an atom of nitrogen at various times into an atom of oxygen and one of hydrogen.

'The Kapitza Club'

At Cambridge, Kapitza became Rutherford's favorite. He organized what was then called "The Kapitza Club." It consisted of 20 atomic physicists who met once a week to discuss their work. Such members as Hans Bethe, the late Lord Blackett, Marcus Oliphant and others were to become recognized as some of the world's most renowned scientists.

In 1934 the Russian Academy of Science elected Piotr Kapitza a member. Stalin strenuously objected because Kapitza preferred to work in England rather than Russia. Kapitza, who had returned to the Soviet Union several times between 1921 and 1934 and had always managed to get out, arrived in Moscow to accept this honor.

This time, however, Stalin refused to let him leave. "In view of the impending danger from Hitler," he explained to the physicist, "we cannot afford to let you go. You must stay here. We are building an electrical industry. We need your genius."

Futile appeal to Stalin

Kapitza wrote to Rutherford for help. Rutherford wrote to Stalin. No answer. Rutherford appealed to Britain's Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, who in turn wrote Stalin imploring him not to make Kapitza a prisoner in his own country. He pointed out how vital Kapitza was to the progress of science.

Replied Stalin: "It is understandable that England would like to have Kapitza. It is equally understandable that the Soviet Union would like to have Rutherford."

In an effort to win Kapitza over, Stalin built him a new institute in Moscow, restructured Kapitza's laboratory which had been sent from England to Russia. Even so, when World War II erupted and the Soviets learned through their espionage network that the Americans were working on an atomic bomb, Kapitza refused to help in the development of Soviet nuclear weapons.

In 1946 Stalin removed him as director of the Institute for Physical Problems, placed him under house arrest at his home in Zvenigorod for seven years. Intermittently he threatened Kapitza with Siberian exile, especially when from time to time Kapitza issued statements urging his fellow scientists not to work on the production of Soviet atom bombs.

Rehabilitation

In 1953 after Stalin died and Khrushchev took over, Kapitza was academically rehabilitated. Although he was still forbidden to leave the Soviet Union, he was permitted to continue his experiments on magnetism, cryogenics and high temperature plasma. American physicists who journeyed to Moscow made it a point to call on him and figuratively sit at the master's feet.

Five years ago the Soviet authorities permitted Kapitza and his wife to visit the United States and Canada for the first time. Kapitza lectured at Stanford, Harvard, Cornell, Cal Tech and other educational centers where he explained that he advocated the ultimate convergence of the Soviet and American systems of government, an idea originated by the dissident physicist, Andrei Sakharov.

Not far from Moscow, Kapitza has a dacha with a tennis court badly in need of repairs and a swimming pool which is not. In this comfortable dacha he spends most of his summer with his second wife Anna, daughter of the Soviet academician Alexei Krylov. He married her in England in 1926. They have two sons, Sergei, a physicist, and Andrei, a geographer.

Recently when Soviet authorities asked him to sign a petition denounc-

Brand New! With Great advances on his original diet breakthrough!

Take Dr. Stillman's Word For It:

"GIVE ME JUST 14 DAYS AND I WILL SHOW YOU A 'MIRACLE' IN LOSS OF POUNDS AND INCHES WITH MY NEW, TESTED PROGRAM"

"Over the past 7 years I conducted intensive, day-in-day-out research and testing toward improving my reducing methods. As a result I created a vitally different, new diet that would work remarkably for overweights. I've helped people everywhere take off tens of millions of pounds of fat. Now it's your turn."
Dr. Stillman

In his long career, world-famous Dr. Irwin Stillman learned a cardinal rule: "Unless you get visible results from a diet within a short week—which you see on the scale and in the mirror—you are likely to give up." That is why, in answer to the requests of thousands, he created his new, dramatic 14-day weight loss program...

Start Burning Calories by Igniting the SDA—Specific Dynamic Action of Food Inside Your Body

That fatty blubber causing your body to bulge, sag and endanger your life is stored-up calories. To lose weight, you must burn those calories off faster than you store them. To do this, Dr. Stillman utilizes a process which he calls Specific Dynamic Action. The powerful incentive for this process is best told by Dr. Stillman himself:

"When I was 40 years old, I suffered a massive heart attack. The first step was to get rid of 55 destructive pounds, starting instantly. I was out of borrowed time.

"So to save my own life, I created a program based on interaction of certain foods within the body. The suffocating fat 'melted' off in a hurry...and I've kept it off." At this writing, 38 years later at age 78, Dr. Stillman has never stopped seeking ways to improve methods of diet.

How and Why SDA Works

This new program involves a liberal diet which even incorporates special bread, buns, cake, and, believe it or not, alcoholic drinks, and miraculously reduces you in 14 days! The approach is simple. Through charts and complete directions, you follow a plan where foods you eat work on each other to literally "waste" calories. This is Specific Dynamic Action. As long as you diet so that SDA can work, your body burns up calories faster than it can store them... automatically!

One delighted lady who dropped 22 pounds in 2 weeks with Dr. Stillman's methods wrote "This is the diet I've been looking for during all my overweight years!"

With his "miraculous" formula, SDA—Specific Dynamic Action—you'll ignite a mechanism that burns off calories—fuel it with delicious foods (and drinks)...And...trim your body dramatically in an entirely new weight loss program—reduce as you watch TV.

Dr. Stillman Asks "Do you know the truth about diets?"

Is it necessary to stay on a diet forever? No. With Dr. Stillman's diet you reduce marvelously in just 14 days and once you are slimmed down, maintain ideal weight eating "as usual" under his guidance, to stay beautifully slim for the rest of your life!

Is it true "fat-burning" diets enable you to eat everything? With so-called "fat-burning" diets, you may lose several pounds at first, then you are likely to gain and eventually weigh more than when you started—while your cholesterol starts going up dangerously.

Should diets prevent you from snacking? No. Dr. Stillman's diet has a very effective way to snack, in fact, he even advocates it.

Read These Amazing True Stories

From a professional man: "I set out to shed a lot of my 262 pounds. I was enormously successful. I got down to 155 pounds in a remarkably short period."

An elderly woman: "When I went on your diet I weighed 195 pounds. I lost so much weight that I can wear the clothes I want, 8 sizes less."

A bright young woman: "I've been miserable for 17 years carrying 25 extra pounds. At the birth of my second child I was 45 pounds overweight. Through your diet I am now down to between 105 and 110 pounds. I am 5'3".

Why Dr. Stillman Knows His 14-Day Plan Will Work For You

1. Dr. Stillman has seen fads come and go. He knows what will work. Under his guidance you develop a diet program that works specifically for you...and through SDA actually control the rate of weight loss.

2. You measure your dramatic weight loss daily. You take no pills, no medicines, count no calories (although calories do count). And you're eating delicious, nutritious foods.

3. Dr. Stillman even tells you how to firm your body and trim off up to 6 inches around your midsection on your 14-day program.

Everything You need to Lose Weight in This Simple 14-Day Program

How to turn on the SDA in your system instantly and start burning calories right away. (P. 60)

A three-word formula that instantly turns off your desire to eat. (P. 2)

The secret of people who commonly live over a hundred years is contained in this program. (P. 32)

How you can speed up the calories burning process by "snacking." (P. 59)

42 of the best meals you've ever eaten for the entire 14-day weight loss period. (P. 111-124)

How to break a weight-resistance level in just one day. (P. 128)

Once you start Dr. Stillman's diet you will find that:

1. You stay on this diet only 14 days and prove that you never need to be overweight again.

2. You won't be hungry... you will lose weight, attain your ideal weight faster than you thought possible.

3. You'll not only lose weight, look slimmer, but you'll guarantee yourself a better chance for a healthier, longer life.

No-Risk Trial with the Book That Could Change Your Life—Order Now

Order this stimulating book now. Just think, after you receive it, you can have lost up to 25 pounds or more, be feeling better and happier than you ever have in all your life or return it after 14 days for full money back. Dr. Stillman promises you a miracle, he will not let you down.

Keeping Up...With Youth

by Pamela Swift

ALICE COOPER: HE CAPITALIZES ON THE BIZARRE:

Going Too Far

Rock star Alice Cooper is one of the new breed of shock-entertainers. One of Alice's weird, way-out routines is a mock hanging.

Recently, a coroner's jury in Calgary, Canada, investigating the death of David Coombes, 14, ruled that David's death was accidental. Simultaneously the jury recommended that all programs which depict simulated hangings or other violent acts be banned from Canadian television.

Young David, it seems, had watched Alice Cooper perform his mock hanging on a program telecast by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., had then attempted to reproduce the stunt and had killed himself accidentally in the process.

Dr. John Butt, a local pathologist, told the coroner's jury that kids were experimenting with hangings for fun or kicks, and Dr. W. W. Wilson, the coroner, said that youngsters should be told that "such goings-on can be lethal."

David's father testified at the inquest that both David and his sister had watched the Alice Cooper TV program and that after the show they attended a party where many of the kids tried to imitate the mock hanging routine.

Back to the Farm

Years ago the refrain was: "How're you gonna keep 'em down on the farm?"

Today the answer is that many young people prefer the farm to the factory, the rural areas to the cities, because they can make a good living on the farm and ecologically lead a better life in rural areas.

In the last 10 years enrollments in colleges of agriculture have doubled, with the upturn particularly sharp in the past two years. Explains Orville Bentley, dean of the School of Agriculture at the University of Illinois: "Rural youths used to come to college for upward mobility, to get away from farming. Now it's turning around. Farm prices are one major inducement. After all, wheat is at $5 a bushel."

Robert W. Hougas, associate dean of the Agricultural School at the University of Wisconsin, offers a further explanation. "During the 1960's," he points out, "young people developed a tremendous concern for the environment and all of our natural resources. When they want to translate that concern into a course of study, they find out the expertise they seek is right here."

Future Jobs

According to forecasts in the "Occupational Outlook Handbook" published biannually by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, two-thirds of all job openings in the next 10 years will depend on death or retirements.

Only a third will result from employment growth and expansion, and most of the new jobs will be suited for persons who have not completed four years of college.

New job possibilities include positions in the government at state and municipal levels, health services, business services, professional and technical workers.

The 1974-75 handbook is available for $6.85 from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Women Law Students

More women are attending law school than at any previous time, says the American Bar Association.

Enrollment of first-year women law students in the fall of 1973 totaled 7464, a 35.2 percent gain over 1972.

The job market for lawyers remains tight. The number of law school graduates has tripled since 1963, reaching 27,756 in 1972.

College Dorms and Tourists

They do it all over Europe—universities catering to the tourist trade—and some are now beginning to do it in this country.

In England 21 universities are charging tourists $6 and $8 a night for bed and breakfast.

Tourists, mainly American, are offered single rooms with communal bathrooms, dormitory style. The 21 universities are located in open country and offer a total of 30,000 beds for individuals and families.

The project is supervised by the British Universities Accommodation Consortium, and a private company, University Holidays of Sudbury, Suffolk, acts as reservations agent. John Rees is managing director, and he reports that this summer "things are going along just swimmingly."

In many London hotels this summer the price for a bed and breakfast has become prohibitive for the tourist traveling on a limited budget. Forty dollars a night for a double room in town is nothing.

Precious 24K Gold, married to pure .999 Silver by an extraordinary advance in Gold Metallurgy.

12 Great Americans 1776-1976.

The World's first Medallion Series in Gold Bas Relief.

As our great country approaches its second centennial. The Letcher Mint proudly presents a limited edition of intricately crafted commemorative medallions... unique in all the world:

For more than four years research has been conducted in the laboratories of The Letcher Mint, drawing heavily on the latest space-age developments in the forming of precious metals.

As a result of these painstaking efforts by the craftsmen and technicians of the west's largest private mint, we now can create a single amazing piece of metal—with pure 24 K gold and the purest silver obtainable (99.9% silver) permanently combined to form a collector's item of exceptional rarity and beauty. This is not gold plating or common "gold on silver"—but an entirely new and revolutionary process.

A Treasury of Americana

In the relatively short span of time between 1776 and 1976 the ideas and deeds of these great men helped make America the most influential country in the world.

George Washington
Benjamin Franklin
John Paul Jones
Alexander Hamilton
Abraham Lincoln
Robert E. Lee

Mark Twain
Thomas A. Edison
Theodore Roosevelt
Charles A. Lindbergh
Dwight D. Eisenhower
John F. Kennedy

Now at a time when world events rush forward at breathtaking speed, the wise collector and novice alike have a rare opportunity. That of owning a series of precious medals of both historic significance and true intrinsic worth.

Sculptured by Boris Buzan

One of America's greatest contemporary sculptors — Boris Buzan was honored by the prestigious Society of Medalists in 1969 for his Apollo 11 design. Having recently completed his Signers of the Declaration of Independence series, Mr. Buzan is devoting himself to sculpturing the Great Americans series for The Letcher Mint.

Enduring Value

As the cost of gold and silver on world markets spirals inexorably upward, there could be no wiser choice for the collector than an investment in pure gold and pure silver medals and coins. For here truly is a commodity whose value is timeless and virtually indestructible.

Each piece in this distinguished series measures a full 39mm (1.53") in diameter.

The obverse side depicts each of 12 Great Americans sculptured in brilliant pure gold (24 K). The mirror-like, pure silver background is finely detailed with illustrations individually designed for each of the 12 medals. The reverse dies are exquisitely engraved with fascinating biographical details in raised, frosted lettering, against the gleaming, pure silver background. And each piece contains a total of 5 grains of pure 24 K gold and 370 grains of pure .999 silver (more pure than sterling).

Limited Edition

In honor of the 200th anniversary of the American Revolution, 9,800 sets of Great Americans medals will be struck. 5,000 of these have been reserved for existing Letcher Mint collectors, leaving only 4,800 available to the public at large, on a first come, first served basis. No other sets will be struck and the dies will be destroyed, insuring the rarity of the series and its value to the collector.

Price Guarantee

The Great Americans series will be issued at the approximate rate of one medal per month. And the issue price of $30 per piece will be maintained regardless of increases in the prices of gold and silver on world markets during the life of your series. This offer will expire Sept. 30, 1974.

Please complete the order form below and each medal will be sent to you postpaid via insured mail, in its own case. You will be notified monthly as each medal is struck. What's more, when the order for your fourth medal is confirmed, you will be sent prepaid, a luxurious presentation case with lock and key, to house your entire collection.

Save $30

Charge to your credit card, or send a check for $330 with your application, and you will receive prepaid, all 12 medals and the beautiful presentation case without additional invoices or effort (you save $30).

We believe that this extraordinary series will become one of your most valued possessions. If after viewing your first medal you do not agree, just return it within 10 days for a full refund. After that you may discontinue your subscription at any time with no further obligation.

the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98 or $7.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $5.98 or $6.98—plus processing and postage. (Multiple unit sets and Double Selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest... plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year you will receive some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will always be enclosed with each magazine.

...if you do not want any selection offered, just mail the response card provided by the date specified

...if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, do nothing—it will be shipped automatically

...if you want any of the other selections offered, just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days to decide, you may return the Selection of the Month at our expense and receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for our bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Act now

NOTE: all applications are subject to review and Columbia House reserves the right to reject any application.

FREE TOOL KIT contains:

- Scissors • File • Tweezers
- Cement • Paint Brush
- Vial of Thinner • Six Vials of Colors: Red, Blue, Yellow, White, Silver, Black

This Columbia and Eagle Lunar Spacecraft is the first model your child will build as a Club member.

with membership in PARENTS' MAGAZINE'S YOUNG MODEL BUILDERS CLUB

Fold-over Certificate at the Right Requires No Postage—Simply Fold and Seal It and Drop It in Your Nearest Mailbox

What a great way to encourage your child's creative talents! And what a wonderful source of pride and delight for your child . . . to fashion, with his own hands, beautiful and accurate replicas of famous aircraft and spacecraft . . . steamships and submarines . . . historic sailing vessels . . . high-powered racing cars . . . and so much more! Which is exactly what your child will be doing—when you enroll him in Parents' Magazine's YOUNG MODEL BUILDERS CLUB.

A New Model Builders Kit Each Month

Besides the pleasure and inspiration, think of the educational benefits as your child becomes familiar with a new and different object of present-day or historical importance . . . through each month's package of precision-built parts, ready to assemble into a handsome, durable model that will long occupy a place of honor in his own room, or in the family living room or den . . . and in your youngster's heart.

As a Club-member, your child will construct models like these—all faithful replicas of famous ships, planes, cars, and much more.

A Fascinating Background Booklet with Each Month's Model Kit

With each new model your child assembles, his deftness and skill will increase. And so will his knowledge—for with each month's model kit he will receive a booklet outlining the history and development of the original of the model to be constructed.

Imagine the rich fund of knowledge your child will develop—as he builds models and learns interesting and important facts about a fantastic modern day spacecraft, or some historic sailing vessel, or famous racing car, or early model automobile!

Think of the hours of instructive and constructive fun for your youngster! Think how his life will be enriched as his collection of models grows and he points with ever-increasing pride to the products of his handiwork. Then, finally, consider what enormous dollars-and-cents value you are getting in being billed the member's price of only $1.98 (plus postage and handling) for each month's complete Model Builders package.

Fill In Postage Paid Fold-Over Certificate at Right and Mail Today for FREE TOOL KIT!

Start your youngster now on one of the happiest, most gratifying of all hobbies. Simply fill in and mail the postage-paid fold-over certificate at the right—it requires no postage! We'll then promptly enroll your child as a member and send his FREE Model Builder's Tool Kit, along with the first Club package containing parts and instructions for building a replica of the Columbia and Eagle Lunar Spacecraft shown above.

"LITTLE MISTER CHIPS"

"THIS LITTLE DUDE WAS WALKING ALONG MINDING HIS OWN BUSINESS WHEN SUDDENLY HE FOUND SOMETHING ON THE GROUND..."

WOW! A WHOLE DOLLAR.

"HE DECIDED HE'D BETTER PROTECT HIS NEW-FOUND WEALTH, SO HE PUT IT IN A BOX AND SAT ON IT..."

I'LL SIT GUARD OVER MY MONEY

"SOME OF HIS FRIENDS INVITED HIM TO PLAY..."

WANNA PLAY BALL?

I CAN'T, I'M ON GUARD DUTY

"OTHERS OFFERED INVITATIONS, BUT HIS ANSWER WAS ALWAYS THE SAME..."

LET'S GO WATCH TV

NO, I CAN'T

SORRY YOU WON'T HAVE LUNCH WITH US

HI, PAUL, WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

I KNOW ALL ABOUT GEORGE I. SANCHEZ

HE STARTED AS A RURAL SCHOOL TEACHER IN NEW MEXICO AND LATER ESTABLISHED HIMSELF AS ONE OF THIS NATION'S FOREMOST EXPERTS ON THE EDUCATIONAL AND SOCIOLOGICAL PROBLEMS OF THE SPANISH-MEXICANS OF THE U.S. AND LATIN AMERICA

HE WAS APPOINTED BY PRESIDENT JOHNSON TO THE COMMUNITY RELATIONS SERVICE COMMITTEE

HE AUTHORED MANY BOOKS, ARTICLES AND REPORTS, AND STARTED MANY EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

WHEW!... YOU HAD TO ASK!

WE'RE LATE FOR SCHOOL

GEORGE I. SANCHEZ

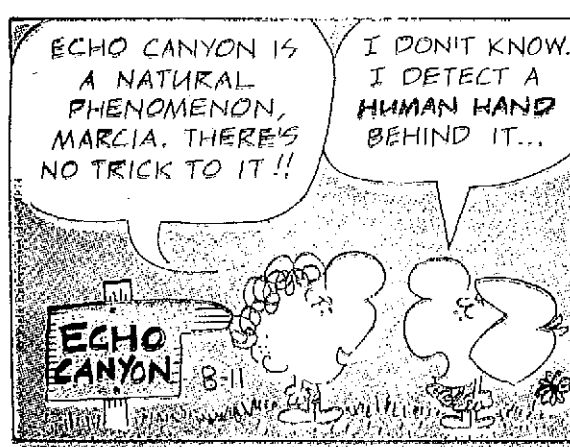

IT'S SENSATIONAL!

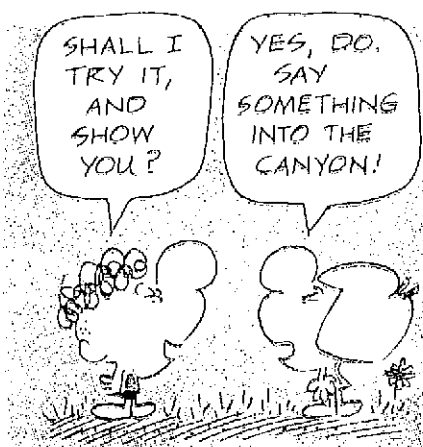

IT'S THE GREATEST ECHO IN THE WORLD, MARCIA! SOMETIMES IT EVEN ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS!

BALONEY.

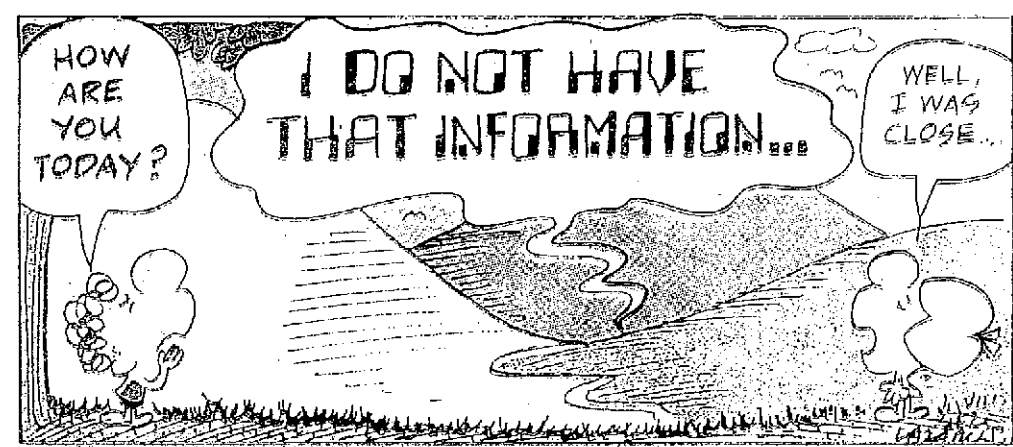

ECHO CANYON IS A NATURAL PHENOMENON, MARCIA. THERE'S NO TRICK TO IT!!

I DON'T KNOW. I DETECT A HUMAN HAND BEHIND IT...

SHALL I TRY IT, AND SHOW YOU?

YES, DO. SAY SOMETHING INTO THE CANYON!

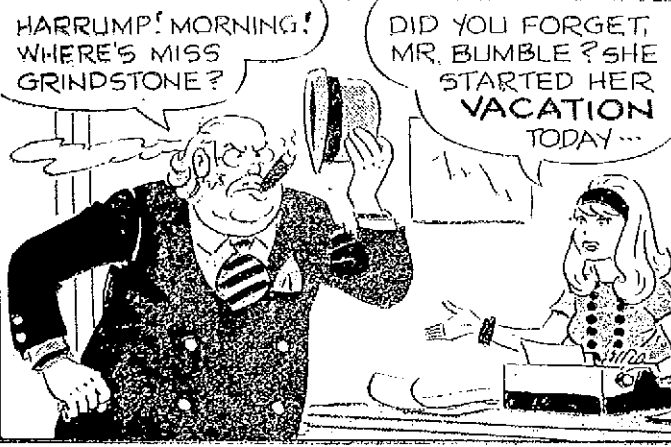

HOW ARE YOU TODAY?

I DO NOT HAVE THAT INFORMATION...

WELL, I WAS CLOSE...

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW!

HARRUMP! MORNING! WHERE'S MISS GRINDSTONE?

DID YOU FORGET, MR. BUMBLE? SHE STARTED HER VACATION TODAY...

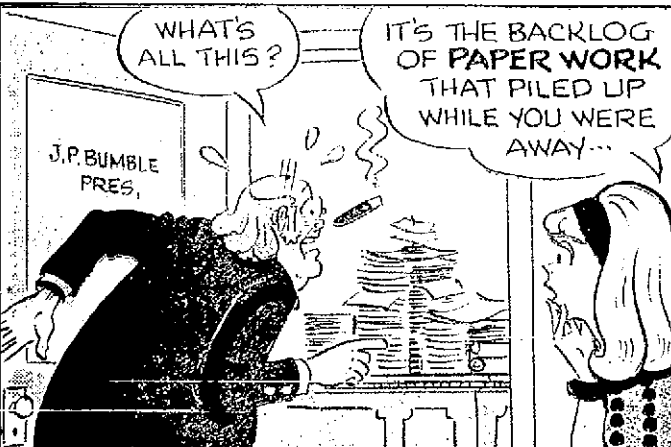

EGAD! SHE CAN'T LEAVE THE FIRST DAY I'M BACK!

SHE SAID TO BE SURE YOU GOT THIS LIST OF PRIORITIES...

BAH! CANCEL ALL MY APPOINTMENTS! I'LL BE TOO BUSY FOR THE REST OF THE DAY TO SEE ANYONE!

UH... MZZ GEE DIDN'T MAKE ANY APPOINTMENTS FOR YOU TODAY...

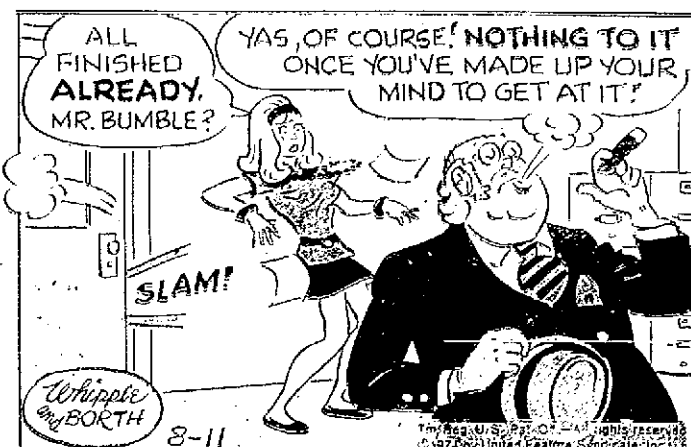

WHAT'S ALL THIS?

IT'S THE BACKLOG OF PAPER WORK THAT PILED UP WHILE YOU WERE AWAY...

MZZ GRINDSTONE SAID IT ALL REQUIRED YOUR IMMEDIATE ATTENTION...

HARRUMP! DIDN'T SHE DO ANYTHING WHILE I WAS GONE?

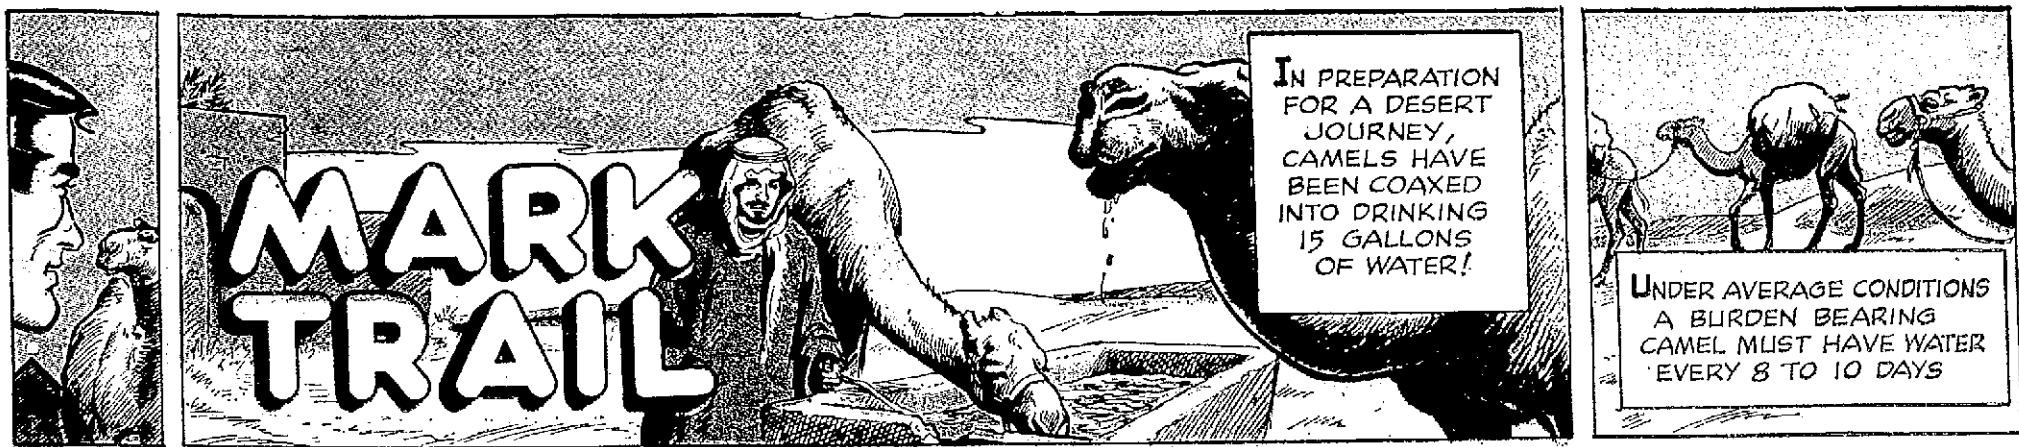

ALL FINISHED ALREADY, MR. BUMBLE?

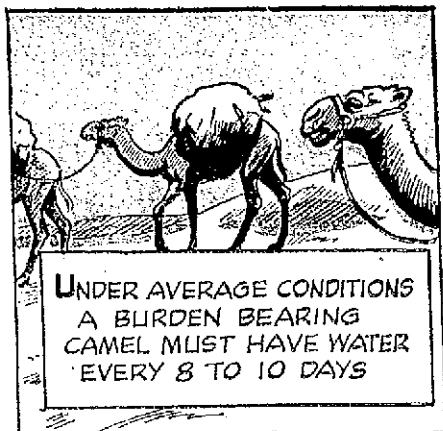

YAS, OF COURSE! NOTHING TO IT ONCE YOU'VE MADE UP YOUR MIND TO GET AT IT!
